MELLON BACKS G.O.P. DEFENSE OF NEW TARIFF

"ENDS UNCERTAINTY," IS VIEW OF TREASURY

Both Republican Chiefs Make Light of "Gloomy Prophecies."

ANSWER PROTESTS OF FOREIGN NATIONS

Senator Declares Bill Was Not Enacted for Aid of Other Peoples.

(Associated Press.)

Two administration champions—Secretary Mellon and Senator Watson, of Indiana—came forward last night to defend the newly enacted Smoot-Hawley tariff law as Democrats peppered away with their assault on the legislation.

In a formal statement, the Treasury Secretary said the new law removes an obstacle to business recovery "by eliminating the uncertainty of the last fifteenth months" and makes a contribution to business stability "by its promise of more businesslike revision in the future."

Over the radio, Senator Watson, the Republican leader, said the increased agricultural rates provided by the bill assured "added prosperity and increased purchasing power to a third of the people of the country."

Belittle Gloomy Prophecies.

Both Republican chieftains belittled the "gloomy prophecies" made by the opposition and argued these had always been made in the past without fulfillment, both directed pointed remarks to the protests of foreign governments, Secretary Mellon added:

"Foreign nations that do business with us would do well to remember that the all-important factor is the maintenance of the high purchasing power and standard of living of the American people."

The Treasury statement said the question directed to Mr. Mellon sought his opinion as to whether the enactment of the Smoot-Hawley tariff law would adversely affect the business interests of the United States and retard a business recovery.

Fears Held Exaggerated.

"I do not believe that it will," Secretary Mellon said. "It seems to me that fears and criticisms have been greatly exaggerated. Whenever a new protective tariff law has been enacted gloomy prophecies have been made. They have failed to materialize as far back as I can remember, and my memory goes back many years. The rates in the bill as it passed the House a year ago were higher than in the bill recently signed by the President. Yet, business at that time did not take alarm. There seems to be no reason why it should now. I know of no industry that is seriously hurt, while those industries which needed additional protection and received it are benefited.

"I have canvassed the situation with the Secretary of Commerce, and the notion that this law is going to destroy foreign trade, expressed in some quarters, is certainly without foundation. The United States will continue to buy a vast quantity of foreign products and to sell the products of its farms, mines and factories all over the world. In so far as imports are concerned, foreign nations that do business with us would do well to remember that the all-important factor is the maintenance of the high purchasing power and standard of living of the American peoples.

Brings Uncertainty to End.

"The enactment of this measure brings to an end fifteen months of

Mob Burns Effigy Of Oscar De Priest

Crowd Veiled as Klansmen Repeat Stunt on Communist.

Birmingham, Ala., June 20 (A.P.).—Oscar De Priest, Negro representative from Illinois, was burned in effigy by a group of 1,000 persons dressed in the regalia of the Ku Klux Klan in Collegeville, Negro section of North Birmingham, last night.

Tom Johnson, Communist organizer, also was burned in effigy during the demonstration, which followed an automobile parade through the Negro district when pamphlets warning against affiliating with communistic organizations were distributed.

De Priest is scheduled to address a State gathering of Negroes here July 17. He has been denied use of the city auditorium by th city commission.

Racketeer King Slain As Gangs Accept War

Lorenzo Juliano, Chicago Alcohol Syndicate Boss, Beaten to Death in Answer to Society's Mobilization Against Crime.

Chicago, June 20 (A.P.).—Another king of racketeers fell today, the grim signal of the gangster that the banding of Cook County's forces against crime has not ended his bloody war for the profits of liquor and vice.

On the ledger of gang war casualties for 1930 was written another name, number 40 for the year—Lorenzo Juliano, boss of a big alcohol syndicate, reputed lieutenant of the Capone clan, suspect in more than one murder. He was found dead in a wrecked automobile that had catapulted at full speed down a 50-foot embankment in suburban Blue Island.

The Italian's body, his head crushed and back broken by a blunt instrument, lay huddled between the seats, wrapped in gray canvas.

Three years ago he was questioned about the bombing of the homes of Senator Charles S. Dineen and Judge John A. Swanson, then a candidate for State's attorney. Dynamite was found in his home. There was no prosecution.

He was indicted by Federal grand juries at Indianapolis on a charge of transporting liquor between that city and the distilleries of the suburbs fringing Chicago on the South and he was the reputed concessionaire of the slot machine syndicate in Blue Island and Chicago Heights.

First reports said the Italian had been slain by machine gun fire, but after examination of the body Coroner Herman N. Bundesen said the victim had been beaten to death.

While the war among the underworld enemies was being renewed—it was the first killing in the "racket" since the assassination of "Jake" Lingle supposedly by gang executioners—the united forces of the law were perfecting their organization. They published their address and telephone number and pledged that any who could offer aid in the campaign against the gunman would be heard in confidence and given the full protection of the law.

Furthermore, State's Attorney Swanson announced those who produce evidence leading to the conviction of Lingle's murderer will be given the $55,725 rewards offered.

"We are not interested in rewards," Swanson said for the official staff. "The men at this meeting hope to

GIRL ACCUSES MAN OF THREAT WITH GUN

Residents in Schuyler Arms Terrorized by Sight of Weapon, Is Charge.

POLICE SEIZE VISITOR

The life of a pretty telephone operator, it is charged, was threatened and several residents of the fashionable Schuyler Arms apartment house, 1954 Columbia road northwest, were frightened about 7:45 o'clock last night when an allegedly drunken man brandished an ominous looking .38-caliber revolver in the lobby of the building.

Walking up to Mrs. Frances Pearson, 26 years old, of 3016 Georgia avenue northwest, the operator, Edward S. Johnson, 27 years old, of 615 Roxborough place northwest, is said to have pointed the gun at her and said:

"If I ever hear of you telling anybody what I do, I'll blow your brains out."

Mrs. Pearson, who has known Johnson for some time, having gone to school with him and lived near his family, threw up her hands and hastily pushed away the revolver as she begged the man to go away.

Several persons passed through the lobby at the time and two women stood just outside during the conversation, the operator said, but she feared more serious consequences if she called for help.

After Johnson is said to have repeated his threat to John Maloy, elevator operator, concerning Mrs. Pearson, he went up to room 210, where his brother, William Johnson, lives. Maloy called the Eighth Precinct

Mrs. Hoover Surprises President With Desk

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover is to find a surprise awaiting him from Mrs. Hoover when he enters his office this morning.

After he left his office at 6 o'clock last night his old desk was removed and a beautiful maple antique desk said to have cost $6,000 took its place. Velvet-brocaded chairs took the place of those that formerly had stood there and a new rug was placed on the floor. Mrs. Hoover had chosen them as a present.

TINKHAM TAKES UP CANNON CHALLENGE

Representative, in Answer, Repeats Charge He Made on House Floor.

IMMUNITY IS DISCARDED

Representative George Holden Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, in a statement issued over his signature and not protected by congressional immunity, yesterday described Bishop James Cannon, jr., as "a shameless violator of the Federal corrupt practices act, a criminal statute," thus opening the way for the bishop to make good on his published threat to proceed against the congressman in court.

Mr. Tinkham's statement in full reads:

"Lest Bishop Cannon shall delude any one into thinking the charges which I made against him in the House of Representatives were unfounded and meeting his challenge that I divest myself of my congressional immunity, I desire to restate over my signature the charges I made in the House of Representatives that he is a shameless violator of the Federal corrupt practices act, a criminal statute; that he received $65,300, mostly in cash, from a New York capitalist, Mr. Jameson, during the 1928 elections and illegally concealed the receipt of all of this money until February 15, 1929, and has not yet accounted for $48,300 of this amount, refusing to do so before the Senate lobby investigating committee before which he appeared voluntarily and where he was under oath and could have been cross-examined.

"(Signed)

"GEORGE HOLDEN TINKHAM."

In his speech in the House last Tuesday Mr. Tinkham reviewed the evidence before the lobby committee relating to the $65,300 given the bishop by E. C. Jameson, of New York, for anti-Smith campaign purposes in 1928 and called attention to the fact that $48,300 of this amount had never been accounted for. At the same time Mr. Tinkham mentioned the bishop's stock speculation through Kable & Co. and his reputed dealings with another New York bucket shop, and asked a series of questions which, Mr. Tinkham said, the bishop feared to answer. One of the questions was:

"Whether or not any of the money

BUSINESS MEN MAKE PLEA FOR DISTRICT BILL

Petition Tells Longworth Hundreds May Lose Their Work Here.

WIDE, UNFAVORABLE REACTION FORESEEN

Leading Men of City, in Meeting, Vote Appeal to House Chiefs.

GLASS HOLDS SENATE IS BEING DOMINATED Little Hope Seen for Money Act; Jones Introduces Assessment Plan.

Hundreds of men will be thrown out of work if the $44,000,000 District appropriation bill fails of enactment, according to a petition left with Speaker Nicholas Longworth late yesterday by a committee of Washington's outstanding citizens. The petition urged that the Congress not adjourn in this time of "widespread unemployment, leaving unenacted legislation, the failure of which would increase unemployment."

Failure of the bill, it said, would have "deplorable" reaction not only here but all over the country.

The civic committee, composed of labor representatives, lawyers, bankers, builders and men in other walks of the city's life, called on Speaker Longworth at the Capitol yesterday shortly after he had returned from a visit to the White House. In the meantime, the big appropriation bill remained in status quo, caught in a Senate and House deadlock that threatens it with death. Actually no legislative steps were taken toward breaking the deadlock.

Resolution Is Introduced.

A resolution was introduced to create a fiscal relations commission, but this looked to the future, not to a breaking of the present impasse.

The author of the resolution, Senator Wesley M. Jones (Republican), of Washington, said as much when angry senators began to question him.

The fact is that notwithstanding the many pleas for a compromise, notwithstanding the intervention of President Hoover, and notwithstanding the grave consequences of no legislation, the appropriation bill yesterday was in very, very bad shape.

Influential men on the south side of the Capitol said privately that they saw no chance of the House receding from its stand that the Federal contribution be continued at $9,000,000.

Senators Stand Firm.

And certainly there was no indication of a surrender on the part of the senators. They have surrendered before, they say, but they are not going to surrender now. They think the Federal contribution toward the upkeep of the city should be $12,000,000.

Unlike the representatives, however, they are willing to compromise and accept a figure between $9,000,000 and $12,000,000. But, they exclaim, they are not going to let the House jam $9,000,000 down the Senate's throat again.

The quarrel transcends the District appropriation bill. It really is a chapter in a long and bitter feud between the Senate and House over appropriation matters. Time and again the Senate has had to capitulate to the House in such matters, and now it is in fiery revolt.

The petition which the citizens committee took to the Capitol yesterday afternoon was approved at a meeting uptown earlier in the day.

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, in two events as features of his busy day as Washington's honor guest, slipped away for a few moments to Arlington Cemetery to lay a wreath on the grave of his one-time comrade, Floyd Bennett, after which to make his formal Polar flight report to Acting Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke.

Standing in front of the tattered banner he took across the top and bottom of the world on the most daring flights in the lexicon of adventure, Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd last night received at the hands of President Hoover the National Geographic Society's special medal of honor, and the prolonged applause of a colorful crowd that packed and jammed the huge Washington Auditorium to capacity.

In presenting the medal to the only man who has gazed upon both poles, in addition to flying the Atlantic, the President pronounced him a hero "beloved by the American people, a leader who has demonstrated boldness at the right time, comradeship, and those qualities that endear the captain to his men."

"His contribution to exploration and scientific research has done honor to his country," the President continued, "and his country takes a just pride in them and in him. His daring and his courage have thrilled each one of us, individually, because he has proved anew the worth and power and vigor of the qualities which we believe are latent in our people."

Lauded By Grosvenor.

The President's medal presentation address followed an introductory speech by the society's president, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, who congratulated Admiral Byrd on "leading, brilliantly and successfully, one of the most comprehensive, dramatic and productive explorations of modern times."

"He first attained the North Pole by airplane," he added, "an achievement which won for him the society's highest award, the Hubbard Medal. Subsequently he flew across the Atlantic with three gallant companions. Now, when he returns from exploring the Antarctic continents, mapping hitherto unseen areas, adding mountain ranges and charting coast lines, bringing scientific data of extreme importance and flying to the South Pole, we are under the pleasant compulsion of devising a new award for him—a special gold medal of honor.

Expedition Personnel Praised.

Dr. Grosvenor paid tribute to the 80 members of the admiral's party, who sat with him on the platform, and said that it was particularly appropriate for President Hoover to award the medal, "as about the only places our President has not visited are the North and South Poles."

After expressing appreciation for the cooperation exhibited by the public, the Navy and the National Geographic Society, Admiral Byrd said his greatest happiness lay in the fact that every member of the party had returned in good health. "Even the pleasure of knowing that we accomplished more than we set out to do is overshadowed by the fact that we lost not a single man," he added.

In summarizing results of the polar trip he said that it had demonstrated the usefulness of the aerial camera and the value of radio and aircraft in exploration, in addition to producing a mass of invaluable data on meteorological, magnetic and geological conditions.

Describing the vast, frozen continent that he discovered, the admiral said:

"No life exists there, except sojourning penguins, gulls, seals, cer-

While Charles Kessler, 27-year-old seaman and the only Washington member of the Byrd expedition, was receiving his share of the glory bestowed on the rear admiral and his command of 80 last night at the Washington Auditorium, his father, Leroy Kessler, was calmly awaiting the return of the young explorer to his home at 1600 Foxhall road northwest.

Of course, Mr. Kessler would have liked to have gone to the auditorium—as he couldn't get away from his work at the Navy Yard yesterday and consequently hadn't seen Charles since his return—but, then, there were only three tickets. The mother, who had been with her son part of the day, had to go, naturally, and her sister and a niece from New York took the other two.

"Yes, I guess he's had a great time," the elder Kessler smiled. "He's crazy about Byrd, and he'd go anywhere with him."

Young Kessler, a graduate of Business High School, became acquainted with Admiral Byrd while working in the pressroom of the Marine Corps, his father explained. When the explorer invited him to make the trip with him to his North Pole base, Kessler jumped at the opportunity. Upon returning home the youth rejoined the Marines and went to Shanghai, China.

When Admiral Byrd was gathering his crew for the South Pole trip, he again invited the husky Washington marine. And again Kessler eagerly accepted, though he had to obtain a release from the Marine Corps first.

"He'll stay home for a while now, I suppose, and sort of rest up," Mr. Kessler ventured." But he'll sure go with Byrd anywhere else he wants him to go."

One might think that young Kessler's father and mother would have been mighty worried while he was away in the land of ice and snow,

Senator Brookhart pulled another "polecat" trick yesterday whereupon the Senate overwhelmingly confirmed his arch enemy, Hanford MacNider, as Minister to Canada. There was, in fact, only one dissenting vote, that of Senator Brookhart himself.

There was considerable sympathy for Senator Brookhart among his fellow senators when he began his attack. The chamber was well filled and several Democrats moved over to the Republican side in order to better hear what he said while others insisted that he speak louder so that they could hear.

The senator did not press a personal objection, which, under the senatorial courtesy tradition usually prevails against a nominee, and he said he had been assured by several

The House passed the second deficiency appropriation bill last night, after adding to it an item of $1,000,000 for a start on the George Washington Memorial Parkway

This project was authorized in the Capper-Cramton park development bill which recently was enacted. It will be a magnificent boulevard skirting both sides of the Potomac River, from Mount Vernon and Fort Washington to Great Falls.

As passed by the House and sent to the Senate, the deficiency bill carried $67,712,000 to meet contingencies that have arisen in the various departments of the Federal Government and in the District government.

An item of $250,000 for the expenses of the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission was stricken from the bill on a point of order by Representative LaGuardia (Republican),

The change is being made in response to a mandate of the Senate, contained in a resolution which was put through by Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, giving the telephone company 30 days in which to remove the dials. The deadline is today.

When he introduced the resolution Senator Glass said he refused to let the company make a telephone operator out of him.

tain forms of microscopic life and the whales which have found in adjoining waters a last retreat. The only population that this immense continent has known is the transitory communities of exploring parties, and the whalers and sealers who have landed briefly on its coasts.

"In winter, it is perhaps the dreariest of places. Our base, Little America, lay in a bowl of ice, near the edge of the Ross Ice Barrier. The temperature fell as low as 72 degrees below zero. One could actually hear one's breath freeze. Exposure led to painful consequences.

Did Not Suffer Unduly.

"Yet we did not suffer unduly. Not nearly as much, that is, as other exploring parties have suffered. Because this was an expedition directed toward scientific fact-finding, we took advantage of the experiences of our predecessors and the comforts provided by modern ingenuity. And we proved that it is possible for human beings to live in polar regions without extraordinary hardship.

The admiral said that his airplanes flew approximately 10,000 miles, while dog teams had covered 2,100 miles. The total area explored, he explained, was in excess of 100,000 square miles. This territory included new mountain ranges and endless tundra areas, possibly rich in coal and mineral deposits.

He repeatedly paid tribute to his associates, "who," he said, "really made the expedition a sucess."

While the Marine Band played "Anchors Aweigh" in honor of the admiral's Navy rank, the explorers filed down into the audience to view a motion picture record of the entire expedition, films shown for the first time, and one which they themselves had never seen.

Entire Trip Recorded.

Starting with the City of New York's departure from the Statue of Liberty, the camera recorded the expedition's peregrinations in one of the most amazing pictures ever flashed upon a screen.

The bark's hazardous trip through the ice floes of the Bay of Whales, the lonely landing on the Ross Barrier, the construction of the city of Litle America—all were shown in detail to an audience which frequently interrupted with applause and exclamations of wonder.

Blizzards and storms, the rescue of an exploring party lost in the snow, the intimate life of the icebound explorers during the six months of night, and finally the flight across the pole were flashed before the audience and the modest leader, who viewed his exploits from a balcony seat.

Gets Tremendous Ovation.

Upon his arrival in Washington, Admiral Byrd's party was given a reception equaled by none since Lindbergh's arrival, and throughout the day the explorers were engaged in a round of ceremonies which took them to the White House, the Capitol, Navy Department and Arlington Cemetery.

Crowds mobbed the polar party as it arrived on a special train at 9 a. m.; larger crowds cheered the procession on its way to the Willard Hotel, and thousands gathered about the gates of the White House as President Hoover added his personal congratulations to those wired to the admiral in Little America.

From the White House the party returned to the Willard for a luncheon given by the National Geographic Society. In the afternoon Admiral Byrd paid an impromptu visit to the Capitol, called on Acting Secretary of the Navy Jahncke, and went to Arlington National Cemetery, where he decorated the graves of Floyd Bennett, who piloted him across the North Pole; Admiral Robert E. Peary, and Admiral Charles Wilkes, famous explorer of bygone days.

Silent at Bennett's Grave.

The crowds at the grave where Floyd Bennett sleeps was flanked by movietone apparatus, but Admiral Byrd disappointed the operators. Standing silently at the tomb, with the hint of a tear in those eyes which discovered unknown continents and uncharted seas, the admiral placed a wreath, saluted and abruptly turned away, apparently too filled with emotion to speak. It was Floyd Bennett who accompanied him on many hazardous flights, and the two were collaborating on plans for the South Pole expedition when a hero's death claimed the veteran pilot.

Approximately 500 people, many of them armed with cameras, waited for hours at the grave to see the only man who has gazed down on both poles of the globe called the world. Admiral Byrd looked tired and wan as he stood at the graves, clad in Navy regalia as white as the snowbound wastes from which he has just returned.

In an interview sandwiched between the morning round of ceremonies, Admiral Byrd hinted at plans for returning to the polar regions, where he says there are vast reaches of land yet to be explored. He asserted his claims to "all land lying east of the 150th meridian, as far as the South American sector."

Among other dignitaries who met the admiral at the station were Acting Secretary of the Navy Jahncke and Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics. After brief formalities the party drove to the Willard for a brief period of rest. Accompanying Admiral Byrd and his party of 80, which included the 42 members of the polar party and crews of the two ships used by the expedition, were his wife, his son, Dick, jr.; his mother, Mrs. Eleanor Bolling Byrd, and two brothers, former Gov. Harry Byrd of Virginia and Capt. Tom Byrd.

President Hoover received the party in the executive offices, shaking hands with every member, and recalling Admiral Byrd for a 15-minute chat after the others had gone out to the lawn, where the Chief Executive and the explorers later posed for pictures.

Messages of Congratulations.

When the admiral arrived at his hotel he found a congratulatory cable for him from the former French Ambassador, Jules Jusserand, now in Paris. Col. and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh also wired regrets over their inability to attend the ceremonies honoring the flying admiral.

At the luncheon in the Willard the flying admiral and his men were lauded by Vice President Curtis, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society, and Acting Secretary of the Navy Jahncke.

In reply Commander Byrd expressed appreciation for the cooperation shown by the National Geographic Society and the Navy, adding that there was still much exploratory work to be done in the polar territories. "There are lands down there as big as the United States and Mexico combined that no man has ever looked on," he said. "So long as there remains land to be explored, it will be man's mission to find out what's there. There will be many other expeditions to the Antartic."

Vice President Curtis interposed the hope that Admiral Byrd would remain in this country for a short rest.

"I won't have time to think about another trip until I get this last one wound up," he replied.

Admiral Byrd Visits Capitol.

At the Capitol the explorer's unexpected arrival threw the legislative machinery out of gear for twenty minutes. Admiral Byrd was taken upon the floor of the Senate, while his companions were seated in the galleries. Spectators and senators alike leaped to their feet as the bronzed young adventurer walked to the dais to shake Vice President Curtis' hand. After that he shook hands with all senators present, and with the pages, many of whom slipped back into line to twice feel the grip of a hero that for the nonce completely eclipsed even the lone eagle, Lindbergh.

The same scene was repeated in the House, where Speaker Longworth did the introductions.

After leaving the Capitol, the admiral called on Secretary of the Navy Jahncke to receive that official's congratulations and pledge that the Navy stood ready to assist him in any future expeditions.

"We are proud that a Navy man has accomplished what you have done," Mr. Jahncke said.

Called "Honor to Service."

"You are an honor to the service, and a shining example to all who wear the uniform."

Admiral Byrd expressed appreciation for the leave of absence that made his expedition possible, adding that without Navy training he would probably have failed in his quest.

Following the visit to Arlington, the party returned to the Willard to rest before the day's program culminated in the auditorium ceremonies.

VIRGINIA TO BESTOW SWORD ON ADMIRAL

Pollard Will Present Byrd With Subscription Gift at Richmond.

BIG WELCOME PLANNED

Richmond, Va., June 20 (A.P.).—Virginia will acclaim Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd as her own tomorrow with a warmth and enthusiasm not exceeded in the tumultuous welcome extended by New York's millions.

Greeted by the State's official representative as he stepped ashore, Admiral Byrd comes tomorrow to receive the personal congratulations of thousands who know his as "Dick," and the honors of a Commonwealth eager to pay tribute to a son who has carved high on the scroll of fame another achievement of the "Byrds of Virginia."

A sword of honor, wrought in precious metal and commemorating the aerial conquest of the North and South Poles and the Atlantic crossing, is the lasting gift selected by Virginians as an expression of their affection and admiration for the famous explorer. Gov. John Garland Pollard will present the sword, while John Stewart Bryan, of the citizens reception committee, will tend the admiral a volume containing the names of those who contributed to the sword.

BYRD BORN LEADER, PRESIDENT ASSERTS

DEEDS "THRILL" HOOVER

Calling Admiral Byrd a "born commander" and saying that he shows all the traits of leadership," boldness at the right time, comradeship, and those heroic qualities that endear the captain to his men," President Hoover last night awarded the explorer the special gold medal of the National Geographic Society before an audience which jammed the Washington Auditorium to overflowing.

The full text of Mr. Hoover's speech follows:

"I am glad to welcome Admiral Byrd back to Washington. I speak not merely for myself, but for the Nation as a whole and for every individual citizen. His contribution to exploration and scientific research has done honor to his country, and his country takes a just pride in them and in him. More than that, his daring and courage have thrilled each one of us individually, because he has proved anew the worth and power and glory of qualities which we believe are latent in our people. For men of our race to master extraordinary difficulty, to carry through great adventure, thrills us with pride, with hope and with confidence. I sometimes think that this is the greatest value of modern explorers.

Inspiration Value Great.

"I do not minimize the scientific gains of such expeditions, but the human values are so immediate and so universal in their effect that it may well be that they transcend the scientific service. Every hidden spot of the earth's surface remains a challenge to man's will and ingenuity until it has been conquered. Every conquest of such a difficult goal adds permanently to mankind's sense of power and security. Great explorers, therefore, do not merely add to the sum of human knowledge, but also they add immensely to the sum of human inspiration.

"Knowledge, too, has been enriched by Admiral Byrd's expedition. New coasts of the Antarctic continent have been mapped and new regions have been explored. Geological data have been increased, which contribute to our knowledge of the history of the earth. New knowledge of magnetic currents and of weather changes has been gained. The store of the world's knowledge may not be priced in money, for money we make and spend, but knowledge remains always with the race.

"All these achievements are the capstone of a career whose progress Americans have watched with interest and pride. Admiral Byrd has been first to conquer the difficulties of reaching the poles by heavier-than-air flying. He has flown the Atlantic Ocean. Success has followed upon success in his life, and this is the greatest of all.

Painstaking Preparation.

"As with all consistently successful issues, his accomplishments have been built upon painstaking preparation, foreknowledge of the special problems to be solved, thoughtful plans to meet them and infinite patience in preparation and infinite patience in execution. He has demonstrated the traits of the born commander—boldness at the right time, comradeship, those heroic qualities that endear the captain to his men. And he is beloved by the American people.

"I congratulate you, Admiral Byrd, upon your success, upon your safe return to your country and home and friends, upon your services and the lift you have given to the spirit of your countrymen. I am happy to present to you this special gold medal of the National Geographic Society, awarded to you for "the first attainment of the geographical South Pole by air * * * and for distinguished contributions to world knowledge of Antarctica." And I take great pleasure in again introducing you formally to this audience, seen and unseen, to whom you need no introduction, and to whose hands I now commit the rendering of those further honors which you so highly deserve."

RETURNS HOME

CHARLES KESSLER.

FATHER STAYS HOME AS CITY HONORS SON

but they have become accustomed to his adventures now, Mr. Kessler said. Besides, the youth comes from a family of fighters. Two of his uncles, who were in the Army, lie in Arlington Cemetery.

Young Kessler's mother was busy all day yesterday, in fact for the last few weeks, getting Charles' room ready for his return, the father said. She's carefully preserved all the letters they've received from New Zealand, where Kessler was stationed at Mount Cook part of the time, training polar dogs.

The family listened eagerly in on the broadcast of the reception given Admiral Byrd and his associates, and the mother could hardly wait until 9 o'clock yesterday morning to see her son get off the special train. . . But Mr. Kessler had to work.

Kessler made three trips to Little America in the Eleanor Bolling to carry supplies and newly-trained dogs, and it was his boat that towed the flagship "City of New York" most of the way home.

Byrd Takes Time Out When Speech Is Lost

(Associated Press.)

Even the well-laid plans of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd sometimes end up wrong.

In his hurried departure from New York he stuffed into a briefcase the fourteen-page speech delivered last night when he received his special gold medal from President Hoover.

Six pages were lost and in the busy program of Washington's reception the noted explorer was forced to take time out to fill in the missing material.

Explorer Sees Untold Riches Awaiting Exploitation Under Icy Wastes.

SURFACE 'UNSCRATCHED'

Pictures of vast, unexplored polar territories, possibly rich in coal and minerals, were painted yesterday by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who arrived here from New York to receive the Capital's acclaim and the special gold medal of the National Geographic Society.

Hinting at plans for another expedition to South Pole, the admiral told newspapermen that during his ten months' stay in the land of perpetual ice and snow he "didn't even scratch the surface."

"There are immense lands there that no human eye has seen," he said. "At one time the land that we discovered was tropical territory, and no one can estimate what values lie hidden beneath the ice and snow that now cover it."

He explained that the territory which he discovered and claimed for the United States stretches over 50,000 square miles, east of King Edward Land, and east of the 150th meridian.

Weather Data of Importance.

In addition to the potential value of the discovered land, the admiral said that the expedition had developed much important weather data, essential to the accurate forecasting of storms and low pressure areas.

"The region around the South Pole," he explained, "might be called the originating point of storms and blizzards. Sooner or later permanent weather bureaus must be established in the Antarctic if we are to have reliable predictions."

"Then there is the possibility of establishing air bases in the Antarctic for air travelers over the pole. Flying over the pole is highly feasible in spite of temperatures often as low as 60 and 70 below zero."

Value of Radio Cited.

Radio experiments, he added, established the value of the short wave for long distance transmission. In discussing this phase of the expedition, he paid tribute to Malcolm Hansen, radio expert of the Navy, who "used to go out into the snow and ice 5 miles or more from camp, to make observations in a temperature of 60 below."

Magnetic observations, and studies of the effect that sun spots exerted on the weather supplied much valuable scientific data, he said.

Becoming engrossed in his subject, the flying admiral exhibited the exploratory urge that drove him around the world at the age of 12, across the Atlantic by air, and over both poles, a combination of accomplishments never before equaled by man.

Asked if he would return to the wastes of the Antarctic and Marie Byrd Land, the explorer said that he could make no plans until details of his last expedition were completed.

CAMERAMEN DETAIL WORK AMID SNOWS

Tragedy and Humor Perils of Antarctic Expedition Caught on Films.

GLAD TO RETURN HERE

Portrayers of history are the two cameramen who graphically recorded the adventures of Rear Admiral Bird in the Antarctic. Interviewed in the Carlton Hotel yesterday by a Post reporter, Joseph Rucker and Willard Vander Veer, told the story that is pictorially shown in their films of the Antarctice expedition.

These men brought back to civilization the scenes of life in Little America. They pictured the epochal flight of Byrd over the South Pole and brought to Americans at home the conception of the courage and high spirits displayed by the explorers.

From the 30 miles of film taken during the fifteen months in the Antarctic, the two men have culled eight reels which represent the memorable achievement. These sunbronzed men showed the hardships of the men who landed on the desolate tract of ice and the erecting of radio towers and the safeguarding of airplanes.

Picture Fearful Storms.

These men brought conceptions home of the awful cold and the wicked blizzards and men with ice on their mustaches and dogs coated in ice. After the days of continual light they recorded the dreary and dreaded long night. Widening crevasses were braved to bring to Admiral Byrd's countrymen the story of the expedition.

One of the mournful bits of tragedy they recorded is the death of "Spy," the dog leader, who, like a good soldier, wanted to carry on even in his ailing condition. He limps to the head of the team. The team goes on and on, through the great white wastes, but "Spy" would not give up. The men are loath to shoot "Spy." One man takes the dog from the team and gives it a merciful exit from the world.

From the time of their arrival in the Antarctic when they pictured an iceberg standing sentinel in a calm sea these men recorded the humor and pathos of the expedition. Admiral Byrd's epochal flight over the pole is given a saddening touch. He receives an American flag, weighted with a stone from Floyd Bennett's grave in Arlington Cemetery.

Would Have Been There.

It was this emblem, laden with the stone from the grave of his bosom friend, that Admiral Byrd dropped over the polar plateau. Had it not been that Floyd Bennett had gone to his grave in aiding his aerial brothers, he, too, would have been with Byrd at the South Pole.

Tucker and Vander Veer related the photography of the flight over the South Pole and the joy that was manifest at the base at Queen Maude range when word was received of the successful flight.

They recorded the physical changes that freed the commander in his anxiety over the trip. Then they show the ship that is to bring them back to civilization. They demonstrate the haste which was made to bring them back to their country.

The bark, City of New York, sheathed in ice, they picturized taking them back to where there are grass and trees.

Finally they show a silhouette at sundown of a happy man and a dog, aboard a ship starting for a long journey homeward.

But about these men, Joseph Zucker and Willard Vander Veer. They are veteran newsreel men for the Paramount Publix Corporation. Each agrees that the experience was wonderful.

Not Anxious to Return.

Would they go back again? They would rather wait six months before giving a definite answer. While radio and picture shows each Sunday night in the frozen Antarctic helped to take the rough edges off the trip, they would rather be back home for a little while.

Each of them is married and wants to remain with their families for a little while, they said. Vander Veer was with Admiral Byrd on the North Pole trip.

Baths are rare in the Antarctic, they said, once a week is plenty when the men are constantly in subzero weather. At night they slept under furs and elderdown 2 feet thick. Vander Veer recalled that he rigged a pulley line from his bunk to the stove.

If his socks were wet he would take them off under the covers, peg them to a line, and pull them to the stove and retrieve them in the morning.

Rucker recalled that eggs, supposedly fresh in New Zealand, could be bounced in the Antarctic. He said the only sicknesses reported were two toothaches. It was the first Antarctic expedition that returned without losing a man.

Captain Praises Ship.

Just then Capt. Fred C. Melville, who piloted the City of New York to the bleak Antarctic, came to the room. His weather-beaten face reveals the long line of explorers that are his ancestors. One relative was Admiral George Melville, who accompanied Greeley to the North Pole. Others were present on other expeditions.

Of the City of New York, he says, "there was never a finer craft. Her hull is 3 feet thick and never was her deck wet until we hit the Antarctic."

"Few people know it," he continued, "but Roald Amundsen sailed before the mast of the City of New York when he was a boy. It was he who recommended the ship to Admiral Byrd. The ship is 45 years old and never a better ship sailed seven seas."

SCHROEDER, CAUGHT, FIGHTS TORCH TRIAL

Confesses Burning Body of Man to Cover Up Fatal Auto Smash-Up.

DENIES HE SLEW HIKER

Mobile, Ala., June 20 (A.P.).—Harold H. Schroeder, 35 years old, radiator repairman arrested here today and charged with conspiracy to commit murder, told officers from his cell tonight that he would fight extradition to Indiana.

Schroeder confessed to the county solicitor soon after he was taken into custody that he burned his automobile in which the charred remains of an unidentified man were found near Indianapolis May 31. Authorities said he told them that his automobile was wrecked and his companion, about 25 years old, whom he knew only as a man from Massachusetts, had died of a broken neck. He declared he set fire to the car and left the man's body in it, fearing he would be accused of slaying him, if the body was found in the car.

Schroeder also is charged with being a fugitive from justice from Indiana. He has asked his brother, Ernest Schroeder, of Chicago, who is here, to aid him in employing counsel.

Mrs. Leah Schroeder, wife of the prisoner, who has been hunted by Indiana and Mobile officers for several weeks, called at the jail tonight. She said it was the first time she had seen him since May 20, when he left Mobile to go to the Indianapolis automobiles races.

Schroeder declined to pose for newspaper photographers after he was placed in jail. He swore in his confession that the unidentified dead man was a hiker he picked up somewhere near Terre Haute, Ind., that both went to sleep while the car was moving and it was wrecked in a ditch and he found the man dead.

Schroeder was arrested here by E. C. Dykes, a garage operator, who knew him and discovered the man hiding in a field. Schroeder said he had been hiding in Mobile for five days, traveling from Indianapolis by train and buses. He had 1 cent and a knife in his possession.

Sheriff George L. Winkler and Deputy Prosecutor George W. Eggleston, of Marion County, Ind., who left here this morning and were halted at Montgomery after the arrest of Schroeder, are en route here tonight.

Schroeder said he left Indianapolis in the direction of Terre Haute and, a short distance from the former town, picked up a young man on the highway. The confession said the young man went to sleep in the automobile and that Schroeder, who had been awake for two nights, dozed at the wheel. He awoke, he said, as the car was going into a ditch.

The Mobile man said he saw the youth leaning forward as though his neck had been broken. Schroeder said he turned and headed in the direction of Indianapolis.

Schroeder said he then got out of the car and set fire to it because, he said, he feared that if the man was found in his car with a broken neck he would be accused of killing him.

Schroeder said he left his car ablaze and began walking toward Indianapolis when he was picked up by a man and a woman in an automobile. Schroeder remained in Indianapolis through May 31, he said, and then returned here through Louisville, Nashville and Birmingham. Schroeder told the solicitor he had been here for one week when he was captured this afternoon.

Wilkes Barre, Pa., June 20 (A.P.).—Anthony Janulewicz, of 913 South Hanover street, Nanticoke, thought to have been the victim of an alleged insurance fraud near Indianapolis, Ind., was located alive and safe at his home near here today.

According to relatives, he returned some time ago from the Midwest. Indiana authorilties believed the charred body of a man found in a burning automobile near Indianapolis might be that of Janulewicz.

Shattered Chances to Enter White House, Asserts Dry League Chief.

VOTE NOT "SIGNIFICANT"

Minneapolis, June 20 (A.P.).—F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Antisaloon League, today said that Dwight W. Morrow had sacrificed his political future by gaining the Republican nomination for senator in New Jersey on a wet platform.

Dr. McBride said the Ambassador's stand on the prohibition question "takes away his last chance for the Presidency." He said it was "unfortunate" that Morrow took the wet side, as "he could have gone further by taking a dry stand."

"The nomination of another wet from New Jersey is about as exciting as the election of another dry in Maine," Dr. McBride said. "Nationally it is even less significant.

"With reference to prohibition, Mr. Morrow will be merely another wet from New Jersey, if he is elected. He is no more wet than Senator Edge, whose place he would take

"So far not one dry vote in the House has been lost and nominations for the Senate represent a net gain of one dry vote even though New Jersey again sends a wet to the Senate. In Maine, Minnesota, Florida and other States, an almost negligible showing was made by the wringing wet candidates. In earlier primaries at least the present dry strength in Congress was assured from Illinois, Indiana, South Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Iowa and North Carolina."

Enemies of Steel Merger Win Point

Bethlehem Books Ordered Opened for Inspection by June 25.

Youngstown, Ohio, June 20 (A.P.). The opposition to the billion dollar merger of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. won what was regarded as an important victory today when Common Pleas court ordered the Bethlehem books opened for inspection.

Judge David G. Jenkins ordered that the books be opened before June 25, the date for hearing of the petition to enjoin the merger, filed by Myron C. Wick, jr., of Youngstown, and International Shares Corporation, a concern affiliated with Cyrus S. Eaton interests.

The plaintiffs have contended they must have the contents of the Bethlehem books in order to support their charges that the merger terms are unfavorable to Sheet & Tube stockholders, and that the merger agreement was fraudulently imposed upon the stockholders.

Inquiries Started In Bridge Tragedy

Reason Sought for Fall of Span, Killing Three and Hurting Seven.

Frederick, Md., June 20 (A.P.).—Three killed and seven injured today remained the toll of the highway bridge collapse near here late yesterday as two investigations were called to determine why the 100-foot span in one of the State's main roads crumpled under the weight of a truck loaded with stone. Belief that the injured will recover was expressed at the hospital.

The bridg, built in 1889, served traffic on United States Route 240, one of three from Washington to the West, and 10 miles shorter than the alternate routes. President Hoover passed over it on his return from his Memorial Day address at Gettysburg, Pa.

Miss Olivia Shepard Married to John Burr

Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y., June 20 (A.P.).—Miss Olivia Margaret Shepard, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Finley Johnson Shepard, of Lyndhurst and New York, was married here today to John Read Burr, son of Mrs. Horace Campbell Burr, jr., of Oakland, Calif.

The bride's mother was before marriage Miss Helen Miller Gould. Mr Burr, who is a grandson of the late Horace Campbell Burr, of Wilmington, N. C., is a descendant of the Burr family of Fairfield, Conn. The couple will go to Europe on their wedding trip.

New York Warehouse Collapses; Injures Man

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—One man was seriously injured and several others escaped injury today when a six-story general merchandise warehouse collapsed on the downtown West Side.

The entire front of the building collapsed with a crash heard for blocks, and bricks, merchandise of all sorts and debris were thrown for several hundred feet along the narrow street.

Sea Scout to Tell Capital Youths of South Pole Trip

Paul Siple Will Address Children at Central High Today.

Sea Scout Paul Siple, who accompanied Rear Admiral Byrd to the South Pole, will tell the school children of Washington about his trip this morning at Central High School at 11 o'clock.

Jack Dunnington, a Washington scout, will have charge of the ushers. He was selected yesterday by Linn C. Drake, executive officer of the District of Columbia Council, Boy Scouts of America, who will introduce the young scout speaker.

Local scouting circles have an intensive program for the young scout, who was selected by Rear Admiral Byrd to accompany the Antarctic expedition. In a radio message to scout headquarters a few weeks ago the explorer paid a tribute to the young man, saying that he "took up his work as a man among men" and trained himself for various jobs with the party. Scout Siple trained and drove dog teams, became a zoologist, took depth soundings and did housework, the dispatch said.

When he visits his birthplace in Erie, Pa., June 28 the town plans a monster demonstration for the boy. The day has been declared a local holiday.

American Killed In Nicaragua Row

Lieutenant of National Guard Is Fatally Cut by Native.

Managua, Nicaragua, June 20 (A.P.). Headquarters of the Nicaraguan National Guard announced today that Lieut. Albert Andrew Budai was fatally stabbed by a Nicaraguan Wednesday night in Matagalpa.

Budai was a sergeant in the United States Marine Corps before he entered the Nicaraguan Guard. His residence was listed as Wauseon, Ohio, and his next kin as Mrs. Teresa Budai, of Wauseon. Guard headquarters also reported that at least eight insurgents were killed yesterday by marine airplanes which dropped 58 bombs on an insurgent nest. The bodies of the eight were seen from the air.

In another engagement two guard patrols, officered by Capt. Rusel and Lieut. Pilcher, surprised an insurgent stronghold on the hill north of Jinotega yesterday, routing between 100 and 150 from the place. Two guardsmen were wounded.

POKER GAME LEADS TO SLAYING OF THREE

Five Held in Investigation of Deaths and Hiding Bodies in Well.

MAN ACCUSES RELATIVE

Cedartown, Ga., June 20 (A.P.).—Solicitor General Ragsdale, of Polk County, announced here today that Tom Hicks had accused his brother-in-law, Fred Hulsey, of killing Cliff Jones, Lige Harper and Ernest McCullough Wednesday and throwing their bodies into a well near Rock Mart.

Ragsdale said the statement was not made under oath, but that Hicks had promised to "tell all" and would be placed on the witness stand at an inquest this afternoon.

The solicitor general quoted Hicks as saying Hulsey approached him Thursday and said:

"You should not be hiding, Tom. I have killed three of them and done away with their bodies."

Killed in Poker Game.

Hicks denied he had any connection with the slayings.

Authorities said they were convinced the three men were killed in a poker game near Bill Hulsey's home last Wednesday night and their bodies taken in a wagon to the abandoned well near Rock Mart and dumped down the shaft.

Bill Hulsey, father of Fred, is held in jail at Rockmart. His other son, Ray, also is in jail.

Authorities announced that a blood-stained pack of cards wrapped in a bloody newspaper had been found in a hollow stump near the clearing where the victims played poker with the Hulseys Wednesday night. The Hulseys admitted playing poker with the three men, but said they went home when the game broke up.

A railroad guard reported today that he saw a wagon drawn by a gray mule approach the abandoned well about 1 a. m. Thursday.

A bloody quarter—the last pot—was found with the playing cards.

Four Held as Suspects.

Rockmart, Ga., June 20 (A.P.).—Four men were held as suspects and another as material witness as authorities continued their investigation here today of the slaying of three men and the hiding of their bodies in an abandoned well.

Officers have disclosed, among other clews, that a poker game in a mountain forest preceded the killings.

Bill Hulsey and his two sons, Fred and Ray, and Tom Hicks, were held as principals on suspicion. A man named McCullough, who is no relation to one of the victims by the same name, was held as a material witness.

Authorities said they had learned that McCullough drove the three Hulseys, Hicks and the three victims—Cliff Jones, Lige Harper and Ernest McCullough—in a wagon to a clearing in the woods near Hulsey's home and there they played poker.

They said they found blood spots in the clearing where the men had the poker game Wednesday. The condition of the bodies indicated the men were slain Wednesday, the coroner said.

Police Scan Private Life Of Slain Tribune Reporter

Chicago Investigators Seek to Learn How Jake Lingle Lived Life of Ease on Low Newspaper Salary, and Link With City Heads.

Chicago, June 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—It is a deep secret if Chicago's reconditioned police department is any nearer a solution of the daylight murder ten days ago of Alfred J. Lingle, Tribune reporter extraordinary, who was looked on in a favored circle as the unofficial chief of police of Chicago.

It is not Lingle's career as a reporter on which the searchlight of investigation has been focussed, for his newspaper achievements could hardly be called a career. He was only a leg man (a reporter who does not write) on a salary of $65 a week in an institution that boasts the highest paid men in the world.

It was his life of ease, enjoyment and plenty, and the power he wielded in police affairs, that has aroused the curiosity not only of the new police commissioner, but of the Tribune itself, and turned the inquiry for the moment on the man and the mysterious sources of the large sums of money that passed with regularity through his bank account.

If Lingle had any legitimate income beyond his $65 a week as a reporter it has not been discovered. There is no record of an inheritance to explain his affluence. But it is known that he received from unknown sources payments by the week that would aggregate possibly $40,000 a year. Most of this he seems to have disbursed as mysteriously as he received it, but no record of the beneficiaries has been found; or, if it has, it is being suppressed.

This $65-a-week reporter lived at one of the best hotels in Chicago. Although employed by a morning paper, which usually requires the service of a routine man in the afternoon, Lingle spent nearly all of his afternoons at race tracks and some of his winters at Miami or on the Gulf Coast.

A day with Jake Lingle is hardly the day of the average police reporter in any city.

To begin with, police reporters, especially veterans like Lingle—he was 38 years old and had been with the Tribune 18 years—live modestly. Not so Lingle. His life was that of the gentleman of leisure. At 10:30 or 11 o'clock he rose and breakfasted, after which he would take the air along Michigan boulevard or chat with friends in the hotel lounge. The early afternoon would find him, during the season, off for the races in his chauffeur-driven automobile, to make his play from the clubhouse.

But duty called after the races, and he would be driven to the Tribune Tower. Sauntering into the city room he would take his envelope of assignments, if any, or inquire what was doing. If there was nothing special for his attention, he would be off.

Then to dinner at his hotel, usually with a certain police captain; a stroll about town; to the theater or speakeasy, and then to bed.

There he was not disturbed unless for weighty matters. The hotel management saw to that, for Lingle was on the "private register." His room was No. 2706 and you could not call it unless your name had been designated by Lingle as a favored one. He had lived there alone for six months prior to the day he was murdered.

"Sure, he was on the private register," the house officer said. "How could he get any sleep if he wasn't? His telephone would be going all night. He would get in around 2 or 3 and wanted rest."

"Who would be telephoning him at that hour?" the writer inquired. This question seemed to amaze the house officer.

"Why!" he exclaimed, "policemen calling up to have Jake get them transferred or promoted, or politicians wanting the 'fix' put on for somebody. Jake could do it. He had a lot of power. I've known him twenty years. He was up there among the big boys and had a lot of responsibilities. A big man like that needs rest."

HEAVY BONDS HOLD ALLEGED KIDNAPERS

$600,000 Total Is Fixed for Trio on Arraignment in Detroit Court.

THREE OTHERS CHARGED

Detroit, Mich., June 20 (A.P.).—Three alleged members of the "Lega" Laman gang of kidnapers were ordered held under heavy bond at arraignment today before Recorder's Judge John A. Boyne.

The three, Harry Hallisey, Ben Rubenstein, and Stanley De Long, are charged with conspiring to kidnap Reuben J. Cohen, August 2, 1928. Cohen is but one of the dozen or more men who, police believe, were victims of the gang. The defendants pleaded not guilty and were held under bonds totaling $600,000 pending examination June 30.

Charged with Hallisey, Rubenstein and De Long are Jerry Mullane, Roy Cornelius and Joe O'Reardon. Cornelius and Mullane are serving terms in Federal prisons and will be available for prosecution. An attorney promised to surrender O'Reardon to the prosecutor's office tomorrow.

Laman and Henry A. Andrews, who are serving long terms for kidnaping, will be State witnesses. Their revelations brought about arrest of the three men and inclusion of the three others in a kidnaping warrant.

Mrs. Florence De Long, wife of one of the defendants, returned to the cell from which she had been released today. The police do not connect the woman with the case, but she begged to be locked up, claiming she feared for her life. She was placed in the women's detention home.

LUXURIES INDICATE NATION PROSPERS

So Adolph Zukor, at White House, Tells President; Winter Slump Brief.

BUSINESS AGAIN GOOD

Business prosperity, gauged by the infallible thermometer of luxuries, is here to stay. This, in substance, was the opinion of Adolph Zukor, moving picture magnate, given yesterday to President Hoover at the White House.

Mr. Zukor, who two score years ago came to this country in the steerage, told the President he was not alarmed at business conditions. While the head of the Paramount Publix Corporation noted a depression in the moving picture interest in the early part of this year, he refuses to become pessimistic.

He points to the abnormally good business enjoyed by movies through the innovation of the talkies and says that the moving picture industry should be satisfied to take a decline in the business because of the oddity of the talkies.

Moving pictures, he says, did not show any decline in business until January of this year. In February and March, he averred, their was a general pick-up in business. Contrasted with the number of contracts and the advance bookings of pictures for this year, he said, the conditions are about as normal as last year.

In recent weeks, he said, there has been a seasonal slump in attendance at the moving picture shows. Nevertheless, he went on, every one in the moving picture business is going ahead with their productions. There has been no let-up in contracts.

Mr. Zukor is in Washington with his two camermen, Joseph Rucker and Willard Vander Veer, who recorded pictorially Admiral Byrd's expedition to the South Pole.

Accompanying Mr. Zukor to the White House were Jesse L. Lasky, vice president of the Paramount Publix Corporation; S R Kent, second vice president and general manager, and Emanuel Cohen, who edited the film of Admiral Byrd's Antarctic expedition.

Policeman Dies, Robber Wounded in $7 Holdup

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Patrolman Patrick Mitchell was shot and killed today in a gun duel with a robber who held up a malt and hops store. The robber, who was wounded, identified himself as George Harris, 30, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Mitchell saw the man as he ran from the store after the robbery and opened fire as he jumped on the running board of a taxicab. The holdup man returned the shots, and one took fatal effect, the patrolman dying soon after he was taken to a hospital. The loot from the malt and hops store was just $7.

solve the Lingle slaying as part of their duty."

Swanson told a Senate committee martial law might become necessary if emergency legislation were not enacted at the Springfield assembly session to relieve county finances.

"Law enforcement depends on county finances," he said. "Unless these bills (Strawn relief measures) are passed, we are threatened with a complete breakdown of law enforcement machinery.

"The results of the breakdown would be: Sporadic attempts of vigilantes to preserve order, and, finally, the State will have to take charge by declaring martial law; if the firemen can not be paid and the fire department goes unmanned, there are enough maniacs about to start fires that will destroy the city, and if a large city is suddenly deprived of its police and fire departments and its prosecution agencies, there will be complete chaos."

The First State Bank of Fox River Grove was held up today for the second time in three months and robbed of $2,000 by two men. An employe and two customers were locked in the vault by the robbers.

Lost Flier Found in South America.

Buenos Aires, June 20 (A.P.).—Henri Guillaumet, the French aeropostal flier who was lost a week ago in flying from Santiago toward Mendoza, was found today near the Diamente River in Mendoza Province. He was slightly injured when rescued.

TWO HELD IN SEARCH FOR MAD MURDERER

Identification of Both Fails, However, After Arrests in Two Cities.

ONE IS ESCAPED MANIAC

New York, June 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The search for the mad murderer of Queens reached to Newark and Philadelphia today. A suspect was arrested in each city and brought to New York.

Each was eliminated as the maniac who murdered Joseph Mozynski and Noel Sowley on different dates and in different secluded spots of Long Island recently.

Miss Betty Ring and Miss Catherine May, the former a companion of Sowley when he was murdered, and the latter, a companion of Mozynski when he was shot to death, failed to identify the man who was arrested in Philadelphia. Police investigation virtually eliminated the man arrested in Newark.

Nor is either suspect believed to be the author of a series of terrifying notes boasting of the two murders and threatening other persons identified by an insane code, apparently the product of an unbalanced mind.

One Is Escaped Inmate.

Joseph Oswald Clark, 40 years old, who escaped from the State Hospital for the Insane at Creedmore, not far from the scene of Sowley's murder on June 3, 1929, was arrested by detectives from New York City and Philadelphia in a furnished rooming house at 544 North Tenth street, Philadelphia, this morning. Clark's mania for writing letters to residents of Queens is believed to have caused his arrest as a suspect in the Mozynski-Sowley murders, both of which were committed while the victims were seated with the young women in automobiles.

The man arrested in Newark gave his name as John D. Galvoa. He was arrested in Lincoln Park by Patrolman Mack Early, who believed he answered the description of Joseph Ustica, a murderer who escaped from the State Hospital for the Insane at Kings Point, Long Island, on May 3. Galcoa, who gave no address, was virtually eliminated when New York detectives more familiar with Ustica's appearence interviewed him in Newark.

The fact that Clark, the suspect arrested in Philadelphia, had certain characteristics similar to those displayed by the madman who has roved the wooded districts of Queens, pistol in hand, caused him to be questioned closely after his arrest in the furnished rooming house of Mrs. Mary Hansen. He was traced to that address through a money order sent him by his mother, Mrs. Louise Clark, of No. 4010 Third avenue, Brooklyn.

Surrenders Without Struggle.

Exercising great care because the murderer of Mozynski and Sowley is known to have been armed, Detectives Coyle, Kessler and Fisher, of Philadelphia, and Detectives Devlin and Whalen, of the New York police headquarters detachment, pounced on Clark just as he was packing two suitcases preparatory to leaving the house. Clark surrendered without a struggle.

The detectives found a typewriter and a mimeographing machine in his room. They said he used these machines to write letters which he mailed to various persons in New York and Philadelphia.

The receipt of these letters had led to a search for Clark on previous occasions. The letters are said to have been of a harmless nature and without the blood-curdling threats that characterized the letters believed to have been mailed to a New York newspaper office by the slayer of Mozynski and Sowley.

Detectives noted at once that Clark does not answer the description of the murderer furnished the police by Miss Ring and Miss May. He is inclined to be stocky, while the creeping killer of Queens was described by the young women as a lean man.

Waived Extradition.

Clark was arraigned before Magistrate D. R. Oswald in Central Police Court, Philadelphia, and agreed to waive extradition to New York. After a short interview by District Attorney Monaghan, of Philadelphia, Clark was brought to New York by the detectives and taken to police headquarters. From there he was taken to the Jamaica precinct, where it was expected that Miss Ring and Miss May would look him over. Assistant Chief Inspector Sullivan, in charge of the detective division, was virtually certain tonight that Clark is not the Queens murderer. No chance will be taken, however, and Clark will not be freed until he is absolutely eliminated. It is possible that he may then be returned to the Creedmore Hospital.

Philadelphia police announced today that a letter similar to those received by the New York newspaper had been delivered to the home of John Moszozynski, a brother of one of the murdered men, at his home, No. 3325 Almond street, Philadelphia. The man slain in New York spelled his name differently from his brother

Former Dry Aid Freed Of Dishonesty Charge

New York June 20 (A.P.).—Edwin J. Cooley, former head of the city probation bureau, was acquitted by a jury today of falsification of pay-roll records of his department.

Cooley was accused of carrying his sister, Mrs. Marguerite F. Lawler, of Buffalo, on the probation bureau pay roll at the same time she was drawing pay from the Buffalo School Board as a teacher on sick leave. The jury returned a resolution requesting the judge of general sessions to reinstate Cooley as head of the bureau. He was suspended at his own request when the charges were filed against him.

Wife Hides Gems in Suit Husband Gives All Away

Joliet, Ill., June 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.). The blue serge suit was old and worn out, but Mayor George F. Sehring of Joliet loved it as a friend. Mrs. Sehring hated it.

"Could you help out a poor man?" came a voice at the kitchen door. There stood an old man with a ragged suit.

Mayor Sehring gave the suit to the old man.

"Well," he remarked, when his wife returned home, "I got rid of that old blue serge suit."

"What?" yelled Mrs. Sehring. "My two diamond rings, the $1,500 one and the $600 one, were in a trousers pocket." And so the hunt is on.

JOHNSON SAYS PACT BITTER DOSE TO U.S.

Californian's Rebuttal to Reed Attacks Treaty in Hearty Fashion.

GROUP VOTE ON MONDAY

(Associated Press.)

The London treaty was compared last night by Senator Johnson, Republican, California, to "a dose of bitter medicine which it is insisted our people must swallow at once with their eyes shut."

The Californian spoke in a formal statement, replying to Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, one of the American delegates to London, who Thursday night spoke in reply to a recent attack on the treaty by Senator Johnson.

These two members of the Senate foreign relations committee are keeping the treaty a lively subject, pending the meeting on Monday by the committee when a vote will be taken on reporting it. Overwhelming support for the treaty in the committee seems evident, and it will be before the Senate next week for consideration in the special session.

Present Modernization Data.

The Navy's request for legislation authorizing the completion of the modernization program for the battleships of the fleet was presented to the House naval affairs committee yesterday by Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations.

The admiral urged as "highly desirable" the modernization of the ships of the line, Idaho, New Mexico, and Mississippi. Responding to a question by Chairman Britten, he declared it would be "suicide" for these three vessels to engage an enemy of superior gun range and speed in their present condition.

The modernization proposed in identical bills introduced by Representatives Darrow, Pennsylvania, ranking Republican member of the committee, and Lankford, Virginia, a Democratic member, would increase the speed, gun range and armor of the vessels. The bills would authorize $30,000,000 for the purpose.

Doesn't Conflict With Pact.

Admiral Hughes said that the Navy inteds to modernize only two of the three at present and completion of the program conflicts in no way with the London Naval Treaty. He said the vessels which have already been modernized "can outshoot anything in the British navy except the Rodney and the Nelson."

Following the committee meeting, Chairman Britten said the battleships New York and Texas are in virtually the same condition as the three which it is proposed to modernize. It is expected that Secretary Adams will appear Monday.

Former Sheriff Given Two Years for Stills

Jacksonville, Fla., June 20 (A.P.).—W. H. Dowling, former sheriff of Duval County, convicted recently of violating the prohibition laws, was sentenced in Federal court here today to serve two years in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta and to pay a fine of $20.

Dowling was arrested after liquor distilleries were found on his farm in Nassau County, near here. He contended that he visited his property infrequently and did not know the distilleries were there.

Villazon Recaptured By Bolivian Regulars

La Paz, June 20 (A.P.).—Loyal Bolivian troops today recaptured the frontier town of Villazon, which for several days has been in the hands of Roberto Hinojosa, radical leader. A Communist named Loza, one of Hinojosa's lieutenants, was captured. Several loyalists whom the rebels had imprisoned were freed.

The insurgent leader and the main body of his followers escaped, taking along 100,000 Bolivianos (about $36,500) seized at the customs house.

CONGRESS APPROVES DRAFT STUDY PLAN

BILL GOES TO HOOVER

(Associated Press.)

Congress gave final approval yesterday to legislation to authorize a commission to study the problem of drafting the Nation's resources in time of war.

The measure was sent to the President after the House agreed to Senate amendments eliminating proposals for studies of policies to be followed in event of war and into the use of private property without profit to its owners.

Its purpose is to have the commission ascertain the best method by which Congress may propose an amendment to the Constitution to draft the Nation's resources in wartime in order to promote peace and to equalize the burdens and minimize the profits of war.

Specific provision was made to prohibit a study of conscription of labor.

The resolution has been before Congress in various forms since the World War and has been sponsored by the American Legion and other patriotic organizations.

Originally, it provided for a study of the conscription of labor, but the American Federation of Labor contended the scope of inquiry should not include labor.

At the same time industrial organizations maintained that private property should not be drafted without profit to the owners.

The commission is to consist of four senators and four representatives, the Secretaries of War, Navy, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor and the Attorney General. It will report to the President and Congress by December, 1931.

Patients Unhurt In Hospital Fire

Atlanta Institution Blast Caused by Ignition of "Safety" Film.

Atlanta, Ga., June 20 (A.P.).—Approximately 275 Negro patients at Grady Hospital, municipal institution, were taken from the wards today when an explosion and fire in the X-ray room endangered the building.

The explosion was caused by ignition of a quantity of "safety" film, and although dense yellow smoke poured from the windows of the building, none of the patients suffered injury.

Two policemen patroling the grounds at the time of the blast were knocked down but were uninjured and aided firemen in running a hose into the X-ray room.

Negro patients, including surgical cases, were carried on stretchers to a vacant lot nearby, until they could be returned to wings of the building uninjured by the fire.

No estimate of the damage was immediately available.

Henry Again Chosen President of A. A. A.

Asheville, N. C., June 20 (A.P.).—Thomas P. Henry, Detroit, was elected to his eighth consecutive term as president of the American Automobile Association today.

West Baden, Ind., was chosen for the 1931 convention at the final general business session of the association's twenty-eighth annual convention.

Pair Discovered Dead; Poison Apparent Cause

Jacksonville, Fla., June 20 (A.P.).—The unclothed bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lessman, a middle-aged couple, were found in their home near here today. Authorities expressed belief the couple had been dead two or three days, apparently from poisoning.

Fred King, county detective, began an investigation.

CHURCH TO CANONIZE AMERICAN MARTYRS

Nine Jesuits, Eight of Whom Shed Blood in U. S. and Canada, to Be Honored.

FAMOUS CARDINAL NINTH

For years on years American Catholics have hoped and prayed that the head of their church would select some of their famous martyred dead for canonization, but until this year that honor has been denied them. At last their faith has been rewarded, for on June 29, the feast of SS. Peter and Paul, Pope Pius XI will canonize eight Jesuits who were killed by the Indians in the early days of our country's history.

Their names are worth remembering: Jean de Brebeuf, Isaac Jogues, Gabriel Lalemant, Antoine Daniel, Charles Garnier, Noel Chabanel, Rene Goupil and Jean de la Lande.

As will be seen from their names, these priests and lay brothers were Frenchmen. They were sent to Canada and New York in the early years of the seventeenth century to teach and preach the Gospel to the Indians. It was by the tomahawk that they fell in the line of duty; and if any men in the church were worthy of canonization, it would seem that these were.

Brebeuf Best Equipped.

Jean de Brebeuf was a giant, a man of distinguished ancestry, and he alone was physically fit to endure the hardships of the wilderness in conducting his self-sacrificing missionary work. His fellow missionaries were young and tender youths, but what their strong brother dared, they dared, and all went through such torture as even today one does not like to read about.

At the same time that the church is canonizing these American martyrs, he will also raise to sainthood the celebrated cardinal, blessed Bellarmine, a Jesuit theologian, who has long been enshrined in the hearts of his fellow Jesuits. He was the father confessor of St. Aloysius, and in St. Aloysius Church here may be seen as an altarpiece above the high altar, a picture of the youthful saint receiving communion from the cardinal's hands. Thomas Jefferson is said to have drawn the fundamentals of the Declaration of Independence from Bellarmine's writings.

Sixty thousand or more Catholics will crowd into the great Basilica of St. Peter's in Rome for this service. Many of them will be Americans now journeying through Europe. The Jesuit community in this country will have two representatives there.

The event will be celebrated in every Jesuit church in America, and throughout the world, for that matter. In Washington a novena of masses beginning this morning and continuing for nine days, will be celebrated at St. Aloysius Church, on I street near North Capitol. The novena mass will be celebrated daily at 7 o'clock, that on Sunday by special privilege of the archbishop.

Archbishop Sends Petition.

One of the beautiful customs of this celebration will be the presentation of petitions which will be laid on the altar of St. Aloysius Church. The pastor, the Rev. M. F. Fitzpatrick, S. J., has announced that all petitions sent to him will be laid on the altar of his church. Archbishop Curley has been so interested in this novena that his own petition was sent over and is now on the altar.

It is not without interest to learn that these famous Jesuits were beatified in 1925 by the reigning Pope. Now it is the intention of the Society of Jesus to raise a fund throughout the country which will be used in the erection of a great memorial shrine to these martyrs. This may be erected at Martyr's Hill, Auriesvill, N. Y., where Isaac Jogues was mercilessly slain.

DAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 4:20 p. m. to noon Monday.

Without a record vote, passed the omnibus rivers and harbors bill. The measure now goes to the House for approval of various Senate amendments.

Agreed to vote Monday on the veterans' relief bill.

Confirmed the nominations of Hanford MacNider, of Iowa, to be Minister to Canada; Ralph J. Totten, of Tennessee, to be Minister to the Union of South Africa; Charles H. Danforth, to be assistant chief of the Army Air Corps with the rank of brigadier general; George B. Pillsbury, to be assistant chief of the Army Engineers with the rank of brigadier general, and Louis H. Breuer, to be Federal attorney for the Eastern District of Missouri.

Received the nominations of John P. Nields, to be Federal district judge for Delaware, and Frederick G. Davies, to be collector of customs at Charleston, S. C.

An adverse majority report and a favorable minority report on the Shipstead bill to limit the use of injunctions in labor disputes were submitted by the judiciary committee.

Senator Johnson (Republican), California, placed in the Congressional Record the text of the radio address in which Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvaniaa, urged ratification of the London naval treaty.

HOUSE.

Met at 11 a. m. and adjourned at 7:04 p. m. to noon today.

Passed the second deficiency bill, after ruling out on a point of order the appropriation of $250,000 for the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission for the fiscal year 1931.

Speaker Longworth announced, after a conference with Senate Republican leaders, that congressional adjournment before July 1 appeared unlikely.

Agreed to Senate amendments to the resolution authorizing a commission to study a plan for universal draft of the Nation's resources in war time. This completed congressional action, and the measure now goes to the President.

Rules committee approved the Snell resolution to authorize a special committee of five to investigate the campaign expenditures of candidates for the House in both parties during the 1930 elections.

Representative Korell (Republican), Oregon, introduced a bill proposing the remodeling of the old Postoffice Building in Portland, Oreg., at a cost of $150,000, and its use to house a branch office of the Federal Reserve Bank, a Federal assay office and substation of the United States Mint.

Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, testified before the naval committee that it would be suicide for the battleships Idaho, New Mexico and Mississippi to engage an enemy of superior gun range and speed in their present condition.

Elections committee postponed, until next December, further action on the contest between Ralph E. Updike (Republican) and Louis L. Ludlow (Democrat) for the seat from the Seventh Congressional District of Indiana.

Greeted Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his South Pole expeditionary force.

Sentence Sermons

By HARVEY BAKER SMITH
(Pastor of Columbia Heights Christian Church).

GOD'S WORKMAN.

The Kingdom of God is an achievement, not an inheritance.

It is something done through us, a fellowship work with Christ and His followers.

To share the task of any master workman has been an age-long privilege.

"Workers together with God" is the way the Holy Spirit states our relationship as Kingdom Builders.

The undefeated are those who know the joy of the fellowship.

They live above the malaria line of self-interest. Riches, poverty, humility or acclaim are incidental to them.

They delight to lose themselves in the work of God's Kingdom.

The little saint and the big devil hazard the enterprise today.

To be big enough to be lost in the task of God is the challenge to all preachers, religious teachers and others who are His workmen.

CHURCHES PREPARE FOR BIBLE SCHOOLS

Vacation Institutes to Be Opened Next Week by Numerous Sects.

PLAY TO BE ONE FEATURE

Now that the secular schools have closed their sessions for the summer, the vacation Bible schools enter and command attention. They will convene next week in a number of city and suburban churches, and are being promoted, as formerly, by churches and individuals. The Washington Federation of Churches, through its vacation school department, renders effective aid in promoting these schools.

One of the oldest of these schools is that conducted by the Central Presbyterian Church, of which Dr. James H. Taylor, the pastor, is the head. This is its ninth year, and each year it has shown growth and continuing interest. The courses of instruction consist of Bible history, missions, Bible stories, memory work, hymns of the church and various forms of handwork.

Dr. Taylor will be assisted by a corps of 20 teachers, all members of his congregation. The committee cooperating with him is made up of Miss Coit, chairman; Mrs. T. G. Carr, Mrs. R. W. Prince, Mrs. P. H. Tamplet and Mrs. W. W. Warwick.

The large playground belonging to the church will be operated in connection with the school, and will be in charge of a superintendent, who will supervise the play.

The following other churches are among those planning to conduct schools, beginning next week, or later: Calvary Baptist, Miss Mae Clark, principal; National Baptist Memorial, Miss Edna Grover, principal; Chevy Chase Community, Mrs. F. T. Israel, principal; Brightwood Park Methodist Episcopal, Miss Ethel Young, principal; Union Methodist Episcopal, Miss Mae Smith, principal; Takoma Park Presbyterian, Carlisle S. Adams, principal; Fourth Presbyterian, Miss Maude Burklin, principal; Northminster Chapel Presbyterian; Pilgrims' Presbyterian, Miss A. J. Boykin, principal; Bethesda Community, Mrs. Frank T. Israel, principal; Riverdale Presbyterian, the Rev. W. Keith Custis; Vanderworken Congregational, Miss Erma Wood, principal; Second Baptist, the Rev. J. L. S. Holloman, principal.

Among the colored churches are Fifteenth Street Presbyterian; Metropolitan A. M. E., Miss H. V. Thornton, principal; Tabor Presbyterian, the Rev. R. A. Fairley, principal; Zion Baptist, Mrs. Louise H. Tack, principal.

Dr. Briggs Announces Sunday Night Sermons

"The Devil Takes No Vacation. Why Should the Church?" This is the question the Rev. Dr. John C. Briggs, pastor of the Fifth Baptist Church, asks the Church Editor of The Post in a letter. As if answering his own question, Dr. Briggs states that he will not close his church on Sunday nights during the summer, and this coming Sunday night will inaugurate a new series of sermons on "Wise and Foolish People." The series will be:

"The Wise and Foolish Builders," June 22.

"The Wise and Foolish Virgins," June 29.

"The Wise and Foolish Kings," July 6.

"The Wise and Foolish Farmers," July 13.

"The Wise and Foolish in Their Relationship to God," July 20.

Medical Missionary To Speak Wednesday

A medical missionary, Dr. Robert H. H. Godeen, who is in charge of the Medical Mission School maintained by the Presbyterian Church at Madras, India, will speak Wednesday evening to the public at the auditorium of the United States Chamber of Commerce, 1615 H street northwest. His subject will be: "Tuberculosis, One of India's Greatest Problems."

Dr. Godeen has seen a number of years' service in South India, and is in this country on a furlough to speak of the needs of his work.

Pastor Marks Sixth Year.

Kendall Baptist Church is to hold a celebration Sunday when it will commemorate the sixth anniversary of the pastorate of the Rev. C. P. Ryland. This congregation was organized in 1888, and Mr. Ryland is its second minister, the first, having served it 33 years.

Church Picnics

The Ninth Street Christian Church will give its annual picnic Tuesday at Chesapeake Beach. The Timothy Bible class for men is sponsoring it. The train will leave the District line at 10:30 a. m.

Five Presbyterian churches of Washington will hold a union picnic at Marshall Hall, Saturday. There will be games and ice cream 'n everything.

The Bible School of the Fifth Baptist Church will hold its annual picnic at Marshall Hall, Wednesday. Boats will leave the Seventh street wharves at 10 a. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. The public is invited.

The Brightwood Park Methodist Church gives its annual picnic Wednesday afternoon at Kennedy and Sixteenth streets.

The Church of the Nativity and Resurrection will give its annual outing at Marshall Hall, Thursday. The Acolytes Guild will have charge of the athletic events, and Mrs. M. L. Pote's committee the refreshments. The vicar, the Rev. Enoch M. Thompson, has invited Christ Church, St. Agnes, St. James and Grace churches to join his young people in this event.

PREACHERS COLLEGE FACULTY ANNOUNCED

Four Episcopal Clergymen Invited by Bishop to Give Courses.

LOWRIE OPENS SESSION

The College of Preachers of Washington Cathedral will be open to receive a few students during the summer according to an announcement made yesterday by the Right Rev. Philip M. Rhinelander, D. D., LL. D., warden.

Upon the invitation of the Bishop of Washington four Episcopal clergymen of special ability will come to the College of Preachers during July, August and September, preach at Washington Cathedral on Sundays, and help direct in their studies such of the clergy as may care to attend the college for longer or shorter periods.

The Rev. Dr. Walter Lowrie, of the American Church in Rome, will be in residence from July 1 to July 31. Dr. Lowrie is an authority on early church history and the New Testament. From August 1 to 16, the Rev. Dr. Charles Clingman, rector of the Church of the Advent, Birmingham, Ala., will be in residence. Dr. Clingman is an eloquent preacher and is one of the 70 associate missioners appointed by the last general convention. He is well qualified to help in the technique of preaching and in methods of evangelistic work.

The Very Rev. William H. Nes, dean of Christ Church Cathedral, New Orleans, will be in residence from August 17 to 31. His special interests are in "The Mystical Element in Religion" and in "Anglicanism and World Problems."

The Rev. John A. Richardson, assistant professor of church history at the General Theological Seminary, New York City, will be at the College of Preachers from September 1 to 27. Professor Richardson is well versed in questions of "church unity," "church institutions," "episcopacy" and "the relationship of church and state."

According to the announcement, the Right Rev. Philip M. Rhinelander, warden of the College of Preachers, will be glad to hear from any of the clergy who may wish to take advantage of this opportunity for study.

St. Paul's Church In $100,000 Drive

English Lutheran Campaign for Building Funds to Close Tomorrow.

There is every prospect that the campaign under way to raise $100,000 to finance the erection of a new church for St. Paul's English Lutheran congregation, will be a success when it comes to a close tomorrow. It is believed by those in charge that the full amount will be raised.

At the morning service at the Metropolitan Theater, at which the Rev. Henry W. Snyder will preside, subscriptions will be taken, and in the afternoon canvassers will visit at their homes members who have not subscribed.

Dr. A. C. Hageman, of Philadelphia, will be the morning preacher, and the evening service at Epiphany Chapel will be in the nature of a victory service, at which Dr. John E. Hummon, of Chicago, will preach.

The new church will be in the English Gothic style of the fourteenth century. When completed it will be one of the most beautiful groups of ecclesiastical buildings in the city.

CHURCH FEDERATION AID GIVEN PATIENTS

Mrs. Elizabeth W. Murray, Who Visits 4 Hospitals, Softens Suffering.

TYPICAL CASE RELATED

By HANNAH HELLER.

A siren sounds its long moaning screech. An ambulance dashes madly through the streets, going against traffic signals and hastening to Emergency Hospital. White-robed attendants sit by the side of a young girl, holding her hands and gently rubbing her pallid brow to keep the spark of life alive. The child, for she was barely more than a child, groans ever so lightly and knits the lines of her face into a hard and resentful look. Her lips are drawn tight about her mouth.

With a clang of the bell the motor turns into the hospital grounds and shifts its precious burden to the stretcher bearers. A hurried examination and the surgeon orders a make-ready for an operation. It is a strange and severe case. The chances are all against the child.

Into the bustle of the moment a young woman, who is often found at four of the large hospitals here, steps. While the nurses with deft fingers prepare the child for the operation, she comes to her side.

"Who are you, my child?"

No answer.

"Have you no family or friends? They should be notified of your condition."

Questions Not Answered.

The tight, closed mouth hardens.

"But, my child, you are very sick, and if you have a dear mother somewhere, she ought to know you are here."

A long, quiet, cold stare was the response.

The young woman picked up the card the nurse had filled out and read it. "Mary Elizabeth Hammond. Aged 20." That was all it contained. Who Mary Elizabeth Hammond was, where she came from, how she was hurt and a hundred other questions that were running through the young woman's mind found no answer on that card. Her life was a mystery. She was employed in a store that paid very low wages. From her employer the place of her residence was discovered. And that was the extent of her history that was known to the hospital authorities and to Mrs. Elizabeth W. Murray, the hospital worker of the Washington Federation of Churches, who had been so anxiously questioning her.

Mary Elizabeth rallied slowly from the ether and Mrs. Murray sat by her bed and held her hand, ready to cheer her when she finally came to. If she had known the girl's family, or even her church affiliation, she could have touched sources that would have provided her with special nurses until she passed the crisis of her operation. Failing this, Mrs. Murray, as is her wont, became her nurse, and night and day she remained in that room, bathing the feverish brow of the patient and watching that mysterious thing we call life flicker and flare up and then die down as if it would ultimately be extinguished. She scarcely slept for three successive days and nights, ever hovering over that frail form and hoping that her tenderness would cause the child to reveal her identity.

Patient's Confidence Won.

This period of watching went on at intervals for several weeks, as slowly the invalid fought her way back to health. Mrs. Murray talked to her patient when she wanted to talk, she read the Bible to her when she asked for its reading, and she prayed with her when that seemed to be her desire.

These tender ministrations won Mary Elizabeth's heart and she told her story to her kind friend. She was of a good family in western Pennsylvania. When little more than a slip of a girl she married a worthless man against the wishes of her family and the advice of her friends and her pastor. In six weeks she found out what he was and a divorce followed. Ashamed to meet her family and friends she fled to Washington, and here for more than three years she has been living alone—such a life. Homesick every day but unwilling to let her family know her whereabouts, she suffered oh such agony!

There is nothing criminal in this child. She is a good girl. She was not prepared for life's battle. She could not earn enough to keep body and soul together. That was all. There were times she was thrown out of her room because she could not pay her rent. And often she went hungry. Then came the collapse.

Word Sent to Mother.

"Mary Elizabeth and I talked it all over," Mrs. Murray told me, "and I advised sending for her mother."

"'Do you think she will come and get me?' the child asked."

Mrs. Murray read the aching heart and comforted her. "We might wire your mother, Mary Elizabeth, but that would shock her. Suppose I write her a long, long letter, for you to sign, and tell her all about you, and ask her to come here after you?"

That was done, and a little, old careworn woman came to Washington last week and took her daughter back home. It was a hard trial for the girl to face the people from whom she ran away, for many of them would sneer at her and idle gossips would talk about her.

Mrs. Murray got a letter yesterday from Mary Elizabeth's pastor, who wrote that she broke down when she got home but had rallied and now is holding her head up and her friends are coming to her.

That little girl is walking the hot ploughshares, but her story, which is a true one, is not very different from numerous cases that pass under Mrs. Murray's observation in her fine work in the hospitals.

MASONIC SERVICES START TOMORROW

Summer Custom of Lodges to Be Revived Under Treaty Oak.

DR. PALMER TO PREACH

A religious service that is an institution in Washington during the summer months is held every Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock under the treaty oak on Temple Heights by the Masons of this community. This custom will be renewed tomorrow afternoon, and will continue until October 5, when the last service of the year will be held.

The Rev. Dr. John C. Palmer, pastor of Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, who is also the grand chaplain of the Grand Lodge, has the immediate charge of these services, and will preach the opening sermon tomorrow afternoon. It was he who inaugurated the custom with a sermon July 30, 1922.

This service is non-sectarian. It is open to all Masons, the members of their families, and also to the general public. A choir representing the Eastern Star has charge of the music. This year the following will officiate in this capacity: Mrs. Gertrude Smith, Mrs. Evelyn Finch Stoner and Mrs. Alice Larrimore Schramm, and Messrs. Carol Harverstraw and Arville L. Ebersole.

Special Lodge Sundays.

Each Sunday has been set apart for special lodges and Eastern Star chapters. For the opening service, the assignment is: Tall Cedars of Lebanon, Lebanon No. 7, Potomac No. 5, and Hope No. 20, of Masons; and Hope No. 30, Martha No. 4, and Mount Pleasant No. 34, of Eastern Star.

From the Masons generally the program is in the hands of the following: Past Grand Master C. C. Coombs, general chairman; Director of Music J. Walter Humphrey; Chief Usher Frank M. Roller; Chairman of Finances Reuben A. Bogley.

Dr. Palmer has arranged for the following ministers to conduct the services on the dates assigned:

June 29—The Rev. Dr. Chesteen Smith, Hamline Methodist Episcopal Church.

July 6—The Rev. Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, Luther Memorial Church.

July 13—The Rev. Dr. Luther Hess Waring, Deputy Grand High Priest.

July 20—The Rev. Dr. Simpson B. Daugherty, United Brethren Church.

One August Date Open.

July 27—The Rev. Dr. Hugh T. Stevenson, Bethany Baptist Church.

August 3—The Rev. Dr. Thomas E. Boorde, Temple Baptist Church.

August 10—The Rev. Dr. John E. Briggs, Fifth Baptist Church.

August 17—(To be filled).

August 24—The Rev. Dr. Bartlett B. James, president of the Washington Congregational Ministers Association.

August 31—The Rev. Dr. William L. Darby, secretary, Washington Federation of Churches.

September 7—The Rev. Dr. Homer J. Councilor, Calvary Baptist Church.

September 14—The Rev. Dr. Mark Depp, Calvary Methodist Church.

September 21—(To be filled).

September 28—The Rev. Dr. Earle Wilfley, Vermont Avenue Christian Church.

October 5—(To be filled).

Cleric to Assume Pastorate in City

Rev. C. C. Rasmussen Will Be Formally Installed Tomorrow.

The Rev. Carl C. Rasmussen, D. D., who began his ministry to the congregation of the Luther Place Memorial Church, at Thomas Circle, on June 1, will be formally installed in the pastorate of that church tomorrow morning at the 11 o'clock service, the Revs. Gould Wickey and Dennington Hayes officiating. Dr. Wickey, who was formerly president of Carthage College and is now executive secretary of the board of education of the United Lutheran Church in America, will preside and deliver the charge to the pastor. Dr. Hayes, who is pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, will represent the Maryland Synod in the sealing of the relationship between people and pastor, and will deliver the charge to the congregation.

Dr. Rasmussen will preach at the evening service at 8 o'clock and will discuss the great adventure involved in a truly Christian life that travels the highways to Zion.

Lutherans Mark Day Of Quadricentennial

Wednesday is the four-hundredth anniversary of the signing of the Augsburg Confession, which is the oldest of the Protestant creeds. In celebration of the event, Lutheran churches in Washington and throughout the world will hold special services.

Sunday morning at the Columbia Heights Lutheran Church, the pastor, the Rev. C. H. Butler, will preach a special anniversary sermon. And Wednesday evening at Luther Place Church, all Lutherans in the city will unite in a joint celebration.

LAST STEPS TAKEN FOR CHURCH MERGER

Ratification of Presbytery Is Expected for Project of Presbyterians.

SPECIAL SESSION LOOMS

Events looking to the building of the National Presbyterian Church move forward rapidly, and the final steps are now being taken.

Thursday night the congregation of the Church of the Covenant unanimously ratified the proposed merger with the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church, which had unanimously ratified the merger on Monday evening.

The Church of the Covenant has already made a contract of merger with the National Presbyterian Church, and the next step in the procedure is for the Washington Presbytery to ratify the action of the merging congregations. There are no objections or obstacles to this, and it is believed that the Presbytery will be called into special session, probably next week, to take this action.

Special Meeting Held.

As the General Assembly has its part in this whole undertaking, having accepted the responsibility of raising some half a million or more dollars to go into the general fund for the erection of the National Church, a special meeting of the committee the General Council, which represents the General Assembly ad interim, was held at the Willard hotel yesterday morning for the purpose of selecting a new Commission on the National Church. Those present were: The Rev. Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, of Newark, N. J.; the Rev. Dr. Louis M. Mudge, stated clerk of the General Assembly; George M. Barber, of New York; and the Rev. Dr. Charles R. Erdman, of Princeton Theological Seminary.

This special committee was enthusiastic over the National Presbyterian Church, and it chose a commission that will cooperate heartily with the board of trustees of the national church and with the boards of the merging congregations in promoting the enterprise.

A general meeting of the special committee, the board of trustees, pastors and officials of the merging congregations was held at the University Club at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, where the whole plan of raising the money and building the church was discussed. The Rev. Dr. John C. Palmer is chairman of the board of trustees of the National Presbyterian Church.

McCartney to Be Pastor.

It is understood that while the official title of the new church will be the chartered name, the National Presbyterian Church, it will contain tablets which will state that the church is built on the foundation of the Church of the Covenant and the First Church.

The Rev. Dr. Albert J. McCartney, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, will be pastor of the National Church, and the Rev. Dr. N. P. Patterson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, will be the associate pastor. A schedule of the other officers has yet to be worked out.

It has been arranged for the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church to meet the congregation of the Church of the Covenant in the Covenant Chapel and, led by the two ministers, go into the Covenant Church for the morning service.

During the absence of Dr. McCartney on his vacation in California, Dr. Patterson will preach at the Covenant, along with some other well-known ministers.

Another Merger Failed.

Presbyterians are recalling how another merger and another National Presbyterian Church, long planned, was narrowly frustrated some years ago. It embraced the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church and the Washington Heights Church. The late Dr. Wallace Radcliffe was the leading spirit in it, and was then in the heyday of his great pastorate at the New York Avenue Church. His ruling elder was the late Justice John M. Harlan, of the United States Supreme Court, who was also active in the negotiations.

Every detail of the merger was worked out, the old Truesdale estate, bounded by Columbia road, Nineteenth street and Kalorama road, now entirely built up by apartment houses, was secured for the site of the national church, and the plan had the tacit consent of both congregations. Dr. Radcliffe had been moderator of the General Assembly and was the leading Presbyterian minister in Washington.

Plan Voted Down.

Naturally he wanted to be, and expected to be, pastor of the national church, and it was thought that he would be.

When the merger was put to a vote of the two congregations, New York Avenue Church voted unanimously for it, but the Washington Heights congregation voted it down. The smaller church thought that proper provision had not been made for its pastor, a young Canadian minister, Mr. Moss, who in a short while surrendered his pastorate and went to the University of North Carolina, where for the past 20 years, as "Parson" Moss, he has been a member of the faculty.

A second time the matter of a national church was proposed to the Washington Heights Church, and this time it voted to merge with the present proposed National Presbyterian Church, when and if it was built on the site optioned on Calvert street. That option expired and with it the action of the little church on Kalorama Road.

Three Churches Plan Union Summer Services

During the summer All Souls Unitarian Church, Mount Pleasant Congregational Church and the Universalist National Memorial Church will hold union services, beginning Sunday, June 22, and ending on September 7. From June 22 to July 13 they will be held in the Universalist Church at Sixteenth and S streets, from July 20 to August 10 in the Unitarian Church at Sixteenth and Harvard streets, and from August 17 to September 7 in the Congregational Church at 1410 Columbia road. The preachers will be as follows:

June 22, the Rev. Harold Marshall, D. D., of Boston; June 29, the Rev. Frederic W. Perkins, D. D.; July 6, the Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, of Willimantic, Conn.; July 13, the Rev. Frederic W. Perkins; July 20, the Rev. Robert B. Day, of Niagara Falls, N. Y.; July 27, the Rev. Robert B. Day, of Niagara Falls, N. Y.; August 3, to be supplied by All Souls Unitarian Church; August 10, to be supplied by All Souls Unitarian Church; August 17, the Rev. Franklin I. Winter, Ashland, Ohio; August 24, the Rev. Robert Wood Coe, of Brockton, Mass.; August 31, the Rev. Roger F. Etz, D. D., of Boston, Mass., secretary of the Universalist general convention; September 7, the Rev. Moses R. Lovell.

St. Mark's Church Will Close Doors

Services Will Be Held in Parish House During Alterations.

For the first time in its history, the doors of St. Mark's Church, of which the Rev. H. A. Woolfall is rector, will be closed tomorrow and services will be held in the Parish House.

The closing of the church has been necessitated by extensive alterations which will be done during the summer months.

There will be erected a memorial chapel within the church, to be known as the Chapel of the Nazarene. New pews will be installed, memorial vestibules, memorial baptistry, and a rich tile floor will be laid. In addition to these there are many more memorials, and the entire church will be sand-blasted, in all making it one of the most beautiful churches in Washington.

Work is progressing rapidly and the opportunity presented to the parish seems to be tremendous.

The rector leaves for Europe on July 3 for both travel and study, and will return to his work the first part of September. During his absence, the Rev. John A. Bryant will be in charge.

Episcopal Churchmen Plan Olney Pilgrimage

As a memorial to the late Col. John H. Finney, a devoted layman of the Washington Diocese, a pilgrimage will be made Sunday morning to Olney, in Montgomery County. The Laymen's Service Association will be joined in this pilgrimage by the Brotherhood of St. Andrew and the Bishop's League of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

The pilgrimage will start from in front of the Washington Baseball Park at 9:30 a. m. Members of all churches are invited and automobiles will be provided for those without cars of their own. After the morning service there will be a luncheon and fellowship meeting.

Chambersburg Calls Eckington Pastor

Washington may lose one of its finest and ablest young Presbyterian ministers in September if the Rev. Henry B. Wooding, pastor of Eckington Church, accepts the call that has just been extended to him by the Central Presbyterian Church at Chambersburg, Pa.

Mr. Wooding has notified his session of the call, and the matter will now go to his congregation. While he has not said what his intention is, the understanding is that he will accept it. Four years ago he came here from Illinois, called by the Eckington Church, and his pastorate has been inspiring to his people and energizing to Presbyterianism in the community. As a member of the Washington Presbytery he has had a part in all of its works.

Bishop of Colorado Guest Preacher Here

The Right Rev. Irving Peake Johnson, Bishop of Colorado, will be guest preacher at St. Thomas Episcopal Church tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. In the afternoon he will preach at the people's open-air evensong at the foot of the Peace Cross in the Cathedral Close. This service will be broadcast through radio station WRC.

VOTE DUE MONDAY ON VETERANS' BILL

Senate Leaders Confident of Adjournment by End of Next Week.

RECESS OVER WEEK-END

(Associated Press.)

Agreement was reached in the Senate yesterday for a final vote on Monday on the veterans' relief measure and leaders were confident last night of an adjournment of this session by the end of next week.

This optimism over termination of the long session developed with passage by the Senate of the rivers and harbors bill and subsequent agreement on veterans' legislation. Earlier Republican congressional leaders had fixed July 1 as the earliest possible date for ending their labors.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, assistant Republican leader, secured agreement for a vote on the veterans' relief measure on Monday. Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, who previously objected to a definite hour for a vote, voiced no complaint.

Chairman Jones, of the appropriations committee, notified the Senate that he hoped to have the second deficiency bill, just getting out of the House, before the Senate in time for action on Tuesday.

With this final appropriation measure out of the way, the course will be open for adjournment. But there were rumors last night of formation of blocs interested in various unfinished pieces of legislation, including the Muscle Shoals and motor bus transportation bills, banding together to block adjournment.

The motor bus bill will be given right of way as soon as the veterans relief and the second deficiency measures are out of the way. However, little hope is held for its final approval.

Senators Black, of Alabama, and McKellar, of Tennessee, Democrats, renewed their demands in the Senate yesterday that President Hoover take some action to break the deadlock over Muscle Shoals, but there were no indications last night of a solution of this dispute.

With the agreement reached for a vote on the veterans' bill on Monday, the Senate adjourned until that day. Every effort will be made to speed this bill to President Hoover in order to give him time to approve or disapprove it before adjournment.

TINKHAM ANSWERS CANNON CHALLENGE

received from E. C. Jameson was used by him on account of any personal indebtedness."

Bishop Makes Reply.

"Under all the circumstances," Mr. Tinkham said in his speech on the floor of the House, "until Bishop Cannon has made, under oath and subject to cross-examination, under duress or otherwise, a statement of when, where and for what purpose he expended the $48,300 intrusted to him by Mr. Jameson, for which he has made no accounting, he will stand convicted in the eyes of all honest men of having appropriated that money to his own uses. However, in view of the peculiar operations of his mind, it is doubtful whether even under oath and subject to cross-examination, he would make a clear and unequivocal statement or explanation of the expenditure of Mr. Jameson's money."

At the time Mr. Tinkham made his speech in the House, the bishop was en route to Washington from a church meeting in Nashville, Tenn. In Louisville, Ky., he heard of the Tinkham speech and issued a statement in which, as reported by the Associated Press, he said:

"When Representative Tinkham shall give to the press over his personal signature the statements reported by the press as made by him today on the floor of the House of Representatives, where he is immune from prosecution for false, libelous statements, he may command respect of honorable men, but making such statements on the floor of the House, where he knows his immunity from prosecution brands him as a blustering, cowardly representative appealing especially to his wet, Roman Catholic voters to retain him in office."

Tinkham Rare Lawsuit Game.

Should the bishop decide that he has legal grounds for action, Mr. Tinkham offers a shining target. The representative is immensely wealthy, estimates of his holdings by those who know him well ranging upward from $20,000,000.

Bishop Cannon's name came up again on the floor of the House yesterday in the course of debate, but this time he found a defender in the person of Representative Shaffer (Republican), Virginia, who said:

"I condemn, as the American people condemn, attacks on a bold and fearless man, and say what you please about Cannon, he is a bold and fearless man."

"The gentleman from Massachusetts, Mr. Tinkham," he said, "charged Bishop Cannon with violating the law and with embezzlement. Unless he goes out in the open and repeats those charges, he will be condemned in the eyes of all fair-minded citizens as being unfair, a coward and a slanderer.

Schafer's Speech Called Blind.

"The gentleman from Wisconsin, Representative Schafer (Republican), who had just spoken in criticism of the bishop, saw fit to follow in the footsteps of the gentleman from Massachusetts. However, no one will be deceived by his speech, as it is all done for the purpose of hurting prohibition and giving the wet press another opportunity to strike Bishop Cannon.

"I believe the assaults of the gentleman from Massachusetts and the gentleman from Wisconsin elevated prohibition and Bishop Cannon in the sober minds of the people of the South."

Mrs. Sinclair Lewis Now Mother of Son

New York, June 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, wife of the author, gave birth to a son at 7 a. m. today in the Women's Hospital, this city. Mrs. Lewis, who was Miss Dorothy Thompson, met and married the author two years ago while traveling abroad. She was the correspondent for the New York Evening Post.

Sinclair Lewis was divorced from his former wife, Grace Hogger Lewis, in Reno April 26, 1928, and married Miss Thompson May 14 of the same year. He has a son, Wells, now 14, by his first wife.

QUITS OFFICE

DR. PAUL MOLDENHAUER.

GERMANY'S FINANCE MINISTER RESIGNS

Moldenhauer Quits, Unable to Solve Fatherland's Money Problem.

SUCCESSOR NOT CHOSEN

Berlin, June 20 (A.P.).—The thorny problem of Germany's finances today caused the first break in the ranks of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's cabinet. The resignation of Dr. Paul Moldenhauer, who had also served under ex-Chancellor Mueller, as finance minister, was accepted by President von Hindenburg.

His successor is being hotly discussed in German political circles. The question of who is to succeed to the scarcely coveted post of running the Reich's finances has become acute. Chancellor Bruening can not be expected long to carry on the duties of finance minister ad interim.

The chancellor will confer tomorrow with Hermann Hoepkeraschoff, Prussian finance minister and member of the Democratic party, but it will need all his powers of persuasion to induce the latter to accept the heritage of Dr. Moldenhauer. Moreover, Premier Braun, of Prussia, is loath to lose a valuable colleague and friend.

Suggestions were heard tonight that a nonparty man would make a suitable finance minister. Dr. Friedrich Saemisch, president of the Reich's audit office, has been mentioned in this connection. So, on other grounds, has been Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former head of the Reichsbank, but the latter's name has been generally dropped from consideration since it became known he was leaving for the United States this summer.

To add to Chancellor Burening's worries at this time there came a long letter today from Carl Friedrich von Siemens, president of the Federal Railways board, stating that traffic returns this year have been extremely unfavorable and prospects are discouraging.

Reform of Jails Program Pushed

Ogden H. Hammond Takes Charge of Seeking Cash for New System.

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—George Gordon Battle, president of the national committee on prisons and prison labor, announced today that Ogden H. Hammond, former United States Ambassador to Spain, has accepted the chairmanship of the national prison emergency committee, which will seek funds to make possible reorganization of State prison systems.

The campaign, Battle said, is undertaken at the request of governments of Alabama, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, New Jersey, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont, and District of Columbia.

The money will be used, he said, to gather facts which will enable prison administrators to overcome idleness in prisons by developing modern industrial plants, farms, and coordinated public works, to bring about segregation of dangerous prisoners, to reorganize prison workshops for the manufacture of standardized products, and to organize public aid in carrying through the program.

GIRL ACCUSES MAN OF GUNPLAY THREAT

police station, and a few minutes later Sergt. A. I. Bulloch and Policeman M. W. Warren appeared.

The police were unable to get in the room, but Johnson agreed to come out after much talking back and forth. When police searched him he was unarmed, but one of the policemen later found a revolver in the grass at the foot of the window of room 210. Johnson was booked at the station for carrying concealed weapons.

The arrested man is the same, police said, who accompanied former Traffic Bureau Policeman W. D. Davis to the home of Mrs. Marion P. Jacobs, on Rhode Island avenue, near Thirteenth street, on the morning of February 10. The men, who are alleged to have taken $50 from Mrs. Jacobs, were later indicted, together with a Raymond C. Conrad, on robbery charges and released under $2,000 bond.

A second indictment was returned against Johnson, alleging transportation of liquor, last November. Bond was set at $2,000 in this case also.

While still nervous over her experience, Mrs. Pearson had calmed a great deal at her home late last night. She said that she believed Johnson had threatened her "just because he was drunk," and that he hadn't meant to harm her.

Johnson frequently goes in and out of the apartment, she said, but last night was the first time he had threatened her.

William A. Tinney, colored elevator operator, also was summoned as a witness against Johnson, but Maloy was the only one besides Mrs. Pearson who talked with the man.

Hermit Killed by Train.

Philadelphia, June 20 (A.P.).—Robert Clark, 55, who lived the life of a hermit, and who claimed that he was "Charley" Ross, the son of Christian K. Ross, who was kidnaped here in 1874, was killed by a railroad train last night.

MANY JOBS DEPEND ON DISTRICT'S BILL

WIDER REACTION SEEN

It was addressed to Speaker Longworth, Majority Leader Tilson, Minority Leader Garner and the members of the House in general, and it said:

Concerned Over Future.

"In the City of Washington, on June 20, 1930, there gathered a voluntary meeting of men representing all walks of life and all interests in the District of Columbia, including merchants, officers of the city's leading bank and trust companies; leaders of organied labor, the responsible officers of the city's most active trade and commercial organizations, and professional men.

"This gathering resulted from a deep concern over the threatened failure of the pending District of Columbia appropriation bill for the fiscal year beginning on July 1.

"As a result of that concern and of the discussion caused thereby, the undersigned committee was designated to present to the Congress the following:

"We urge—

"1. A resumption of conferences between the two houses for the purpose of making further efforts to bring about the enactment of the above mentioned bill, including the appropriation of the sums which, in equity and fairness, should be borne, on the one hand, by the National Government, and on the other by the taxpayers of the City of Washington.

"2. That earnest and careful consideration be given to the extremely deplorable effects of the failure of the pending legislation not only locally in the City of Washington, but nationally.

"3. That the Congress of the United States do not adjourn, in this time of widespread unemployment, leaving unenacted legislation, the failure of which would increase unemployment.

Grave Results Foreseen.

"We directly and earnestly invite your attention to the fact that if the regular appropriation bill for the District of Columbia for the next fiscal year is not enacted, but the running expenses of the municipality are merely provided for by legislation continuing the ordinary appropriation of the current fiscal year, the following will result:

"There would be a failure of appropriations for greatly needed additions to and repairs in the public schools of the city of Washington. Entirely aside from the importance of efficiently maintaining the public schools, this would deprive several hundred men engaged in the building trades of employment.

"For projected improvements, such as the public library building, extensions and raw equipment in the city's sewer and fire departments, and for the new buildings and extensions to buildings needed to carry on the work of the public welfare, including a children's tuberculosis sanitarium, the pending bill carries appropriations.

Increase in Unemployment.

"Here, again, needed employment will be unavailable, unemployment increased, if these appropriations fail; and this entirely aside from the deplorable consideration of marking time when work of this vital nature should be going forward.

"The bill provides for important street improvements. Among no class is the present problem of lack of work so vital as among the laboring men, of whom it is estimated from 1,200 to 1,500 would fail of employment if this work of street improvement is not carried on in the Capital City during the ensuing twelve months.

"We stress, as we thing should be stressed, the hardship which would result from this unemployment, but we do not overlook, as we submit it should not be overlooked, the resulting condition of disrepair and of failure to provide the street improvements which will confront the Capital during the period of contemplated Washington Bicentennial.

"The greatly increased future cost of highway work following a period of neglect is as obvious as it is inevitable. The unemployment which would result among laboring men who, should the pending bill be unenacted, would work on the public streets, can not be made good by legislation enacted at the next regular session of Congress, for, as is well known, that character of work can not be done in cold weather."

Present at Meeting.

Of the men who attended the meeting in the Riggs National Bank and drew up the petition, twelve were designated to visit the Capitol. Those at the meeting were:

Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank and chairman of the volunteer committee; John Joy Edson, chairman of the board of the Washington Loan & Trust Co.; Edward F. Colladay, Republican national committeeman for the District; Samuel J. Prescott, local Republican leader and chairman of the board of the Second National Bank; Joshua Evans, president of the District National Bank; John B. Colpoys, representing the Central Labor Union; Frank J. Hogan, outstanding local attorney and officer of the Riggs National Bank; Edward C. Graham, president of the National Electric Supply Co.; Charles A. Douglas, lawyer of both national and international connections; John Poole, president of the Federal-American National Bank; Thomas P. Littlepage, former president of the District Bar Association; Sidney F. Taliaferro, former District Commissioner, and Charles C. Glover, jr., investment banker and son of the retired president of the Riggs Bank.

Appeal to Hoover.

Directors of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association will send a letter to President Hoover today beseeching the Chief Executive to do all in his power toward saving the District appropriation bill.

The directors decided to take this action at a meeting yesterday afternoon. The letter will also commend the President for the interest he has already evinced in the bill. Attention will be drawn to the fact that the Washington Bicentennial plans for 1932 will be greatly interfered with if the bill does not pass.

The resolution of Senator Jones for a fiscal relations commission was introduced late yesterday, after Senator Black (Democrat), of Alabama, had withdrawn the objection he had made to it earlier in the day. When Senator Jones called it up late in the day, he explained that it had no connection with the visit to the White House of Senator Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, the chief Senate conferee on the appropriation bill.

Plans Yearly Appraisal.

Under the Jones resolution, the commission would be composed of three men—the District assessor and two experts on real estate values, one of whom would have to be a nonresident.

This commission of three would notify Congress each year what, in its opinion, is the value of the property owned here by the Federal Government, together with the value of private property, and this appraisement would be used as the basis for determining what amount the Federal Government should contribute toward the expenses of the city.

It would not be the sole basis, Senator Jones hastened to explain. Other factors necessarily would have to be taken into consideration, as, for example, the fact that this is the National Capital and that everything that is done here must be done on a more or less monumental scale.

Unlike the fiscal commission proposed by Representative Moore (Democrat), of Virginia, the Jones commission would not make recommendations to Congress, but would simply serve as a fact-finding body, an "aid" to Congress. Its findings would have no binding effect whatever.

Senator Glass Adamant.

Discussing the situation of the deadlocked appropriation bill, Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, said:

"Matters have reached such a point that unless the Senate of the United States wants absolutely to abase itself and supinely to confess that it is not a part of the legislative branch of the Government, it must assert its dignity and its right to legislate. I want to cite an incident.

"The day before yesterday there came into my office as I was about to leave a committee representing the policemen's and firemen's organizations of the District of Columbia. They said to me that if they would be permitted to carry from me to a member of another branch of the Congress an assurance that the conferees on the part of the Senate on a pending bill—the pay-raise bill—would agree to the demands of this member of the House, he would permit the House to send the bill to conference.

Brands It Affrontery.

"In all my legislative experience I have never known such a piece of affrontery. The message that I did send to that member of another branch would not be printed in the Record if I were to tell the Senate what it was."

After charging the House appropriations committee with constituting itself a legislative committee and abrogating the statutory 60-40 law, Senator Swanson said that he would agree to the Jones resolution provided other things besides property values were taken into consideration.

"The Federal Government," he said, "compels the District to have better pavements than are provided in the ordinary city, better and wider and more beautiful streets lined with trees. Furthermore, the expenses are greater on account of Washington being the seat of the Federal Government. All the improvements have to be on a more monumental scale."

DISTRICT FINANCING IS CALLED CHAOTIC

Chamber Committee Urges Lump-Sum Increase to Avoid Tax Raise.

FOR STANDARD METHOD

Describing the present method of District financing as "chaotic" and recommending the development of a standard, financing procedure, the District finance committee of the Washington Chamber of Commerce adopted resolutions at a meeting yesterday recommending that the Federal contribution to the National Capital be increased to the extent of avoiding any increase in local taxes.

The chamber committee adopted the resolutions, which included a number of other recommendations, after receiving from the District Commissioners the estimates recommended by department heads for 1932.

Long-Time Plan Urged.

Other recommendations in the resolutions were: That the District surplus fund be not drawn upon for current expenditure needs except with a matched and proportionate contribution of Federal funds; that through the proposed permanent fiscal relations commission and by other means there be developed a standard long-time financing plan including the budgeting, over a period of years, of major improvements with corelated methods of financing over a long-time period; that the form of current annual budget be improved and that the District Commissioners be authorized and directed to provide for full public hearing before their budget estimates are submitted to Congress.

These recommendations are directed to Congress.

$4,130,222 More Needed.

The committee pointed out that funds now available for the 1932 budget, under the present $1.70 tax, would amount to $45,447,540, while the 1932 estimates amount to $54,177,302. Of this latter sum, $49,577,762 must be secured from current expenses, the committee points out. The disparity between sums available and sums required amounts to $4,130,222.

The sum representing the disparity is equal to the surplus, which would be available in 1932 under the Senate plan for an increase in the Federal lump sum contribution, the committee observes. Without such a lump sum increase a tax rate of $2.35 would be required unless the 1932 budget estimates are materially reduced, the committee pointed out.

The deductions of the District finance committee were drawn under the supervision of Rudolph Jose, chairman of the committee.

French Optimistic As Tariff Passes

Papers Think Discretion of Hoover Will Save Export Situation.

Paris, June 20 (A.P.).—French business men and public opinion are looking to President Hoover's discretionary powers to reduce duties found excessive in the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill as an assurance that French exports to the United States will not be crippled or seriously impaired.

Comment in the evening newspapers was more optimistic than any hitherto.

L'Intransigeant, influential Conservative paper, remarked: "The problem must be examined coolly. We must not act upon impulse, or from bad humor. Ambassador Edge is a business man, and this matter may be settled along business lines."

L'Information, the leading Paris financial newspaper, was hopeful that "electoral preoccupations will not prevent common sense and economic science from prevailing."

DEAD

EDWARD S. NORRIS

Edward S. Norris Claimed by Death

Head of Service Engraving, Inc., Expires at Age of 38 Years.

Edward Simms Norris, 38 years old, president of the Service Engraving, Inc., died yesterday at his home, 21 Rock Spring drive, Country Club Hills, Va. Starting in the trade with the National Engraving Co. at the age of 14, he worked for five years before moving to Atlanta, Ga.

In Atlanta he met and married Miss Jewett Hodge. Later he returned to the Capital and took a position with the Lanman Engraving Co. in The Washington Post Building. After working with this firm fifteen years, he purchased the M. E. Joyce Engraving Co. and operated it at 1011 E street for five years under the name of the Service Engraving Co. before moving to The Washington Post Building and altering the firm name again.

Surviving, besides his wife, are his mother, Mrs. Annie Norris; a sister, Mrs. Maude Harman, and a brother, Wells Norris. Funeral arrangements had not been made last night.

Prof. John Dugan Rites Set Monday

Catholic University Man, Former Captain, Will Rest in Arlington.

Prof. John A. Dugan, 40 years old, a member of the faculty of Catholic University, who died Thursday in Georgetown University Hospital after a brief illness, will be buried Monday morning in Arlington Cemetery following a requiem mass at Holy Trinity Church at 9 o'clock.

Prof. Dugan was a native of Washington. For the last eleven years he had been an instructor in the mechanical engineering department of Catholic University. He was graduated from that school in 1915.

During the World War he was a captain in the Army, being attached to the transport service. At the time of his death he held the rank of major in the Officers Reserve Corps. He was affiliated with the University Club, the Congressional County Club, the Knights of Columbus, American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the American Legion. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Oriel Gulli Dugan; a brother, Dr. Charles L. Dugan, and a sister, Mrs. John Mattare.

REAR ADMIRAL HARRIS DIES

Officer Who Lived in Capital Since 1911 Was Ill for Years

Rear Admiral Uriah R. Harris died yesterday at the Naval Hospital after more than a year of illness. He was 81 years old when he died. Admiral Harris had lived in Washington since he retired in 1911, at the Brighton Hotel. He was childless, and his wife died in 1921. No funeral arrangements have been made.

He was born in Indiana in 1849, and graduated from the Naval Academy in 1869. Since then he served several years on coast survey schooners, in the Lighthouse Service and at various navy yards. For two years, from 1882 to 1884, he was stationed here, being attached to the Naval Observatory. He was also commandant of the naval stations in the Philippine Islands for several years.

WILLIAM SMITH DEAD.

Owner of Capital News Co. to Be Buried Monday.

William Smith, well-known owner of the Capital News Co., which served the White House, embassies and clubs with out-of-town papers and magazines for 30 years, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital at the age of 49.

Mr. Smith, a native of Washington, is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, and two daughters, Katherine and Helene. Katherine is a member of the cast of "Honeymoon Lane," now on Broadway.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 9:30 o'clock at Gawler's funeral parlors. He will be buried in St. Mary's Cemetery.

ROBERT P. RAWLINS RITES

Body Will Be On View at Central Presbyterian Church Noon Today.

Funeral services for Robert P. Rawlins, 79 years old, who died Thursday night at his home, 3302 Eighteenth street northeast, will be held this afternoon at the Central Presbyterian Church, Sixteenth and Irving streets. The body will be viewed at the church from noon until 2 o'clock.

Mr. Rawlins was born in Lawrenceville, Ga., and came to this city several years ago. In addition to his widow, he is survived by three children—Frank Rawlins, of San Diego, Calif.; Miss Harriet Rawlins, of this city, and Edwin Rawlins, of Los Angeles—and one brother, Richard, also of Los Angeles.

LAW INVESTIGATION FUND STRICKEN OUT

LaGuardia's Point Against $250,000 for Wickersham Group Prevails.

DRYS SEE SENATE AID

(Associated Press.)

Although an item of $250,000 for the expenses of the Hoover law enforcement commission for the next fiscal year was stricken from the second deficiency bill in the House yesterday, dry leaders confidently predicted its restoration and the continued life of the group.

Attacking the allotment on the ground there was no law authorizing the expenditure, Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, a leader in the wet bloc, was sustained by the chair on a point of order.

Representative Chindblom (Republican), Illinois, who was presiding, recalled that the authorization for the commission's investigation into law enforcement was only for the present fiscal year. In addition to the $250,000, the ruling eliminated the reappropriation of $80,000 remaining as an unexpended balance from the $250,000 appropriated for this year.

Senate Expected to Restore.

Representative Cramton (Republican), Michigan, a dry leader, said he was confident nothing more would be done in the House to restore the item, but that he was equally certain the Senate would reinsert it and the matter would go to conference; he added, however, it might be necessary to secure adoption of a resolution authorizing the commission to continue its work for another year.

Representative Christopherson (Republican), South Dakota, another dry, predicted "Congress would not adjourn without providing funds for the commission when it has only half completed its work."

La Guardia based his point of order upon a provision which forbids an appropriation which has not been authorized by law.

Quoting from the statement of George W. Wickersham, chairman of the commission, before the House appropriations committee that "Our job was to see whether the eighteenth amendment was being adequately and efficiently enforced," the New Yorker declared "I will say that it is not necessary to have a voluntary commission to tell us what is going on in the way of prohibition."

High, Says Linthicum.

Chairman Wood, of the appropriations committee, interrupted to explain that the creation of the commission had been suggesetd by Congress and Congress "should not stop the job which it put in motion, especially when it is only half through.

La Guardia declared that Wood had "warned and lectured" Wickersham as to the limitations of his powers and those of the commission when the allotment was sought before the appropriations committee.

Representative Linthicum (Democrat), Maryland, a wet, said it appeared to him that "a half million dollars is a good deal of money for what we have gotten."

Host Denies Baird And Fiancee Wed

Marriage Will Take Place in Few Days, Aunt of Widow Says.

Toledo, Ohio, June 20 (A.P.).—Denial that United States Senator David Baird, jr., of New Jersey, and Mrs. Frances H. Smith, widow of his former business associate, were married last night at Camden, N. J., was made here today by L. A. Miller, president of the Willys-Overland Co., automobile manufacturers.

Senator Baird and Mrs. Smith are guests at the Miller home. The senator remained in seclusion and refused to talk, but Miller said the couple were not yet married. Mrs. Miller, aunt of Mrs. Smith, also denied reports of the marriage. She intimated the marriage would take place within a few days, but refused to divulge any plans.

Senator Baird and Mrs. Smith came here today in a private railroad car which is due to remain here until Sunday.

SECOND DEFICIENCY MEASURE IS PASSED

of New York, who declared that it was not authorized.

Dry leaders predicted that the item would be restored in the Senate.

After a fight, the appropriation of $10,660,000 for the Boulder Canyon Dam, was retained in the bill.

The bill authorizes a start on Federal building projects here which ultimately will cost $37,350,000. These are as follows:

Postoffice Department building, $10,300,000; Department of Justice building, $10,000,000; Department of Labor building, $4,750,000; Interstate Commerce Commission building, $4,500,000; a connecting wing between the last two buildings, $2,000,000; Public Health Service building, $865,000; remodeling of the State Department building $3,000,000; landscaping of the block bounded by Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Pennsylvania avenue and E street, $50,000; for the purchase of land in the Pennsylvania avenue-Mall triangle, $2,000,000.

Market Money Provided.

The bill also authorizes the erection of the proposed Archives building on the site of the Center Market, and provides money to operate the market until the time for its removal arrives.

The bill also carries appropriations for a radio station for the local Police Department, for the maintenance of the new Department of Commerce Building, and for the maintenance of the new Arlington Memorial Bridge.

Representative La Guardia made a motion to reduce the appropriation for the George Washington Bicentennial Commission from $362,075 to $250,000, but it was voted down, 61 to 6.

The New Yorker assailed the publicity plans of the commission. Among the items were $6,000 for a publicity director, $5,000 for a special writer, $5,000 for a magazine writer, $6,000 for an editor, $10,000 for supplies and stationary, $25,000 for a movie scenario, and $10,000 for newspaper clippings.

Such a staff was unnecessary, La Guardia said, and he violently objected to the $10,000 for newspaper clippings "so that Sol Bloom can see what the papers are writing about him."

Representative Bloom (Democrat), of New York, a director of the bicentennial, which takes place in 1932, the 200th anniversary of George Washington's birth, defended the appropriation. Necessarily, he said, there would be a lot of advance work, and it was to finance this that the money was put into the bill.

"We are trying to give you a celebration that the world will be proud of," he declared.

BYRD AND HIS MEN.

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his Antarctic companions received yesterday the praise and congratulations of the President of the United States and the plaudits of Washington. The National Capital opened its heart to the citizens of Little America.

One of the important results of the unparalleled expedition to Antarctica was the discovery of new lands that now belong to the United States. An effort was made by the British government to make it appear that any lands which Admiral Byrd might visit already belonged to the British Empire; but the United States Government refused to acknowledge British sovereignty over lands discovered by Byrd. The explorer claimed them in the name of the United States. They will remain under the American flag.

No one can foresee how valuable these lands may be, in minerals, petroleum, or in marine wealth. It would be folly to fail to hold them, merely because at present they are difficult of access and apparently immune to exploitation. Improved agencies of transportation may change the situation entirely. Alaska was thought to be worthless, and even the Pacific Coast at one time would have been thrown away by shortsighted statesmen who deemed it too remote to be utilized. Nothing on the planet is now too remote to be reached; and if exploration should develop the existence of riches in American Antarctica these riches will ultimately be obtained.

Aside from the material advantages to science and economy which the Byrd expedition has obtained, it has been of immense value to Americans by stimulating in them the spirit of enterprise and heroism. Admiral Byrd personifies the ideal American in his generous tributes to his companions, his modesty, and his ability to combine sublime daring with cautious preparation. These are the best American traits, such as exalt the fame of early American adventurers who subdued the continent and won American sea battles, and which were manifest in Col. Lindbergh's glorious flight. It is little wonder that Col. Lindbergh and Admiral Byrd are close friends, engaged in the noble rivalry of firing the heart of young America to attempt unexampled deeds.

The will to achieve greatly in contests with nature is a splendid attribute of American manhood. It is the purest kind of ambition, because it does not seek selfish advantage over others. Every triumph of the explorer is a contribution to human welfare. Admiral Byrd was in reality the American spirit, going forth into the unknown to search out benefits for all. His fame is secure in the hearts of his countrymen and extends literally to the ends of the earth.

SOLVING ITS OWN PROBLEM.

While Senator Wagner pursues his campaign in criticism of the House for its failure to act upon his unemployment bills, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, charges that the bills have been amended so as to be of little potency, the General Electric Co. makes public the details of a plan designed to make funds available to employes in time of unemployment or other emergency. At the same time, the company announces a plan for stabilizing employment and lays down a set of rules for all its plants as to what shall be done when business is either increasing or diminishing.

The Government is, of course, concerned when employment falls off, not only because one of its functions is to promote the welfare of its people, but also because a depression furnishes the opposition an opportunity to make political capital. But it is not the Government's business to interfere with the normal course of industry. Prevention of unemployment can be accomplished best by industry itself.

Senator Wagner's several bills are subject to criticism chiefly on the ground that they would be difficult to administer and that they would be effective only after an emergency situation had developed. In all probability they are as satisfactory as any legislation of this nature could be. But is it wise or necessary to enact such legislation?

If industry would realize, as the General Electric Co. has done, that the prevention of unemployment and the duty of caring for its workers is its own responsibility there would be no need for unemployment legislation. The General Electric Co. proposes to set up trust funds with employe contributions matched, dollar for dollar, by company contributions, which, in abnormal times or in cases of individual emergencies, will be disbursed for the relief of individual workers. In addition, it has worked out a broad plan of plant activity in which slack periods will be utilized to make capital improvements and build up stock, and peak production will be obtained, not by putting on extra help, but by using regular help on an overtime basis. The company thus seeks to guarantee employment and to make provision to assist its workers through periods of acute depression.

If all American industries were to adopt similar programs the country would discover that the "business cycle" had been largely dissipated and there would be no unemployment emergencies. It is better for industry to take measures beforehand to help itself out of its dilemmas than for it to let production run riot during the upswing of the cycle, and then depend upon the Government to help the workers out when depression sets in.

THE PRICE OF SHOES.

A New York merchant is advertising men's shoes "at old-tariff prices" until July 1, when they will be "priced under the new tariff." This may be "smart" merchandising, but it is deceptive. The shoes in question are British-made. The increased duty will add to their selling price; but the inference in the advertisement is that the tariff will boost the price of all shoes, even if made in the United States.

The tariff is designed to keep off the American market any foreign product which, because of low labor costs, makes competition by American manufacturers impossible. Every pair of foreign shoes sold in the American market deprives an American manufacturer of a sale. The aggregate of such sales has been large enough to affect seriously the prosperity of the American shoe manufacturing industry. The American manufacturer is able to build as good a pair of shoes as his foreign competitor. The effect of the tariff will not be that Americans will have to accept inferior domestic articles at increased prices, but that they can purchase identical articles, or superior, at similar or lower prices, manufactured in American shops.

A New York newspaperman recently interviewed the expert economists of the Government and found them unanimously agreed that the cost of living would drop in the next few months, regardless of the tariff. They asserted that every government protesting against the new schedules is listed among the 55 countries that have increased their duties on American products within the last four years. Many of the protests are eight or nine months old, and they are fewer than the objections raised to the Fordney-McCumber act when it became law eight years ago. Many of the protests, it was said, relate to duties that were eliminated from the bill before its enactment.

American importers who continue to harp on the mythical evils of the recently enacted tariff law play into the hands of foreign manufacturers. The man who declares in his advertising that the price of shoes is about to be boosted should make it clear that he refers to imported shoes. Of course the price of British boots and other foreign-made merchandise will be increased as a result of the tariff. American manufacturers will have their business stimulated as a result, however, and their humming factories will provide work for Americans. If any customer wishes to purchase imported products, let him pay the higher price. Where did he get the money with which to buy, if it is not from the income he receives as a producer? How could he buy any shoes at all if he were unemployed?

BUYING A BRIDGE.

Before the days of direct hold-ups it was the practice of New York crooks to sell the Brooklyn Bridge to some "hick from the sticks." But it was never recorded that the hick ever attempted to remove the bridge from its piers. Therefore the courts of New York State were not required to pass upon the guilt or innocence of any one charged with attempting to get away with a bridge. But that unique judicial job recently fell to the lot of Judge McKelvey, who presides in the court of Saratoga County. One, Walter Cohen, who is engaged in the purchase and sale of rags, bones and bottles, with headquarters at Glens Falls, was indicted for removing, carting away, feloniously and without warrant a certain structure, namely, a bridge which was the property of the Hudson Valley Railroad, and which formerly served to carry the rolling stock of that corporation across the river at Schuylerville.

Judge McKelvey is a wise jurist, and when the prisoner, through his attorney, exhibited evidence in the form of a canceled check for $50 bearing the signature of the accused, together with the indorsement of the vendor, who went under the name of John Robinson, the judge was convinced that Cohen was innocent of any wrongdoing, and he dismissed the indictment as quickly as the district attorney could say "Jack Robinson."

THE AGE OF CELEBRATIONS.

This is the age of centennials, bicentennials, tercentennials and ennials of the "sesqui" brand. Massachusetts is out with a celebration of the tercentenary of the founding of the colony afterward designated as New England. Washington is preparing to celebrate, two years hence, the bicentennial of the birth of George Washington and Chicago is organizing a big exposition to celebrate something or other.

It is not exactly a centenary that the people of New Jersey and Pennsylvania propose to celebrate. George Washington, as every schoolboy knows, crossed the Delaware River somewhere in the vicinity of Trenton, and as there happens to be a park on each side of the river near the historic spot New Jersey and Pennsylvania have decided that the two parks ought to be connected by a bridge. To this end they have called on their representatives in Congress to rush through a joint resolution to authorize construction. The bridge will enable many of those who propose to take part in Washington's bicentennial to drive over the very route taken by the immortal George when he paid that informal visit to the soldiers of George III.

To add to the year's festivities the American Tract Society has come forward with a proposition to celebrate the "tercentenary" of the birth of a peddler of tinware named John Bunyan. It would be difficult to find a man or woman of American or English birth with an ordinary common school education who never heard of John Bunyan, for his "Pilgrim's Progress" is perhaps the most widely read of any religious work outside the Bible. The American Tract Society has been distributing that wonderful book for nearly 100 years. The proposed celebration is rather late, however, as John was born in 1628, and not in 1630.

CHARWOMEN WIN.

Harvard University's scrubwomen have won their war. That institution, which prides itself in teaching civic virtue to its undergraduates, was charged with violating the Massachusetts minimum wage law in the employment of its charwomen. There are twenty of these hard working women who had been underpaid for nine years, and when they were discharged last December, following a protest alike from the workers, the alumni and the student body, the war started. Headed by Corliss Lamont, a Harvard alumnus, a group of the alumni undertook to secure from other grads a sum sufficient to pay the charwomen the difference between the wages they had received and the minimum prescribed by the Massachusetts Wage Commission.

But the governing board of the university has apparently seen a light and has surrendered, agreeing to pay "back wages" to the extent of $280 to each of the twenty, or at the rate of 2 cents per hour for each hour she was employed during the nine years in which the board had evaded the law.

Whether or not the women who were discharged last December have been or will be reinstated is not disclosed.

BOBBY WINS, AS USUAL.

When Bobby Jones sank the putt yesterday that gave him victory in the British open golf championship play, he became the first man for 40 years to hold simultaneously both the open and the amateur championships of the British Isles. In addition, Jones is the open champion of the United States. His victory in the British open was achieved against a field composed of the outstanding golfers of two continents. It emphasizes a question that is frequently asked but never answered: Where is the man who can beat Bobby Jones?

SUBMARINES

By Commander HOLLOWAY H. FROST, U. S. Navy.

The submarine problem at London was most complicated and difficult. It proved impossible to bring France into agreement with the other powers. Only after long negotiation did the United States and Japan settle their argument.

At the Washington conference we had a great superiority over Japan in submarines. At that time, therefore, the Japanese delegation accepted the 10-6 ratio, provided they should be allowed as many as 54,000 tons. At Geneva the Japanese asked for increases in both submarine tonnage and ratio. At London they demanded a large tonnage and parity. The actual situation as regards submarines under the 13-year age limit was as follows:

	United States	Japan	Great Britain
Built	59,738	66,627	47,421
Building	5,520	11,870	15,700
Total	65,258	78,497	63,121

Nor did these figures tell the whole story. Of submarines designed and built since the war we had 4, of 8,560 tons, against 31, of 39,359 tons, for Japan. Thus the Japanese had not only achieved parity—they were far beyond it. Nor was there any immediate hope of our rectifying this unfavorable situation. We had only three submarines of 4,470 tons whose construction was authorized. Congress had just shown its attitude on further naval construction by eliminating all of the Navy Department's naval program except fifteen cruisers and one aircraft carrier. The sinking of two submarines had made that type very unpopular throughout the country.

Our delegation was, therefore, confronted by the awkward fact that in a limitation conference possession of the actual ships is nine-tenths of the argument. We ourselves had first advanced this principle of the status quo at the Washington conference. There we demanded parity in battleships because we had the ships. At London the Japanese demanded parity in submarines because they had the ships. The argument was unanswerable. When at Washington the British conceded us something that we already had, we argued that it was not a concession at all. Now when we concede the Japanese something they already have, it looks to us like a big concession. In a limitations conference it does little good to say that Japan should not have so many submarines. The point is that they have them. Our delegation was confronted with a fact—not a theory. And if they wanted a treaty, we do not see how they could ignore that fact and refuse the Japanese demand for parity in submarines.

But such being the case, there were several practical methods of applying the principle of parity. Obviously a figure of 100,000 tons of submarines for United States and Japan would be more advantageous for the latter nation than 10,000 tons each. If we remember that the ratio in other types is between 10-6 and 10-7, it is clear that any increase of the submarine tonnage, where the ratio is 10-10, will increase the ratio of Japan's entire navy to ours. Thus the lower the submarine tonnage, the smaller the actual effect of our concession of parity.

There is another argument for a decrease in submarine tonnage. To illustrate it, take the situation in the North Sea in the World War. The British, being superior in surface craft, kept the sea. The Germans, being inferior, were compelled to keep largely in port. Thus German submarines had plenty of British ships to shoot their torpedoes at, while British submarines rarely found a German target. Under such conditions, which might well be repeated in the future, the use of submarines will strengthen the weaker surface navy at the expense of the stronger. This is particularly the case where the latter has no drydocks to repair torpedo hits.

On the other hand, there are two important reasons why our submarine tonnage should not be reduced too far. First, submarines are vital to the defense of outlying possessions not covered by our fleet. Without submarines any real defense of the Philippines would be impossible. While the Hawaiian Islands and the Panama Canal will usually be covered by the fleet, their importance is so great that local defense should make them impregnable in its absence. Submarines constitute an important part of their local defenses and should be provided. These submarines need not be of the largest types, but they should be able to accompany the fleet and cruise long distances alone. Boats similar to the S-type, of about 800 standard tons, would be satisfactory. The following allotment would be satisfactory: Philippines, 15; Hawaii, 10; Panama Canal, 5; total, 30 boats of 24,000 tons.

Second, the submarine is perfectly suited for operation by Americans. We have the alertness, quick decision, initiative, adaptability and teamwork required for successful submarine operation. Given good boats, we should excel all navies in this work. Therefore, we should have sufficient boats with the United States fleet and at the submarine school to keep our submarine service trained to the minute in all the forms of submarine warfare permitted by international law. These submarines should be of all the various types necessary for a well rounded submarine service. Our nine boats of the V-type will give, when completed, a splendid nucleus. V-1, 2 and 3 are fast fleet submarines. V-4 is a long-radius mine layer. V-5 and 6 are long-radius cruising submarines. V-7, 8 and 9 will be 1,500-ton general service boats—a type now being adopted by all navies. The nine boats total 18,550 tons.

There remain of the 52,700 tons allotted us in the treaty enough to build seven more 1,500-ton submarines. If we place six of them in the fleet it will give us a splendid force of fifteen large submarines. For fleet maneuvers the ten submarines in Hawaii can be added. The one remaining 1,500-ton submarine and the five 800-ton boats for the Panama Canal could be used during peacetime at the submarine school at New London.

Our conclusions are these: First, if we wanted a treaty it was impossible to refuse the Japanese parity in submarines; second, such being the case, the tonnage figure of 52,700 was about the most favorable that could have been selected.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

GOOD INTENT.

Of good intent this can be said:
It must be guided by the head;
The heart within, however kind,
Requires a clear and steady mind,
An eye that sees a purpose through
Or greater harm than good 'twill do.

The havoc by a blunderer wrought
Destroys the kindly goal he sought.
Who burns the house to kill the fleas
Ill-serves the friend he tries to please.
By all this should be understood
It takes a wise man to be good.

Though Folly wear a kindly dress,
Its blunders hurt us none the less;
When good intent makes matters worse
The best of friends his friend will curse.
A foolish angel, sweet and pure,
Adds to the ills she hopes to cure.

Save wisdom with the deed is blent
There is no charm in good intent;
Though good the thought that works us ill
The havoc wrought is havoc still.
In meaning well no splendor lies—
Even an angel must be wise.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:

As you are aware, you have a temper.

It isn't anything to be proud of, nor is it anything to be ashamed of.

People who think temper comes from the devil are just as badly mistaken as those who regard it as an evidence of high-strung and superior breeding.

It is merely a natural and necessary reaction, prompted by a little gland, and primitive man needed it as much as he needed fear.

Normally he was good-humored and not disposed to exert himself a great deal or do anybody or anything an injury.

That disposition kept him out of trouble much of the time, but occasionally he found himself in a situation that required something more than a pleasant personality.

Another man tried to take his dinner or some great cat tried to devour some of his children.

You can see that his normal unwillingness to bestir himself might prove a handicap under such circumstances.

He needed something to stir him up—give him pep—double his strength and make him forget pain.

Fear served him at times, but at other times he would have been lost without the little gland that translated his resentment into a quick and fiery rage and prompted him to hit hard and fast.

Nature provided temper for his salvation, and you inherited your part of it.

You don't need it as he did, and must suppress it to keep from losing your friends and making a monkey of yourself.

Civilization has changed things so much that you must suppress nearly all of your natural impulses and passions to keep out of trouble.

But temper still can serve you if you will use it in moderation.

Almost everything is good in moderation and bad in excess, and temper is no exception.

People who hold their tempers under tight rein—the very patient people—usually have very violent private opinions.

Wrath stores up in them and becomes a grudge—an ever-growing grievance—that embitters their lives, encourages self-pity, warps their minds, and in some instances actually sends them to sanitariums.

The most dangerous thing in life is a suppressed grievance.

When you are offended—feel misused—have your feelings hurt—think you aren't getting a square deal—open the safety valve to let out just enough temper to make your grievance vocal.

Say your say then and there and all will be well.

It probably isn't necessary to say all of this to a red-headed girl, but everybody pouts a little and I'm just warning you of the danger.

Love, DAD.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

GENTLEMEN, THE TARIFF!

Better days are ahead for the American sauerkraut, anvil, alligator pear, firecracker, Christmas tree ornament, pistache nut, belt buckle, artificial fly, oyster juice, canned clam and, last but not least, the black-eyed cowpea industries. The Smalley-Hoot, or rather the Hawley-Smoot, tariff bill has been passed and the United States should now become automatically freed of business depression, droughts, floods, labor troubles, spots before the eyes, chills, fever and sunburn.

• • • •

The duty on all imports of the above necessities of life in the average American home have been increased, and don't forget to include oysters and oyster juices. Oysters and oyster juices have been taken off the free list.

• • • •

Asked to explain the removal of oysters and their juices from the free list, Senator P. Jervis Finchbeek said today: "We owed it to the American oyster. Foreign oysters have been creeping into the country for years."

"Oysters don't creep," the Senator was reminded.

"These did," insisted Senator Finchbeek.

• • • •

"Was there any particular foreign oyster that menaced America?" he was asked.

"The Swiss oyster!" declared the senator. "Congress had secret information that the Swiss are working on an oyster that would have revolutionized the oyster industry. It is the first mountain oyster ever developed. Growing out of water, it would have required no fleets of costly oyster boats and dredgers to harvest. The Swiss planned to flood America with these oysters. Do you know what it would have meant?"

"No."

"Instead of five oysters in a 40-cent oyster cocktail the restaurant man would have been forced to give the customer six!"

• • • •

Study of the tariff bill as passed shows that happier days are ahead, too, for the gill netting and fish seine manufacturers of the United States. Foreign competition has made it pretty tough for the gill netting business. The opera hat, canned clam and belt buckle manufacturers will get a break under the tariff increases, too.

• • • •

Of course, there have been a couple of reductions. Broken glass and glass waste have been cut from 50 to 20 per cent. Umbrella handles of pyroxylin will also come in cheaper, but they are hard to eat.

• • • •

Has nothing on which there was a duty been shifted to the free list? Oh, yes. Yes, indeedy. Truffles, for instance. And buchu leaves, too!

TARIFF IMPRESSION.

(After Lewis Carroll, by a mile.)

'Twas gypsum and the soy-bean oils
Dis cusk and pollock in the cheese;
All chickpeas were the flaxen nolls
And the fishsounds, eggs and tees.

Beware the Hawleysmoot, my son,
The jaws that bite, the teeth that catch,
That boost the tax on venison,
The turnip, oyster juice and match."

The sappikins with sword in hand,
Long time the advalorem sought,
They rested on a grain of sand
And stood depressed in deepest thought.

And as in uffish thought he stood,
The Hawleysmoot with flaming eyes
Came whiffing through the glass and wood
And upped the artificial flies.

One, two! One, two! And through and through
The vorpal blade went snicker-snack,
But there were lacking blades enough to put the creature on its back.

"And hast thou slain the Hawley-smoot?"
"Oh, not a chance; they had the votes
And boosted rates on overshoes,
Cornets and zippers, hay and oats."

Returns from the Chinese war show that nothing but extreme caution by both sides will prevent a battle.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Secretary Adams Shows How the Navy Gives Jack Many Chances for Promotion.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am writing to ask that you set your readers right on a matter treated in your editorial of June 16, "Give Jack a Chance."

The fact is that we do give Jack a chance, many chances, as you will see when I tell you that one hundred appointments to the U. S. Naval Academy are available annually to enlisted men of the Navy who are within the required age limits and who pass a competitive examination similar to that held annually for presidential appointments. The Bureau of Navigation, through special courses and preparatory schools, endeavors to fill this quota each year.

Enlisted men over the age limit for entrance into the Naval Academy, who desire to become commissioned officers, work up through the various petty officer grades to become warrant officers. To line warrant officers, after four years in grade, there are available twelve appointments a year as ensigns, the lowest commissioned grade, upon passing the regular qualifying examination. After receiving commissions as ensigns they are in the same status as regards promotion as ensigns commissioned from the Naval Academy. There have been, and now are, officers in command and lower ranks who were commissioned originally without having graduated from the Naval Academy.

The above mentioned officers, who have reached command rank, have been selected for promotion in exactly the same manner as all other officers in those grades.

Confident of The Post's devotion to the interests of the Navy, and to giving it a fair hearing, I am,

Sincerely yours,
C. F. ADAMS,
The Secretary of the Navy.
Navy Department, June 18.

Senator Howell, a Stalwart Dry, Proposed as Rival of Dwight Morrow for Presidential Nomination—Howell Would Dry Up Embassies.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The victory of Dwight W. Morrow in the New Jersey primary is hailed by the wets as pointing the way to a national test of the sentiment of the country through the nomination of Mr. Morrow for the Presidency in 1932. It seems to me that it is time for the drys, of which I am proud to be one, to be looking about for a dry candidate to lock horns with Mr. Morrow in the quadrennial gathering of the party two years hence. There has been some suggestion of Senator Borah as the standard bearer, but Mr. Borah is no longer a stalwart dry. He shows indications of an "open mind" on the subject of referring the question to the people. But there is one outstanding member of the Senate who has the courage of his convictions.

I refer to Senator Robert B. Howell, of Nebraska. Senator Howell has had the courage to do what no other member of Congress has dared to attempt. Realizing that Canada, as a member of the British Empire, has taken steps to cut off the export of liquor to this republic, he has called the attention of our chief of police to the action of the new British Ambassador in importing large quantities of intoxicants and has urged the Police Department to suppress this unlawful traffic. Senator Howell advocates legislation designed to abrogate the right of members of the Diplomatic Corps to ignore the laws of the United States in the matter of importing, consuming and serving at their tables intoxicating beverages.

Canada is honestly helping to dry up the United States. Why, then, should the representative of Great Britian be permitted to do what American citizens may not do? The antiliquor law should apply to every resident, permanent or temporary, and with Mr. Howell in the White House the laws would be enforced.

E. PLURIBUS UNUM.

Unkempt Condition of Public Reservation at Center Market.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Having heard many derogatory comments on the deplorable condition of the public reservation fronting the Center Market at the corner of Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue, I feel it is my duty, as a native of this city and a tax payer, to call the attention of the municipal authorities to this matter. Where a well-kept lawn is supposed to embellish this little park, the weeds have reached a height of several feet, and many spots are completely barren, indicating that no attention whatever is given to this reservation on the principal thoroughfare of the National Capital and in the heart of the city.

WASHINGTONIAN.

Airplane Noise and Low Flying a Nuisance and Danger to Capital.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Aviators are becoming careless again in flying over Washington. Some years ago it was reported that rigid rules had been adopted by the War and Navy Departments and the Department of Commerce, requiring fliers to avoid flying over cities, when possible, and always to maintain good altitude when flying over inhabited country. If these rules ever existed, they are violated with impunity.

The noise and danger of airplanes add to the public discomfort. With the radio nuisance about to come under the ban, it is time for the Federal departments concerned to put a stop to unnecessary joy rides and low flying over Washington. The shocking annihilation of automobile passengers by an airplane running amuck in Indiana the other day is a warning.

CITIZEN.

And Heimgemacht.

Toledo Blade: This country used to be referred to as a land flowing with milk and honey. A pretty allegory if we keep the mind off clabber and the sticky qualities of honey, but no longer applicable. What the land flows with now is "applesauce."

EUROPE FEDERATION ANSWER SCRAPPED

Observers Think Reply by England Objected to Briand Scheme.

WILL NOT HAVE CHARTER

London, June 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A reply prepared by the British foreign office to the proposal of Aristide Briand, foreign minister of France, for creation of a United States of Europe, contained in a memorandum sent to 26 European states on May 17, has been scrapped by a cabinet committee which has decided, subject to the approval of the cabinet itself, that no reply shall be transmitted to Paris except a formal acknowledgment of receipt of the Briand memorandum.

The rejected foreign office draft, the New York World News Service understands, raised various objections to the scheme and asked France to explain how the plan would not prejudice British relations with the United States, the dominions and the League of Nations. The cabinet committee's rejection to this answer was due to anxiety not to enter into a controversy.

This decision will disappoint Belgium and Germany, whose diplomats have been earnestly seeking to obtain a forecast of the British reply before drafting their own.

Italy Plans Ironical Reply.

Italy, it is understood here, will send an ironical reply inquiring whether the proposed United States of Europe is to guarantee the peace treaty frontiers in the east which are open to objection. This attitude, diplomats here think, is directed toward pleasing Hungary, with which Prime Minister Benito Mussolini is forming a firm friendship. Hungary seeks restoration from Czechoslovakia and Roumania of some of its former territory.

But the Germans profess themselves worried at Italy's reported intention to challenge France on the peace treaty frontiers, because the Germans feel that if Italy, a victor nation, raises this issue German opinion will not tolerate a German reply that does not object to the injustice of the loss of Dantzig and Ilesia. It is recognized that any such reply from Germany would raise a storm in France, although Italian remarks in the same vein might not have the same disturbing effect.

(Copyright, 1930.)

Foreign Minister Aristide Briand's conception of a "United States of Europe," or a "European Federal Union" as the proposed organization is more generally called, is generally regarded as the most ambitious project put forward in world politics since the setting up of the League of Nations more than a decade ago.

28 European States.

As outlined in M. Briand's memorandum of May 17, in which answers were asked from 28 European states by July 15, the character of the federation would be far from the close union that exists among the United States of America. The most suggested for the European union was a type of regular conferences, without charter or constitution.

"In no way," said M. Briand's memorandum, "could the institution of a federal tie between the governments of Europe affect in any way the sovereign rights of states that are members of such an association."

Economic questions are the foremost practical problems with which the projected federation would deal. It would seek to lower the customs walls now separating European countries from each other and also work with the League of Nations toward the ideal of permanent international peace.

German Flotation Attack Answered

Department of State Has Not Disapproved Bond, Says Stimson.

(Associated Press.)

Denial that the State Department had exercised any right to approve or disapprove the proposed flotation of $100,000,000 of German reparations bonds in this country through the International Bank was made yesterday by Secretary Stimson in a message transmitted to the Senate through President Hoover.

Replying to a Senate resolution by Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, asking by what authority the State Department claimed the right to approve or disapprove the proposed bond issue, Mr. Stimson said the department did not approach any closer "to any expression of approval of loans than to say that it interposes no objection to the loan or is not interested in it."

Secretary Stimson said President Harding had expressed informally to American bankers the desire of the Government to be informed regarding contemplated public flotation of foreign bonds in this country but that the department does not require American bankers to consult it, "does not pass upon the merits of foreign loans as business propositions, and does not assume any responsibility whatever in respect of loan transactions."

Work Restrains Hoover From Trip to Rapidan

(Associated Press.)

The press of work again is to prevent President Hoover from making his week-end trip to the presidential camp in Virginia, where Mrs. Hoover has been convalescing for several weeks.

After planning for several days to make his regular fishing trip to the mountains, starting early today and returning tomorrow, the Chief Executive decided yesterday to remain at the White House over the week-end. He was prevented from going to the camp last week by the dinner given to President-elect Prestes of Brazil.

$1,477,800 Total Spent In Pennsylvania Voting

Harrisburg, Pa., June 20 (A.P.).—An unofficial total of $1,477,800 in expenditures in the Pennsylvania primary election campaign was revealed today in the receipt of additional small expense accounts at the State Elections Bureau. From the accounts on file at the bureau, the following totals are shown as spent in behalf of the various principal candidates:

Davis-Brown ticket, $559,027; Senator Joseph R. Grundy, $555,673; Bohlen-Phillips-Dorrance "wet" ticket, $203,716; Gifford Pinchot, $149,182.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

ONE simply can not understand Mr. Alfred Pearce Dennis, of the Tariff Commission. He is reputed to be the best economist on that body, and yet he frequently bobs up in an entirely different role.

One is inclined to look upon a tariff commissioner and especially an economist as something about as romantic or poetic as a flexible provision. Every time the commission comes to mind there is a picture of statistics and men who know how to handle them. One sees the commissioners in a huddle today in their statistical laboratory putting statistical elements together to prove that the tariff bill just passed is only 3 per cent higher than some other bill, or, if the exigency so requires, to prove that it is even 3 per cent lower.

* * * *

BUT Mr. Dennis—there is his piece in this month's World's Work anent Senator Smoot.

The senator was wont to go frequently to the local Zoo, Mr. Dennis writes, where he became very fond of a parrot named Helen. Helen returned the fondness, and it was not an infrequent sight at all to see the senator caressing the bird and the bird sticking its head through the wire to be caressed by the senator.

Then, one day, according to Mr. Dennis, the senator became bold.

"Come, Helen, give me a little kiss," asked Senator Smoot.

Helen is described as rearing back indignantly and saying: "No, no, no—you go to hell!"

* * * *

NOW one can understand why Helen might have refused to kiss Senator Smoot. The parrot is a very ungrateful and ill-mannered bird.

But if that has anything in the world to do with statistics, with the flexible provision or with the difference in production costs here and abroad in order that the Republican dinner pail may be kept filled, then we will eat our hat.

Mr. Dennis not so long ago wrote a most delightful magazine story about his travels over Europe with Senator Brookhart. He described the senator's aversion for a dinner suit or any formal clothes and in general painted a very comical sketch of the senator, which the senator liked so much that only yesterday he complimented Mr. Dennis upon the Senate floor.

* * * *

BUT it seems so strange for such as this to come from the Tariff Commission. It is as incongruous as a music critic working for the United States Daily.

First thing you know Chairman Brossard will feel the urge and give himself over to the writing of drama, something like "The Tragedy of Senator Borah's resolution calling for an investigation of shoes—what became of it?"

MELLON AND WATSON DECLARE TARIFF TO BRING PROSPERITY

I do not mean to imply that the bill is free from defects. No tariff bill is. But this measure at least, by its own terms, provides the means whereby inequalities and errors may be adjusted.

"I look upon the flexible provisions as highly important. I believe that they offer the opportunity not only to correct errors and adjust rates to meet new and changing conditions but that they lay a foundation for a business-like method of tariff revision, free from the pull of sectional and politi-uncertainty. American industries know now where they stand and will, I am confident, adjust themselves without difficulty to new conditions. There seems to be an impression that the new bill makes a sweeping revision upward of existing rates. While it is true that there is a sharp increase in rates applicable to the agricultural schedule, generally speaking, other rates can not be said to have been advanced sufficiently to alter substantially our existing economic position. In fact, only a comparatively few of the major items have been changed. cal interests that seem to make a scientific and well-balanced revision by the legislative body almost impossible.

Should Delay Revision.

"If these provisions are intelligently and courageously applied, they should go a long way towafd making another legislative revision of the tariff unnecessary for many years to come.

"This of itself is of inestimable benefit to business, for there is nothing more unfavorable to prosperity than uncertainty and frequent necessity to adjust economic conditions to legislative enactments.

"In short, it seems to me that the final enactment of the tariff law, far from placing a new obstacle in the way of business recovery, removes one by eliminating the uncertainty of the last fifteen months and by its promise of more businesslike revision in the future makes a definite contribution to business stability."

Bill For Americans Only.

Senator Watson was outspoken about the foreign protests and in his address over a Nationwide hook-up of the Columbia Broadcasting system. He said "let it be remembered that every nation protesting against the passage of this act has raised its own tariff rates within the last twelve years and in multiplied thousands of instances higher than the rates carried in our own law."

"Thus," he said, "while they protest vehemently against our people protecting themselves by a law of this character, they openly and boldly pass more drastic ones themselves. Let us remember that this law was enacted for the benefit of our people, our own country, our own laborers, our own manufacturers, our own farmers and not for the benefit of the citizens of any other country on earth. It is the American policy for which we stand and which has brought our country to its present high position among the nations of the world."

Senator Watson repeated predictions made by the opposition in 1922 when the last tariff law was enacted.

"Not one single thing thus set forth happened in this country, or to our people," he insisted, "as the result of the passage of that act and every single prophecy therein made turned out to be utterly false, refuted by indisputable facts and by the experiences of every American citizen."

Arguments of Denunciation.

His speech continued in part:

"The principal arguments of Democratic orators in both House and Senate during the consideration of the Smoot-Hawley tariff law so recently enacted consisted altogether of denunciation. For over a hundred years that has been the line of argument pursued by opponents of the protective tariff system. Every bill proposed has been 'the most infamous,' 'the most outrageous' and 'the most un-American' law ever enacted on the subject. A Niagara flood of such denunciation marked the passage of the Dingley law, and the Payne-Aldrich law and the Fordney-McCumber law, and precisely the same sort of fusillade was indulged in to a limitless extent during the passage of the law just enacted.

"I want now to take up the Democratic campaign textbook of 1922, the one they used throughout the political contest that year, the one that all speakers took for their information and inspiration throughout that campaign. I want to read from page 22 to show you that the conditions that obtained then, obtain now, and that the Democrats were saying precisely the things then about the law that they are saying now about this law.

Predicts Renewed Prosperity.

"I read: 'The Fordney-McCumber profiteers' tariff bill is the worst tariff bill ever passed by an American Congress.' This is exactly what they have said about every other protective tariff bill ever passed in this country. It is true that many leading Republican newspapers and trade papers, and many prominent Republican business men, have been opposing this tariff, just as they have opposed many tariff acts in the past, but always their predictions have been swallowed up by the prosperity produced by the passage of these acts, just as will occur in this instance.

"Now, as they did eight years ago, they put out mathematical tables trying to prove that increases in the tariff law result in heavy increases in the cost of living, despite the fact that over and over again it has been demonstrated that increased competitive activity within the United States under tariff encouragement, while resulting in more general employment, always has decreased, and not increased, the cost of living. Moreover, our tariff history has demonstrated beyond all peradventure that a protective tariff provides, rather than destroys, the means of earning that living.

"And again we were told in that Democratic Bible that 'this tariff law will work irreparable injury to labor by reducing production and creating a surplus of labor with consequent wage reduction.' And yet the simple truth is that exactly the reverse occurred in every phase of this prediction. Labor instead of being injured was greatly benefited.

"And the last prophecy to which I desire to call attention sums up all the sad conditions and sorrowful situations that will fall upon the American people because of the passage of that law.

"'It will prevent any natural or normal revival of industry or business,' it says, 'and bring about intolerable conditions of living for the American people.' That statement is so fantastical as to be grotesque and one wonders how citizens of the United States at all familiar with the history of the tariff laws of the Nation and their results could possibly have been brought to write such a sentence, or make such a prediction, even under the stress of political battle. Not one single thing thus set forth happened in this country or to our people as the result of the passage of that act and every single prophecy therein made turned out to be utterly false, refuted by indisputable facts and by the experience of every American citizen.

"And yet precisely the same predictions are now being made with reference to the passage of this law and its results. None of them will prove true now.

Earlier in the day, Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, the Democratic sharpshooter on the tariff, had hailed the defeat in the recent New Jersey Republican senatorial primary of Representative Fort, a supporter of the tariff bill. He said that Dwight Morrow, the victor, had given the impression to the Senate finance committee four years ago that he was opposed to the high tariff, and he said Morrow had said nothing for the new tariff bill in his successful campaign.

Senator Harrison said he believed President Hoover feared Mr. Morrow as a presidential opponent in 1932.

M'NIDER WINS POST AS ENVOY DESPITE BROOKHART PROTEST

senators that if he raised such an objection against Mr. MacNider that they would vote against him.

He had many personal objections, however, he said, but as he related them they seemed to be based on nothing more than the fact that he and Mr. MacNider have long been political enemies. The senators began to leave the floor on him as it developed he had no actionable grievance. Then at the conclusion of his remarks Senator Brookhart said:

"My main objection to MacNider is that I have seen him leading drunken revels at American Legion conventions. But if the President wants to appoint a man like that as Minister to Canada, that is his responsibility. I have said my say."

There was a silence in the chamber as Senator Brookhart sat down, about 25 members now being left on the floor. Then Senator Steck, Democrat, and close personal friend of Mr. MacNider, arose.

Mr. MacNider, he declared, used to drink, of course—that is, he would take a drink upon occasions—but he had been a total abstainer ever since he entered public life.

Vote Is Overwhelming.

"All those in favor of the nomination signify it by saying 'aye,'" Vice President Curtis intoned as Mr. Steck sat down.

Every man in the chamber joined in the chorus

"All those opposed," said Mr. Curtis.

"No," said Senator Brookhart all alone, looking up either at the gallery or clock sheepishly as he did so.

Senator Steck in his defense of Mr. MacNider took notice only of the drinking charge and the charge that Mr. MacNider was no friend of the World War Veterans. He related how Mr. MacNider had worked tirelessly for the bonus bill years ago and said that he recalled that when Senator Brookhart and Mr. MacNider had opposing resolutions before the legion convention concerning legislation policy that Mr. MacNider's resolution was adopted and Senator Brookhart's only received three votes.

Previous Attacks Cited.

The rest of Senator Brookhart's narrative against Mr. MacNider, who has served as national commander of the legion and as Assistant Secretary of War, concerned mostly speeches that Mr. MacNider had made against him in various States, describing Senator Brookhart as a Republican traitor, a radical, a Bolshevik, a menace to Iowa and the like.

HANFORD MAC NIDER.

Some of these speeches attacked the Republican regulars, too, for having anything to do with the insurgents at all.

"Are we to think only of winning elections?" he asked in one speech, ridiculing the regulars for catering to the insurgents.

Only a few minutes before Senator Brookhart made his drinking charge he had shown the other side of himself. His remarks were interrupted for the reception to Rear Admiral Byrd and his fellow explorers.

The latter, a sun-and-ice-bronzed contingent, sat in a reserved section of the gallery.

Senator Brookhart readily permitted the interruption and recalled that when the expedition was being organized "a sergeant in my rifle company asked me to arrange for him to make the trip. I wrote Admiral Byrd, and the next I heard from the sergeant was a cablegram from Little America."

Then he turned and waved to a rusty little fellow in the gallery huddle with a lot of marksmanship stripes on his marine uniform. That fellow probably understands Senator Brookhart. Effete Washington does not.

VATICAN DENOUNCES STRICKLAND'S ACTS

Premier of Malta Flayed in "White Paper;" Called Cause of Trouble.

ENVOY'S REPORT CITED

Vatican City, June 20 (A.P.).—Lord Strickland, premier of Malta, on whose life an attempt was made recently, today was charged in a Vatican "white paper" with the onus of all religious difficulties in the Island of Malta.

The white paper, which will be made public Saturday, indicates to the British government that it must deal with Lord Strickland if it would solve the problems concerning which Britain recently issued a "blue book."

Lord Strickland, who arrived in London on June 16 for a conference on the Malta political situation, is charged with taking "the attitude of a good Catholic before the people, declaring himself persona grata at the Holy See, while at the same time continuing his work of opposition to the bishops and clergy."

The white paper refers to the report of Mgr. Robinson, apostolic delegate to Malta, in which it is charged that Lord Strickland is the cause of all the religious difficulties in the island and that all of the disturbance caused by Lord Strickland is "against the best interests of the British Empire."

The paper says "the Holy See declares it could not intervene to deprive Maltese clergy of their rights accorded them by the constitution of the island, which provides even that they have a fixed representation of two places in the Senate."

Bishops, according to the paper, are fulfilling their duty when they "declare to the faithful the obligation they are under not to support by votes any one engaged in activity harmful to religion."

London, June 20 (A.P.).—Exchange Telegraph's dispatches from Malta this evening reported that the constitution had been suspended and the ministry had resigned. They were not confirmed by other sources.

Lord Strickland, premier of the little island and one of the chief figures in the conflict there between church and state, was apprised of the report, but told the Daily Telegraph he knew nothing about it.

Foreign Consuls Clearing Vessels

Taking of Customs Offices in Tientsin by Rebel Causes Action.

Tientsin, China, June 20 (A.P.).—With shipping tied up in this port because of seizure of the customs by Gen. Yen Hsi-Shan, foreign consuls today took matters into their own hands.

British and Japanese consuls issued emergency clearances to vessels under their flags and also gave permits for export and import against acceptable guarantees of payment of duties. The French and American consuls also issued clearances, but did not ask guarantees for duty payments.

In addition to the government customs seized by the Northern rebel chieftain, the native customs also are closed, with the railways refusing to load or unload goods. Travelers in seaside resorts are held up because of their inability to clear their baggage. The customs likewise were closed this morning at Chinwangtao, to the northeast on the gulf of Chihli, but the Kailin mining agent assumed the responsibility of clearing vessels which paid the usual duties.

Meridian Park Name Change Plea in Senate

A resolution to change the name of Meridian Park to Henderson Park, in honor of the late Senator John B. Henderson, of Missouri, was introduced yesterday by Senator Harris (Democrat), of Georgia.

Mrs. John B. Henderson, the widow of the senator, now lives in "Henderson's Castle," near the area. She was largely responsible for the establishment of the park, which is one of the scenic jewels of the city.

WATERWAYS PLANS FAVORED IN SENATE

Estimated Expenditure of More Than $142,000,000 Is Approved.

HOOVER LIKELY TO SIGN

(Associated Press.

Without a record vote, the Senate yesterday approved the House rivers and harbors bill authorizing waterway developments throughout the country with a Federal expenditure estimated by the War Department at more than $142,000,000.

Senator Johnson (Republican), California, who charted the measure's course through the Senate, said after the vote there was every "reason to hope the House will accept the Senate's amendments without conference."

"This would avoid delay in enactment for which there is widespread demand," he said.

The only dissent in the Senate came from Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, who asserted the measure contains "ultimate commitments of between $335,000,000 and $340,000,000."

Statement by Vandenberg.

"It ought to be clearly understood by the country," Mr. Vandenberg warned in the final moments of debate, "that there is no possibility for all the things approved in this measure to be done immediately. Many of the projects authorized are undertaken without final approval of the Army engineers."

Senator Johnson estimated the total appropriations authorized at $122,000,000. The War Department estimated that the House bill carried authorizations of $117,500,000 and that Senate commerce committee added $24,500,000 to it.

The Senate approved all committee additions and wrote in several other items during final consideration on the floor.

Hoover's Attitude Unknown.

President Hoover has not made known his attitude toward the measure—the first major expansion program for waterway improvements in more than three years. It has been said that he desired to keep the total within $60,000,000, but advocates were confident he will approve it.

The way was cleared for a final vote in the Senate by adoption Thursday of a proposal by Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, to limit the amount of water allowed to be taken from Lake Michigan for Federal operation of the Illinois waterway linking the Great Lakes with the Mississippi River. An annual outlay of $7,500,000 would be authorized for this waterway.

Earlier, the Senate commerce committee had composed differences over Federal operation of the Erie and Oswego canals in New York State with a provision that they should not interfere with the development of the St. Lawrence waterway. An annual expenditure of $2,500,000 was authorized for these canals.

Provisions of Bill.

The bill adopts a $98,000,000 project for a 9-foot channel for the upper Mississippi; a $46,000,000 project for the upper Missouri, authorizing $15,000,000 for a 6-foot channel from Kansas City to Sioux City, and $75,000,000 project for the Tennessee River with $5,000,000 expenditure for a 9-foot channel from the mouth to Knoxville River.

Vast harbor and flood control projects in all sections are authorized by the bill, including a $9,000,000 improvement on Lake Okeechobee, Fla., and $29,000,000 improvements for the Great Lakes.

Among items approved yesterday were New York Harbor improvement work, costing $1,000,000; Newtown Creek, New York, improvement, $200,000, and development of the Oakland (Calif.) Harbor, $100,000.

Several additional surveys approved by the Senate include the New York-Delaware River Canal and the Guadalupe River, in Texas.

New Rail System Allowed in West

Joint Construction Right Granted Great Northern and Western Pacific.

Entry of a new transcontinental railroad route into northern California and the San Francisco Bay area was permitted yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission in a grant of authority to the Western Pacific and Great Northern systems for joint construction of 200 miles of new line in that State.

The $14,000,000 project had the bitter opposition of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific systems, which now largely control California rail communication routes.

With practically no modification, the commission order permits the Great Northern Railroad to build southward about 88 miles from Klamath Falls, Oreg., meeting there in northern California an extension of the Western Pacific, beginning somewhere near Paxton, on that road's present main line, and running northward 112 miles. In addition the carriers propose to build a branch 36 miles long to Hambone, in the Siskiyou Mountains.

Catholic Actors Name Brian Head.

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Donald Brian was reelected president of the Catholic Actors Guild of America yesterday. Hugh O'Connell was elected first vice president, William Gaxton, second vice president and Wallace Ford, recording secretary.

INDIAN SCHOOLBOYS STAGE BOMBAY RIOT

Several Youths Seriously Injured When Police Charge With Sticks.

MOSLEM FATALLY CUT

Bombay, June 20 (A.P.).—Extraordinary demonstrations by schoolboys in Bombay's fort area, with the police forced to charge with their sticks to halt disorder, marked the picketing campaign of the Nationalists.

Sixteen demonstrators were injured during the melee, three of them seriously. At the same time two other processions by youths, one of them in front of a large store, were dispersed by the police sticks.

Following upon information that Pandit Motilal Nehru intended to inspect a rally of Nationalist volunteers on the Maidan Esplanade tomorrow, the chief magistrate of Bombay Presidency issued an order prohibiting volunteers from visiting or frequenting the esplanade for two months.

The barracks of Indian infantrymen stationed in Bombay are at one of the esplanade, and the magistrate's order says that the action of Bombay provincial congress volunteers in drilling, exercising and otherwise appearing near the native regiments is of such a nature as to lead to "a breach of the peace, a riot or affray, the immediate prevention of which is desirable."

Rioting between Hindus and Moslems has broken out again in Dacca, and last night one Moslem was fatally stabbed. Some accounts said that two were injured. Police restored order and patrolled the town.

The situation on the northwest frontier is understood to be easier. The Utman Khel tribesmen, who were routed by soldiers near Tangi yesterday, have returned to their homes, while some members of the Haji of Turagnai's force, encamped in caves near Peshawar, are said to be seeking an early opportunity to desert him. The Haji's men have been bombed frequently by the Royal Air Force.

Delayed reports today said that trouble developed in Barisal, Bengal, Tuesday, following a picketing campaign. Four homemade bombs were thrown into a saloon in the Malchiti Bazaar, injuring a bartender and wrecking the interior. Several Nationalist picketers in the vicinity were arrested.

Writers' International Club Opens Session

Warsaw, June 20 (A.P.).—The International Congress of Pen Clubs opened here today with delegates from 26 countries attending. The American representatives are Will Irwin, chairman of the American Pen Club, and Inez Haynes Irwin, vice president of the Authors League of America.

The Congress, meeting in the Diet building, was welcomed by August Zaleski, foreign minister, and Mayor Slonimski, of Warsaw. John Galsworthy will preside.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Capital Fete Is Tendered To Mrs. Byrd

Wife of Explorer Honor Guest at Luncheon at Wild Acres.

By JEAN ELIOT.

A WOMAN who always avoids the spotlight found it centered upon her yesterday—Mrs. Richard Evelyn Byrd, wife of Rear Admiral Byrd, who shared honors with him through all the stirring events of the day, which had their ceremonial climax at the Washington Auditorium last night when the explorer of the Antarctic was presented with the gold medal of the National Geographic Society.

While the trustees of the National Geographic Society were entertaining at luncheon yesterday at the Willard for Admiral Byrd, Mrs. Byrd was guest of honor at a luncheon given by Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor at Wild Acres, her country home. Mrs. Grosvenor is the wife of the president of the Geographic Society, which sponsored Admiral Byrd's journey into the frozen south.

Vice President Curtis headed the list of distinguished officials invited to meet Admiral Byrd and his sister, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, was among Mrs. Grosvenor's guests.

Others in her party were Admiral Byrd's mother, Mrs. Eleanor Bolling Byrd; Mrs. Robert E. Peary and Mrs. Edward Stafford, widow and daughter of Admiral Peary, who discovered the North Pole over which Admiral Byrd flew a score of years later; Miss Rose Greely, daughter of Maj. Gen. Adolphus W. Greely, another distinguished Arctic explorer; Mrs. Mark Bristol, Mrs. Raymond S. Patton, Mrs. John Oliver LaGorce, Mrs. Robert V. Fleming, Mrs. Melville Bell Grosvenor, Miss Carol Grosvenor, Mrs. Paxton Blair, Mrs. Frederick V. Coville, Mrs. C. Hart Merriam and Mrs. John Foote.

Besides Vice President Curtis, the company assembled at the Geographic Society's luncheon in honor of Admiral Byrd included the Italian Ambassador, Nobile Giacomo de Martino; the Minister of Norway, Mr. Halvard H. Bachke; Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, the Acting Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Ernest Lee Jahncke; Senator Hiram Bingham, Senator Arthur Capper, Senator Carter Glass, Senator Claude A. Swanson, Senator Frederic C. Walcott, Representative Louis C. Cramton, Representative Bertrand H. Snell, Representative Allen T. Treadway.

Also former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd, Mr. Harry Byrd, jr., Capt. Thomas Byrd, Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of Smithsonian Institution; Mr. Franklin Adams, counselor of Pan-American Union; Capt. Claud C. Bloch, U. S. N.; Capt. Joel T. Boone, U. S. N.; Rear Admiral Mark Bristol, Mr. Albert H. Bumstead, Dr. George K. Burgess, director United States Bureau of Standards; Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, U. S. M. C.; Dr. J. A. C. Chandler, president of William and Mary College; Rear Admiral Joseph Johnston Cheatham, U. S. N.; Mr. Emanuel Cohen, of New York; Dr. Frederick V. Coville, Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming, chief U. S. Public Health Service; Mr. John Joy Edson, Dr. Charles Hull Ewing, Mr. Franklin Fisher, Mr. Robert V. Fleming, Dr. John Foote, Brig. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, U. S. M. C.; Mr. Edward E. Gann, Brig. Gen. William E. Gillmore, U. S. A.; Dr. J. H. Gore, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d; Mr. Ralph A. Graves, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mr. Melville Bell Grosvenor, Capt. J. F. Hellweg, U. S. N.; Mr. J. R. Hildebrand, Admiral Charles F. Hughes, U. S. N.; Mr. George W. Hutchison, Mr. Neil M. Judd, Mr. Sam Katz, of New York; Dr. Vernon Kellogg, Mr. Sidney R. Kent, Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, Mr. Jesse L. Lasky, Rear Admiral William D. Leahy, U. S. N.; Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, Dr. C. Hart Merriam.

Others present were Dr. John C. Merriam, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, U. S. N.; Dr. E. W. Nelson, the Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of Georgetown University; Mr. Theodore Noyes, Mr. Richard V. Oulahan, Capt. Raymond S. Patton, Judge John Barton Payne, Mr. Herbert A. Poole, Dr. George R. Putnam, Capt. H. H. Railey, Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, Rear Admiral George H. Rock, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, Dr. Carl S. Scofield, Rear Admiral David Foote Sellers, U. S. N.; Dr. William Joseph Showalter, Dr. George Otis Smith, Dr. Philip Sidney Smith, Mr. French Strother, Lieut. H. R. Thurber, U. S. N.; Mr. Charles A. Underhill, of New York; Mr. George W. Wharton, Mr. Maynard Owen Williams, Mr. Ralph D. Williams, Rear Admiral H. E. Yarnell, U. S. N., and Mr. Adolph Zukor, of New York; Mr. Paxton Blair, Mr. Leo A. Borah, Mr. A. K. Mills, of New York; Mr. Charles J. V. Murphey, Mr. Worth E. Shoults, Mr. McFall Kerbey and Capt. Harry A. Baldridge, U. S. N.

Dr. Charles Hull Ewing, who came from Chicago for this luncheon and to attend the great meeting at the Auditorium last night, is accompanied by Mrs. Ewing and they are staying at the Mayflower.

Mr. Ewing is former president of the Geographic Society of Chicago and three years ago presented the Helen Culver medal to Admiral Byrd. He is second cousin of Charles J. Hull, whose old home, now known as Hull House, founded as a settlement house by Jane Addams, recently celebrated its fortieth anniversary. The house was donated to Miss Addams by Miss Helen Culver, Mr. Ewing's aunt, well known through the West for her philanthropic work. The Hull biological laboratories at the University of Chicago were one of her donations.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

ABANDONING the traditional donation of a silver service, the City of Pensacola has presented the officers and crew of the U. S. S. Pensacola, the Navy's newest cruiser, with a centralized radio which places loud speakers in every part of the vessel.

An electric phonograph in the control room also provides music throughout the cruiser and for motion picture shows on the deck. In the sick bay of the Pensacola earphones are installed so that patients may listen without disturbing others.

The description of Uncle Sam's military forces in action on Soldier Field, Chicago, will be given through WJZ's network at 9 o'clock tonight.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will speak over a Nation-wide network tomorrow morning (WMAL, 10:30 a. m.) from London.

JAMES WALLINGTON, who announced the Gettysburg program on Memorial Day, had a taste of real Civil War travel. He rode from Baltimore to Gettysburg on a tomato train.

Wallington arrived nearly an hour late—a serious offense for any announcer.

The chains seem to be hard pressed when one has to broadcast a pillow fight and the other a marble game.

We are not among those subscribing to the theory that the new feature, "Uncle Abe and David," supposedly a dialogue between two New England country store cracker-barrel orators, is being put on just ahead of "Amos 'n' Andy," beginning Monday evening (WRC, 8:45 o'clock), because the latter are "slipping." We believe that "Amos 'n' Andy" are as popular as they ever were and the NBC is simply cashing in on the valuable time ahead of their skit when the audience is waiting around to hear how things are going with the Fresh Air Taxicab Co.

The new sketch will be welcomed by "Seth Parker" listeners, as it will be written by "Seth" (Phillips H. Lord), who will take one of the parts. The other will be played by Arthur Allen, who contributed New England characterizations to "Boconyland Sketches."

Cupid was in command at Station WMAL yesterday afternoon, when Herbert A. Wadsworth, chief engineer, was married to Miss Elizabeth Shores.

NOT since the night Vice President Dawes exploded at WRC has there been such an exciting broadcast as when Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, fired back, over Columbia, at Secretary Stimson in the radio London peace treaty battle. As Senator Johnson warmed up he began shaking his finger at the microphone, then opening and closing his fists as in his Senate oratorical gesticulations. Finally, however, he almost poked out the eye of the microphone.

Where an ordinary person speaks at the rate of a hundred or so words a minute, Senator Hiram Johnson began hitting it off at about 180 words a minute. The reason for this was that he feared his time—which at his request had been extended from 22 to 27 minutes—would not permit concluding.

To guard against this, he had written out his address, which he read, also quite an accomplishment under the exciting circumstances, and stopped speaking almost on the second—allowing the announcer 30 seconds to sign off.

Senator Johnson was described as not being angry during the broadcast—as it sounded over the air—but very earnest and tremendously affected by the subject under discussion.

Have you heard Pa Brown and his Brownies sing and play their hillbilly and mountaineer songs? (WJSV, tonight, 9 p. m.) Or songs such as "May I Sleep in Your Barn Tonight?" and the "Baggage Coach Ahead."

A bouquet (with a string attached) will probably be presented by Senator Pat Harrison next Tuesday night (WMAL) 7:30 p. m.) to Senator Watson, in response to the latter's radio remarks on the tariff.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

COOKED DRESSING FOR MEAT AND VEGETABLE SALADS.
(Bureau of Home Economics.)

2 whole eggs, or four egg yolks.
¼ cup vinegar.
1 tablespoon butter.
5 tablespoons cream cheese.
½ teaspoon sugar.
½ teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon mustard.
⅛ teaspoon paprika.
3 drops tabasco sauce.

Beat the eggs and vinegar together until smooth. Cook the mixture in a double boiler and stir constantly until the consistency is that of thick cream. Remove at once from the heat, add the butter and cream cheese and stir until the mixture is smooth. Then add the cream and the seasonings. The cream cheese may be omitted and more cream, either sweet or sour, used in its place. These ingredients will make about one cup of dressing.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Blouses to wear with your tailored suit, and then a skirt that matches the blouse to make it a sports dress! (A Dahray Idea.)

Paris, June 20.

BUTTON, button, who wants a button! Off a blouse or on a blouse we don't care, but of course if they are good blouses and nice new blouses they'll be on the blouse for the time being.

You know, I never was so sold on blouses as I have been this year. But after you see them on everything and in everything, and see how interesting and youthful and intriguing they are, you can't help but get interested in them.

And then it occurred to me that there really wasn't any reason why the blouse that you wear with your tailored suit either to business or for morning walks couldn't have a skirt to match it in color and material, and why this matching skirt wouldn't make a very smart one-piece sports dress out of this blouse for that week-end trip to the country or the summer resort for which you just don't want to buy a lot of clothes that you can't wear later in the season!

How's that for an idea? There are three blouses sketched today which lend themselves perfectly to being turned into dresses with a matching skirt

* * * *

See the blouse on the left with its novel neckline, and its hip shirring which molds it to the figure? Well, I thought you might like to know how to make this, since it is tricky to cut that neck, so I sat down and figured it out for you, and then wrote a leaflet telling you how to make it and the separate high-waisted skirt which goes on over it and makes a smart summer of it. Isn't that one of the slickest ideas we've had for a long-g-g-g-g-g-g time? Well, you'll never know how smart it is until you send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet showing you how to make it.

* * * *

By the way, that blouse and separate skirt idea is particularly apropos at the moment for afternoon wear. Worth shows many dresses in his new collection, both for town wear and out of town wear, which are one-piece dresses to be sure but have a top of the blouse of one color and the skirt of another color, and seeming like a blouse and skirt.

* * * *

Member those scrumptious bloomers I told you how to make last year, of only a yard of material? And then 'member the lingerie shorts we made later out of half a yard of material? And 'member that each of these very ingeniously fashioned garments were cut in a certain way on the bias so that there could not possibly be a single wrinkle under your smart tight-fitting hip dresses? Well, I just thought you might like to see the directions for making them both altogether in one leaflet, so that's just what they're in! And if you'd like the leaflet you just have to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, today, because there are only a few leaflets left—No more after today.

* * * *

For Him.

The smartest shirt for his full dress is linen, finely pleated, and has only one button, square. For his tuxedo, his shirt is pique and has two buttons. Both his dress shirt and his shirt for smoking have very open collars.

And his evening scarf will be nothing else but white silk and handkerchief shaped!

* * * *

By all means look in the big Sunday Washington Post tomorrow for the weekly Dare fashion letter. We know you'll enjoy it.

Au revoir!

One day I trapped a Goofus Winx
And wondering what such Goofus thinks
I offered a penny for his thoughts;

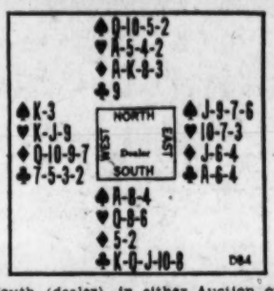
WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)

Today's hand is given to show the fatal result of failure to set up an easy and essential entry in dummy. With the cards distributed as follows:



South (dealer), in either Auction or Contract, would bid one Club; West would pass, and North would bid one No Trump (Auction) or three No Trumps (Contract). So in either game North would be the Declarer playing to take nine tricks.

East would make the original lead of the fourth best card of his only long suit (Spades). South (dummy) would play small, and West would win with the King and return his remaining Spade. At this point of the play declarer would be called upon to exercise a little thought in order to insure an entry for the running of South's Clubs.

A Declarer who was not looking far enough ahead might play a small Spade from North, knowing that dummy could win with the Ace and that North could win two Spade tricks by keeping Queen-Ten if East should be obliged to lead Spades later. There is no apparent way, however, in which East can be forced to lead Spades again, and consequently no benefit is apt to result from keeping the Queen-Ten together. Before playing from North to trick 2, Declarer can see that he will take two Spades, one Heart and two Diamonds; this is a total of five tricks, and four more are needed for game. These can be made in the Clubs if South's Ace of Spades is retained as an entry until his Clubs are established. Without that entry, there would be no certainty that Declarer would take a single Club trick; and without several Club tricks the chance of game would be extremely remote. Therefore the Queen of Spades should be played on trick 2, and the Club Nine led to trick 3. South would cover the Nine and continue the suit until the adverse Ace is forced out. After that South gets in again with his Spade Ace to cash whatever Clubs he has left and Declarer makes four Club tricks, two Spades, one Heart and two Diamonds.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"GERMINI."

IF June 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m., from noon to 1:30 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 9:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 5:30 a. m. to 6:50 a. m., and from 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.

Events which will improve your life generally, are predicted for this date. Success found in well-trod paths. Benefits through strangers. Very benefic influences in force after sunset, which especially favor the young and romantic.

Children born on this June 21 will have many sterling qualities—reliability, honesty, industry and sincerity. They will have a fighting spirit and prodding ambitions. An adventurous life is their destiny.

It would be impossible for you to have a sleek, plump, easily contented life, because you are hard to please. You are dissatisfied over your possessions, because you place them mentally against the very finest that exist. Your heaven is not easily attainable—your reach exceeds your grasp. You do not shun the responsibility of selection and rejection. You would have a cosier life if you were satisfied with less both from yourself and others, but not as fruitful as deep, or as big a one. You can not be an "it-does-not-matter," or a "I-don't-mind," sort of person. As one of the human pack, you prefer to be a goat and not a sheep. You are not afraid to leap away from your herd companions, and to wander among the hills of life alone. You are not afraid to stand up for your inner choice, right or wrong. You are not afraid to adapt individual leadership in thought and action but prefer to follow a bolder lead. Facts and figures, are not fancy and fiction, lead and direct you. You have a most methodical, analytical and precise mind. You appear to more advantage in the family circle than in public life, for here the softer, affectionate side of your nature is glimpsed. You are rather stern, but re a sticker for justice, and not afraid to admit your own errors. If you are critical of others, you are far more so of self.

Successful people born June 21:

1—Daniel D. Thompkins—A Vice President of United States.

2—Morris K. Jesup—Merchant and philanthropist.

3—Sanford F. Bennett—Physician and song writer—"The Sweet By and By."

4—Henry Holden Huss—Musician.

5—Daniel Carter Beard — "Dan Beard," artist and author.

6—Henry Guy Carlton—Author and playwright.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

WHAT is kerosene emulsion?

MR. JOHN F. T.

Kerosene emulsion is the standard remedy against all sucking insects such as plant lice, plant bugs, scale insects and the like and is of value against the other soft-bodied insects which can not for different reasons be poisoned by Paris green and similar insecticides. The best form of ordinary use is the kerosene-soap emulsion, made by combining two gallons of kerosene, one-half pound of whaleoil soap or one quart of soft soap with a gallon of water. The soap should be dissolved in boiling water and then poured while still warm (away from the fire) into the kerosene. The mixture should then be stirred violently. When the mixture is the consistency of cream it is ready to be bottled. Properly prepared, the mixture will keep indefinitely and should be diluted only as needed for use. For most insects, except scale or bark lice, the staple emulsion should be diluted with from fifteen to twenty parts of water.

Please tell me how to increase my stock of day lilies.

MRS. GEORGE F. O.

The division of the root clumps is the easiest method of propagating day lilies. Some plants produce seeds which grow readily if planted soon after the seeds ripen.

Please tell me whether to plant mertensia in sun or shade. I expect to have some given to me and have had no experience with this plant.

BETTIE J. K.

The Virginia cowslip (matensia) does best in a rich, deep, loamy but moist soil. While most of the growth of this plant occurs before the leaves are out, which means that it is made in the sun, the plant should be naturalized in a shady place. This plant in its native habitat grows in the damp woods.

Please tell me the correct name and the care of the plant of which I am inclosing a leaf. MRS. E. McD.

Your plant is a maranta, likely the vanderheckei variety. The maranta requires a rich soil and a great deal of moisture, heat and fresh air.

Please tell me how to care for a primrose. It was purchased in full bloom in March, now the flowers are gone and the leaves are turning yellow on the edges. Should I remove the dead flower stems?

MRS. MARIE H.

Remove flower stems and any wilted leaves and set the plant in a sunny place on your porch. Water it every day and keep the surface soil in the pot quite loose. Had you removed the flower stems as they faded the plant would probably not have stopped blooming so soon. The fresh air and plenty of water will cause it to spring into new growth.

Please tell me the name of a preparation which is said to kill out worms. I had the name of this insecticide, but now that I want to buy it and have to order it by mail I can not find the name.

HELEN J. K.

If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to send you the desired information. We can not publish names and addresses in this column.

Please tell me what to do to check mildew, which has attacked my phloxes. MILDRED N. L.

Dust the plants while damp with dew or just after they have been watered with powdered sulphur. Or, if it seems easier, you may spray them with Bordeaux mixture.

EGG NOODLE DATE PUDDING.
Serves 4 to 6 People.

1 package egg noodles.
¼ cup butter.
¼ cup sugar.
1½ tablespoons flour.
2 eggs.
½ cup chopped dates.
½ cup chopped English walnuts.
1½ cups milk.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
¼ teaspoon salt.

Parboil the noodles for 5 minutes in 4 quarts of rapidly boiling water, to which 1 tablespoonful of salt has been added. Drain. Cream the butter, add the sugar, flour, well-beaten eggs, dates, nuts, milk, vanilla and salt. Blend the cooked noodles into this mixture, place in a well-greased baking dish, set in a pan of water and bake in a moderate oven for 40 minutes. Serve with lemon or hard sauce.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Evils of Alimony.

DEAR MISS M'DONALD: I would like space in your column to say a word about the evils of granting alimony to light-minded women who make a business of collecting it.

In 1920 I married in the best of faith a good-looking young woman on short acquaintance. On several occasions I was called upon to defend her character. At last I had to acknowledge that the things said were true. But through a sense of obligation I supported her though separated, to my sorrow. For she brought suit in another State on grounds of desertion. She won, and for my chivalry I was ordered to pay alimony of $100 a month. In 1922 she had this increased to $140 a month. In 1924 I married again, and have to live entirely below my former standards because of the demands of the law.

Now I have just learned for the first time that this girl had been married before, in California, when she was 19 years old, and had sued that man also and received a lump sum in alimony. What I am getting at is the terrible injustice of letting these prowling females get away with their plundering. Not only did she deceive me with regard to the former marriage, but also in regard to the fact that she owned property in California and that her "parents'" home was in reality part of her holdings there. Now, why should I be paying that woman $140 a month, when I have a real wife and child to support? It makes a man suffocate with rage to think about it.

Yet what can a man do in this land of the free, where only women are free and men are born slaves, live slave and die and are buried slaves and nothing more.

"ALIMONY SLAVE."

Why do you not see a lawyer? Write to the Alimony Payers' Protective Association, 152 West Forty-second street, New York City, and state your case. They are trying to effect legislation that will protect men from unscrupulous women and they have legal service for members. I am an honorary member, I believe, so tell them that I crave their consideration for your case. Unless you are a man of considerable means, the alimony you are paying is excessive anyway, where no child is involved. Write to the association. You will hear from them promptly.

WORKMEN REMOVE SENATE DIAL PHONES

lution offered by Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, under which dials would be removed only from offices of those senators opposed to them.

So far as Senator Glass was concerned, he seemed ready to let the Tydings substitute go through. But yesterday, when the Maryland senator sought to get action on his measure, a new antidial senator arose.

He was Senator Dill (Democrat), of Washington, who offered the sole objection that was necessary to block action on the resolution.

"Today is the last day on which action may be taken," Senator Tydings declared. "If the resolution as proposed is going to be adopted later, it is a pity to require the telephone company to go to all the trouble of removing dial telephones tomorrow and then have the dial system again installed later. It will be a sheer waste of money."

Senator Tydings said that a large number of Senate employes had told him that they wished the dials retained.

Here Mr. Dill arose.

"Ever since this resolution was proposed," the Washington senator said, "the telephone company has had men around the Senate lobbying with senators and their secretaries to get this very thing done.

"In other words, they have taken th position that they are not going to take the dial telephones out. If this resolution is going to be considered, it will have to be discussed. It is not the regular order, and I object."

That was all that was necessary to block its consideration.

Three Southwest Banks Robbed by Holdup Men

Kansas City, June 20 (A.P.).—Three banks were robbed in the southwest at almost the same hour today. The holdup men escaped in each case. About $2,000 was taken from the First National Bank of Towanda, Kans., 25 miles northwest of Wichita. Mrs. Sybil Stearns, cashier, and a customer were forced to lie on the floor, while two men rifled the vault.

The First National Bank of Paden, Oklahoma, was robbed of approximately $2,000 by three men who fled in a motor car, after locking the cashier and bookkeeper in the vault. An unmasked man held bank employes and customers at bay with a revolver at the State Bank of Ferrelview, Mo., near Kansas City, while he scooped up all the loose currency and change in the cashier's cage. He drove away with a companion, who waited outside the bank.

Chicagoans Half Way To Air Endurance Mark

Chicago, June 20 (A.P.).—Kenneth and John Hunter tonight continued a flight which they hoped would carry them beyond the 420-hour world's endurance airplane flight record.

The brothers passed the half-way mark at 10:40 a. m. today, and at 4:40 p. m. (central daylight time) had been aloft 216 hours or nine days. They said in notes to their two brothers, who handle the refueling plane, that the plane was functioning perfectly.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

THOSE who attend the Earle Theater this week will encounter the same sort of pleasant surprise as greeted the audiences that turned out to pay friendly tribute to another Mexican actress who made an earlier week of personal appearances in the Capital.

Like Dolores Del Rio, Armida, star of Gus Edwards' miniature revue that opened yesterday at the Earle, gains tremendously by being seen and heard in person. Her beauty, youthful vivacity and effective coloring have only partially been encompassed by the cameras, and while the microphones have been kind to her slender little voice they have not greatly magnified its purity or charm. She was received with enthusiastic acclaim by yesterday afternoon's first crowd.

There are numerous endowments in the sum total of Armida's equipment for a successful stage career that have not as yet, to the best of my knowledge, been disclosed upon the screen—in a fragmentary sort of fashion, perhaps yes; in their entirety, emphatically no. Her outstanding superiority, it seems to me, is as a dancer. Her Spanish castanet dances surpass anything she has ever been permitted to do for the silver sheet.

A tiny, but dynamic and arresting, young woman, Armida.

However, it is not entirely due to this sprightly young Mexicana that some of us old-timers find especial interest in the stage portion of the Earle's current bill. Old Uncle Gus Edwards himself remains a consummate showman in the manner of his presentation of youthful talent.

Old Uncle Gus has been around a long time now, man and boy, and the temples are greying a little and the voice isn't quite so powerful and resonant as once it was, but the master judge of kid ability still is the daddy of them all in his highly specialized field. You probably got some such notion as this from his contributions to the "Hollywood Revue."

Just how much the stage and screen owe to Gus Edwards—and how long they have owed it—may be suggested by a mental review of the present-day stars who began under his protective auspices in the famous kid acts he produced for the two-a-day, when vaudeville was vaudeville. Georgie Price, Georgie Jessel, Lila "Cuddles" Lee, Eddie Cantor, Zddie Buzzell and Walter Winchell are a few names that spring quickest to mind from among the lot.

Good old Uncle Gus!

And if you think the opening of "With Byrd at the South Pole," the screen record of the expedition to Antarctica, released by Paramount-Publix, contemporaneously with the return, and the public honoring, of Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd is merely a coincidence, you are just not quite as bright as I thought!

This "Florodora Girl" business of Marion Davies, at the Palace, isn't any help to some of us who are trying to kid the census taker, either. For example, I am reminded that this column went to see the original "Florodora" at the Casino Theater, New York—then pretty well "uptown"—the night before it sailed for San Juan, Porto Rico, the first time.

Laugh that one off. I've tried to and can't!

There comes to hand a reminder that June is still "Family Month" in the Warner Brothers' local theaters. The week beginning tomorrow has been designated "Graduates' Week" and special concessions at the box office are to be made to all and sundry who can produce a nice, fresh sheepskin.

Speaking of reminders, don't let it slip the memory that complete reviews of all the new motion-picture bills now appear every week in The Sunday Post, instead of Monday's.

When you see "With Byrd at the South Pole," at the Columbia, you may catch a glimpse of the Washington men who accompanied this intrepid young explorer on his epoch-making trip. They are Kennard F. Bubier, aviation mechanic; Victor Czegka, machinist; E. J. Demas, aviation mechanic; Malcolm P. Hanson, radio operator, and Charles E. Lofgren, personnel officer.

Joseph Ruckner, one of the cameramen with the expedition "down under," says that, believe it or not, a bucket of hot water thrown into the air at a temperature of 70 degrees below zero will freeze into hailstones before it hits the ground. In fact, it freezes so fast that when the hailstones come down the ice is still hot!

Well, I hope that maniac doesn't put you on his chain-letter list.

French Quit Rhine Quietly; Germans Stay Celebrations

Bells Are Stilled for Hours After Occupational Troops Move Out; Paris Impress Firmly Planted on Women of River Territory.

Mayence, June 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—In withdrawing their last army of occupation from German soil, the French are not causing a ripple of disturbance to the normal life of the Rhineland cities. They do not hold impressive farewell parades, despite insistence of ultranationalists in Paris, who demand that the Germans be given a last reminder of French military power. The troops are marching home quietly.

As a return show of good faith for Germany's prompt ratification of the Young plan, Gen. Guillaumat, commander in chief of the Army of the Rhine, has decided to speed up the evacuation so that the last French pollu will be off German soil ten days before the date scheduled by the French Parliament.

The cities of Worms, Ludwigshafen, Germersheim, Neustadt and Zweibrucken already have been cleared, also the districts surrounding them. Mayence, where the French general headquarters are located, will be the last to be evacuated. This will occur this evening and no ceremonies will accompany the act, which will write "finis" to that section of world history which commenced in August, 1914.

Fifty thousand men have crossed the Rhine homeward bound since June 1, when Premier Tardieu gave the order of evacuation. Roughly, another 50,000 are to follow. Last minute attempts by the Nationalists in Paris to halt the retreat because they maintain that evacuation means removing the last pressure off Germany, have been unsuccessful. The Tardieu ministry feels that nothing will lead quicker to a complete reconciliation of the two former enemy nations than to remove the display or menace or force.

Paris is preparing for an invasion of German "Maedchen" just as soon as the evacuation is behind, for the influence of the French occupation is most clearly seen in the women of the Rhineland. They have acquired French fashions and are absolutely distinct, so far as dress is concerned, from the German women a few miles farther inland where the French army did not put in an appearance, or rather where the wives of French officers and N. C. O.'s did not show themselves.

In the case of the evacuation of Worms, the Germans did not begin to celebrate until the French troops had been away for hours. In Worms the French tricolor was hauled down at 5 p. m.

Immediately thereupon hundreds of workmen got busy fitting the facades of buildings with colored electric bulbs. At midnight the city was blazing with light, and the population walked to the town square, where a service of commemoration of the German war dead was held. It opened with the massed bands and choral societies singing, "I Had a Comrade Once."

After a few minutes of silence, all the bells of Worms began to peal like mad. The same procedure of rejoicing over the liberation of the ancestral soil will be followed in Mayence, after which the official name of the city will become Mainz again.

All Germany will take a whole week of rejoicing in the late summer, when President Hindenburg will visit the Rhineland, which he has not seen since 1918.

New York Court Backs Jail Terms for Reds

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—The Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court today affirmed without opinion the conviction of William Z. Foster, Robert Minor, Joseph Lester, Harry Raymond and Israel Amter, Communist leaders, who were found guilty of unlawful assembly as a result of the Communist demonstration in Union Square, March 6.

Lester has served his thirty days in jail. The other four are serving indeterminate penitentiary sentences on Ward's Island.

Man Held in Connection With Dry Agent's Death

Goldsboro, N. C., June 20 (A.P.).—Jim Aldridge, 30, of La Grange, was held in the Wayne County Jail today in connection with the slaying Tuesday of P. L. Flinchum, prohibition agent. Sheriff W. D. Grant refused to say what connection he thought Aldridge had with the shooting.

Mr. Flinchum was shot when he and three other officers pursued an automobile they suspected to be loaded with whisky.

GENERAL ELECTRIC RADIO SHOWN HERE

STORE DISPLAYS SOON

There was a preview last night of the new General Electric radio set at the Press Club Auditorium for about 200 dealers from the District, Virginia and North Carolina, dinner guests of the National Electrical Supply Co. Frank N. Chase extended the welcome.

Three models of the new set which has nine tubes, including four screen grids, were shown—a highboy, lowboy and phonograph combination, the last two being supplied with tone control. About 25 dealers have been selected for Washington, and they will each have a demonstration set by July 1. The actual sale of the receivers will begin within the next two months.

"Although the announcement that the General Electric would manufacture its own set was comparatively recent," said McClesky Garlych, newly appointed field representative for the General Electric in Washington and surrounding territory, "the decision was made two years ago.

"It is a fact that before a single set was turned out the General Electric spent $20,000,000 in radio research, for, as you know, up to the time the R. C. A. took it over themselves, our company manufactured their radiolas.

"With the exception of tube replacement, the servicing of the G. E. sets will not cost the purchaser a cent."

In connection with the set, a remote control device will be sold whereby a listener in a bedroom may start or stop a set in the living rooms and have a selection of six stations.

Al Sanger, of Philadelphia, was the toastmaster at the dinner. The speakers were C. H. Griffith, of Philadelphia, Atlantic States General Electric supervisor; O. D. Street, Vice President Lord and Thomas; and Logan, New York, and H. L. Hamilton, of Washington.

WHO'ZIT?

("WHOZIT?" is a test of your knowledge of history and current events. The statements below describe a character whom you should be able to identify. Match your knowledge and memory against those of your friends.)

1. He lived since the discovery of America.

2. He was not an American, but he ruled over a nation which held possessions in what is now a part of the United States.

3. His court was noted for its splendor and extravagance.

4. His conception of his powers was summarized in the famous statement "I am the state."

THE GIRL IN THE AIR . . .

BY JULIE ANNE MOORE

SYNOPSIS.

Janet Decker: Eighteen, with closely cropped head of burnt gold and a pair of very large and very quizzical eyes.

Fred Turner: An automobile mechanic, sadly soft on Janet.

Henry Frenda: A clerk in the office of the Great Eastern Air Tranportation Co., and Fred's chief rival.

Bernice Terrell: Employed at Cooney's Laundry and Janet's best friend.

Hugh Temple: An official and pilot of the Great Eastern.

Dick Tolbert: Son of Richard C. Tolbert, president of the Great Eastern.

Belter: Office manager for Great Eastern.

Miss Sears: Dick Tolbert's secretary.

Janet is fired from the Peerless Employment Bureau for kissing Fred Turner in the office. She obtains a job as flying secretary to Richard Tolbert, president of Great Eastern. To obtain clothes, she borrows $100 from Henry Frenda, who gives her a book on aviation and tells her of a mysterious and wealthy lumberman, who is boarding at his mother's house near the airport.

Dick Tolbert takes Janet for her initial ride in the Postman, a small monoplane. Janet is strongly drawn to Dick, and on the way back she lets him take her in his arms and kiss her, while the plane, pilotless, falls.

Hugh Temple, who has taken a friendly interest in Janet, sees the lovemaking episode, and is furious at Dick for having so carelessly risked the lives of himself and Janet. Temple tells Dick that Helen Morgan had called up while they were riding. Janet asks Temple who Helen Morgan is, and Temple says she is Dick's fiancee. Janet is crestfallen, for Dick had intimated that he was in love with her.

Tolbert, sr., with Janet as secretary and Temple as pilot, carry a huge shipment of cash by plane to New York. When they arrive, the armored car, which was supposed to have met them, is not there. Temple suggests that Tolbert and Janet go on into the city to their hotel and he will remain with the cash and plane until the armored car arrives. When Janet and Tolbert reach the hotel, they find a phone call. Tolbert learns that Temple, the plane and the shipment of cash have strangely disappeared.

She had dreamed of her beautiful moment in the plane with Dick Tolbert.

CHAPTER VII.

At first inclined to laugh at what seemed to her a most ridiculous report, it gradually came to Janet that Tolbert was accepting the statement of the field authorities without question. Temple really had disappeared. And with him Susie, the amphibian, and with the two the mysterious package.

But how? Where? They had left him standing just outside the open door of the plane, one hand resting against the fuselage, the other, holding his log, waving them a gay farewell. "Don't wait dinner on me," he had called after them as they started across the field in search of a taxi. "I'll be along as soon as possible, but that bloody truck may be an hour getting here."

Hurrying to keep up with Tolbert, Janet had smiled back over her shoulder, catching one last glimpse of Hugh as he watched them go. A thin glow, drifting in from the borders of the field, hung about the man and the plane. But when they had come to the edge of the field and Janet had glanced back, she could see nothing behind her but a grotesque design of shadows.

"There's nothing to do but go back to the field, of course," Tolbert said at last.

"If it's none of my business, I hope you'll tell me so, Mr. Tolbert," Janet told him boldly; "but I'd like to know what you're thinking happened to him."

Tolbert looked at her suddenly as if she had been a child. "It isn't fair to drag you into all this, Miss Decker," he told her kindly. "Your first day with the Great Eastern and—and everything upside down. I don't know what's happened to him. Frankly, I haven't tried to think of an explanation. All I know is that we've run into an uncommonly large amount of trouble lately. Sometimes I'm inclined to think there's an organized air banditry conspiring to put us out of business."

When he had gone, Janet went back to the desk, registered for the three rooms Tolbert had reserved by telephone from the field that morning, and instructed the clerk to refer all callers and telephone messages for Tolbert to her. Then she followed the shiny-faced, uniformed boy who had taken her bag when they first entered the hotel.

Her room, on the fifteenth floor, opened on a court, away from the noise of the street, and was so elaborately appointed that she was afraid the clerk had made a mistake and given her Tolbert's room. She suggested as much to bellhop.

"No madam," the youngster replied with a great show of courtesy; "the gentlemen have rooms on the next floor." He busied himself with the nothings for which bellhops are famous and prepared to leave.

The strain of her first twelve hours as a flying stenographer had brought on an aching fatigue. She strutted about the room a few minutes in an effort to enjoy the novelty of its amazing luxury, then slipped out of her dress and fell across the bed to rest. Tolbert would be back in an hour or two, she thought, and she would be ready to go down on a few minutes notice in case he called for her.

When she awoke, the room was flooded with light. She slipped quickly off the bed and looked at her cheap little wrist watch. It was half-past 8.

She wondered if Tolbert had tried to rouse her the night before and she had failed to hear the telephone. She hadn't thought she was so tired, but the last thing she could remember was Dick Tolbert's face very close to her own. After that she had dreamed of him, of their ride over Waterbury, and their beautiful moment as the Postman plunged toward the field, unchecked by the arm that was about her.

Little straps dropped from her shoulders, and her slip fell in a ring about her feet. Quickly she stepped out of her pink panties and ran to the back-and-white-tile bathroom that opened just behind the hall door.

The cold shower was a new and delightful experience. It sent little chills up and down her spine and then filled her with a new energy. Out of the shower she caught up a heavy bath towel and rubbed her lovely body into a pink glow.

Tolbert called as she brushed her short, brown hair into place, and, 5 minutes later, greeted her as she came out of the elevator.

"What a picture you are!" he declared with feeling. "Really, it's as good as a stimulant to look at you, Miss Decker. Did you sleep well?"

"Too well, I'm afraid," Janet confessed. "Did you learn anything important at the field?" she asked anxiously.

He shrugged his shoulders easily. "There was nothing to learn beyond what I already knew, I'm afraid," he told her. "Neither Temple nor the amphibian was there. We'd better have breakfast now, I think. I'll spend the morning with detectives, I suppose, and you'll be on duty here again in case any one calls."

"I wish," Janet said earnestly as she followed him to the dining room, "I could get out of here and do something. I feel as helpless as an armless drummer."

"You're doing your share, Miss Decker," Tolbert replied. "It's important that one of us be here, for the present anyway, and you couldn't very well talk to the detectives for me. I've had a great deal of experience in that line lately."

Half an hour later Tolbert left her in the lobby with instructions to ask for what she wanted and have everything put on his bill. She decided immediately that she would ask for nothing and that his bill would never include anything for her that he did not himself put on it.

With change from her own little purse, she purchased a magazine and dropped into the deep recess of a great overstuffed leather chair to read. Men and women paraded by her.

And then some one was standing before her and a familiar voice was saying: "The flying stenographer engrossed in literature——"

Dick Tolbert, laughing happily, caught her outstretched hand and pulled her gently to her feet. "Are you as surprised as all that?" he asked seriously. "You knew we were coming on today, didn't you?

"I did not," Janet declared. "Who's we; bring some one with you?"

"Helen Morgan and her mother," he said simply. "Come on, I want you to know them; they're on the mezzanine."

Janet strained her imagination for a reasonable excuse. "I don't think I better, Dick. You see, Mr. Tolbert left me here to listen out for a telephone call and——" She suddenly realized that Dick knew nothing of Temple's disappearance. "Didn't you know about Hugh?" she asked quickly. "He and Susie vanished with the mysterious package while we were on our way here in a taxi. Mr. Tolbert's out talking to detectives now."

Dick was no less amazed than alarmed. He asked for all the details and shook his head significantly as Janet gave him a meticulous account of the mysterious proceedings at the Long Island field.

"The thing's impossible!" he declared. "And yet it's the sort of outrage I've been expecting. The devils probably overpowered Hugh and flew the plane off the field under the very nose of the field officials and the police. If they injured Hugh——!"

Janet saw the blood rush to his face and his chin set rigidly.

"But come on," he said after a moment, "we can't do anything until Dad comes back, and the ladies are waiting. We've only been here a few minutes. I came down to make sure about the hour Helen sails."

* * * *

Midway the cozy corridor that led from the top of the stairs to the mezzanine proper Dick suddenly stopped and blocked Janet's way.

"Hmm!" from Janet. "The party's getting rough."

But she saw in his eyes something familiar, something that made her heart race madly.

He asked in a thick whisper: "Have you forgotten——"

Not a little frightened, Janet played for time. He was engaged. The girl he was to marry was almost within hearing, might appear at the end of the corridor at any moment and see them there. It seemed somehow indecent to go back to that moment before she had known of Helen Morgan.

"Forgotten——?" she inquired innocently; "forgotten what, Dick?"

The healthy pink of his face deepened and his hands slid from her shoulders. She saw that he had misunderstood and when he turned and made as if to walk away, she caught his sleeve and held him. "Dick!" Blue eyes pleaded with blue. "Don't you see—it isn't right. You know I haven't forgotten; that I'll never forget, but—it isn't fair to her."

And then she was being half-smothered in the fuzziness of his coat, and when she lifted her head to attempt a feeble protest, his lips were waiting.

She knew then that the fight was over, that she would never struggle against him again. This man, by a law that transcended mere convention, was hers, and she would give way to no other claims upon his affections. Helen Morgan no longer mattered. If Helen had formed a prior alliance, the misfortune was Helen's.

"You darling!" Dick whispered as Janet stepped back from him, then leaned forward and brushed his coat where her face had pressed. "Shall we go on?"

She pushed her hair into place deftly and rotated a miniature puff over her cheeks and the tip of her perfect nose. "You're throwing this party, mister," she said lightly, falling into the familiar jargon of the old world she had left but the day before. "Lead the way!"

Helen Morgan was a shock. To Janet she was the most perfect beauty her own dazzled eyes had ever rested upon. Her hair was a rust-red, her coloring so exquisite that one hardly saw the pin-point mole low on her left cheek. Her cold, brown eyes, almost hidden by drooping lashes, now and then caught the glow of her hair and blazed on Janet suspiciously. Her curved lips were crimson, and her nose straight and—well, superior, as if it boasted of its ideal surroundings. She slouched in a great chair, her legs crossed and a pointed toe swinging in a little circle irritably. Janet, marveling, saw that she was tall and slim and supple, the type of woman for whom magazine-cover artists search in vain and realize through the medium of many models.

But when Dick introduced them, her beauty fell away like a mask. Her lovely face, when she spoke, when she smiled, had no more expression than a plaster of paris plaque. Not a muscle moved, save at the very corners of her mouth. Inert, she was a gorgeous picture; conversing, she was a china doll striving vainly to affect life.

She did not rise, but lowered her blazing head slightly in acknowledgment of Janet's admiring, self-conscious smile. "It is always a pleasure," she mumbled mechanically, "to know Dick's friends." She glanced up at Dick as if expecting him to amend this. But Dick was talking in a low voice to Mrs. Morgan, a tall, stern, placid woman whose hair was quite black despite her obvious years and who was incessantly opening and closing an ornate lorgnette.

Janet dropped into a stiff little chair opposite Helen and pretended to study the severe design of the railing behind Helen's chair. Helen stared at her from under the heavy lashes, and the silence became a roar in Janet's ears.

In desperation she said, "I understand you're going to Paris, Miss Morgan; I suppose you'll see a lot of interesting things there. . . .?"

Helen Morgan barely nooded. "Even Paris loses its charms after one has spent a dozen winters there." The pointed toe continued its little circle. "You've never been over?" (She called it "ovah.")

Janet realized vaguely that Dick and Mrs. Morgan were no longer talking, that Helen's question had drawn their attention, that they were waiting for her reply.

"Not me," she said with a gay little laugh, as if the idea of Janet abroad was too absurd to take seriously. "I've never been anywhere much, outside of New Haven County, that is. But I'd give almost anything if I could go . . . just once."

"How fascinating," Helen mumbled, boredom dripping from each word. "I wonder," she added, the red of her hair reflected in the brown eyes that were but slits under her heavy brows, "I wonder Dick didn't say something to you yesterday. Mother and I were turning heaven and earth to find a maid and I'm sure you would have qualified quite easily."

And then, realizing the hopeless position in which she was placed, Janet rose and turned to Dick Tolbert. But Dick at that moment appeared to think of something quite amusing and spoke in a l ow voice to Mrs. Morgan.

Without a word, Janet wheeled and walked rapidly toward the corridor that led to the marble stairs.

"Janet!"

She heard Dick call and knew that he was following her. She quickened her pace and darted down the stairs almost into the arms of Tolbert, senior.

Life is becoming more complicated for Janet with each passing hour. But there are far more intricate complications ahead! Watch for tomorrow's installment.

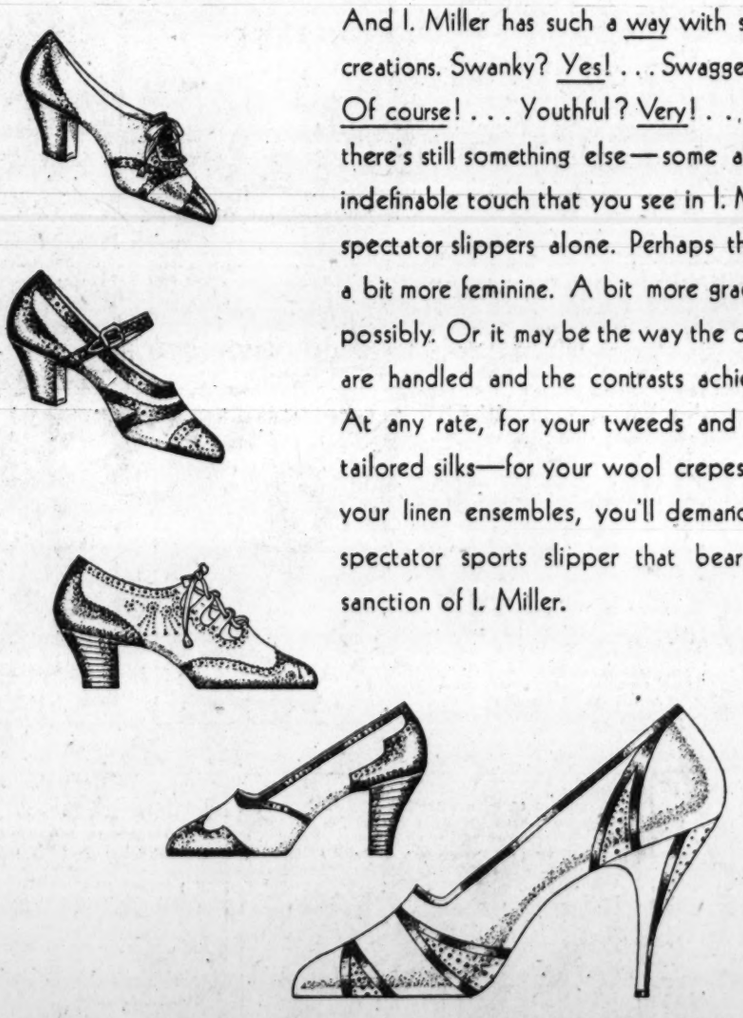
such a Variety

AT EITHER OF THE I. MILLER PRESENTATIONS



And I. Miller has such a way with sports creations. Swanky? Yes! . . . Swaggering? Of course! . . . Youthful? Very! . . . But there's still something else—some almost indefinable touch that you see in I. Miller spectator slippers alone. Perhaps they're a bit more feminine. A bit more graceful, possibly. Or it may be the way the colors are handled and the contrasts achieved. At any rate, for your tweeds and your tailored silks—for your wool crepes and your linen ensembles, you'll demand the spectator sports slipper that bears the sanction of I. Miller.

MAY HAVE HAY FEVER.

M. D. writes: I catch colds very often. In fact, I wake up every morning with a fresh one. It seems to affect my eyes, making them very itchy and inflamed and sometimes a small red lump, like a pimple, appears either on the upper or lower eye. Do you think it serious or should I just use boric acid and forget about it?

REPLY.

My guess is that you have hay fever and that you should govern yourself accordingly.

HAY FEVER BULLETINS.

N. W. asks: Are there any public health booklets on hay fever and where could I get such?

REPLY.

Write to U. S. Public Health Service, Washington, D. C., for booklets on hay fever. They have bulletins 739, 931 and 1,078, and radio broadcasts 144, 145, 146 and 147.

In addition, many State and local health departments have bulletins on hay fever, available on application or written repuest.

I have a booklet on hay fever, which is one of the "How to Live With" series. This you can get by sending me ten cents and stamped, addressed envelope. This is the only booklet on the subject I have for distribution.

LYONS PITCHES WHITE SOX TO 2-1 TRIUMPH OVER NATS;

JONES TAKES THIRD BRITISH OPEN TITLE BY 2 STROKES

Peglegler

NEW YORK, June 20.—It is easy to understand why public heroes of a certain temperament discover themselves at odds with the crowd after a short experience of public adulation. The cases of Charles A. Lindbergh and Gene Tunney are two current ones and that of the late Christy Mathewson was similar, although he never came to an open break with the human race.

The trouble usually is caused by a rather small minority of constitutional pests with no manners who are given to a familiar mode of address, a morbid inquisitiveness that brooks no privacy of the subject, and chummy arm-pinchings and backslappings. The cumulative effect of the latter attention soon amounts to considerable physical punishment.

Nobody but a confirmed showman with something of the patient endurance of a bearded woman or a dog-faced boy can be expected to put up with these liberties indefinitely on the mere ground that such people are well-meaning and friendly. In the first place, it is not certain that they are well meaning or friendly. It is an old device of the professional con man to put on a show of cordial acquaintance with a big shot who never has seen him before as a means of impressing his own importance on a sucker hidden in the background.

White House Setting for Social Build-up.

The late Warren G. Harding and the White House setting were once used in the buildup of a social reputation for a genteel panhandler who called himself Prince Zerdechene. An Oriental lady known as Princess Fatima was received at the White House and, owing to the negligence of the secretary in charge of such matters, this Zerdechene bobbed up in the news photographs of the reception, airily balancing his rented plug hat on one arm and rolling his little sprig of a mustache in the fingers of his other hand with consummate refinement and hauteur.

For some time after that the young man flitted from flower to flower at the weddings and such like royasterings of the haute monde in New York and Newport, sipping the nectar, stuffing himself on the Romanoff caviar, and doing the best he could for himself in the way of touches until his vast estates in Egypt should be liquidated, when his remittances would arrive and he would produce a few revels in oriental splendor on his own account. The photograph showing him on terms of apparent acquaintance with the President of the U. S. A. seemed to authenticate his claim of court rank in some remote and doubtless fleabitten but, nevertheless, royal capital, and his American hosts were considerably put out to learn, through the enterprise of a cynical city editor, that his royal highness was, by trade, a gentleman's gentleman and occasional pants presser.

Dempsey and Ruth Are Real Showmen.

Jack Dempsey and Babe Ruth are distinctly showmen, and they have submitted to nobody knows how much fair weather familiarity in the observance of a motto that all people are customers and that, right or wrong, the customer is a customer nevertheless. They are unfailingly affable with customers wishing to shake their hands or feet or their biceps. They have autographed programs, old envelopes and baseballs, in countless thousands as part of the work of the showman, and I never have seen either of them cross or impatient under such circumstances, although the Babe, to avoid writers' cramps and perhaps to guard against the incautious endorsement of checks and notes, lately has been refusing to autograph anything but baseballs.

They are unusually well suited by temperament for this sort of contacts. I would not accuse either of them of being a thoughtful man, and they probably have not troubled their minds much with bitter reflections on the fickleness of popular favor.

Nest Egg Shows Lack of Confidence in Admirers.

It is true that Dempsey hid away his first $250,000 in irrevocable trust funds under corporate names in obscure Western banks, so that if he should ever go broke he would have at least $200 a week for life, reasonably safe from attachments. This bespoke a lack of confidence in the crowd's enthusiasm for him, but he had seen such gaunt poverty such a brief time before that the thought behind it may have been nothing more than the instinct of a squirrel to bury a nut in the ground or a dog to cache a T-bone.

On the other side of the question, I am more familiar with the reactions of Gene Tunney than with those of Mac Smith and Diegel Tie for Second With Totals of 293.

Compston Takes Momentary Lead With Record 68 Round.

By FRANK H. KING.

HOYLAKE, England, June 20 (A.P.).—Bobby Jones, scoring 291 and holding a two-stroke lead over Leo Diegel and MacDonald Smith, tied for second place, today won his third British open golf championship crown after one of the greatest battles of the golfing centuries.

Horton Smith and Fred Robson, veteran British pro, tied for fourth place with scores of 296 for the 72 holes of the championship competition. "Long Jim" Barnes, with 297, tied for sixth.

Jones Equals Feat of Ball 40 Years Ago.

With the amateur title taken last month at St. Andrews, Jones has matched the feat of the famous Hoylake amateur, John Ball, who 40 years ago won the British amateur and open titles the same year. Ball was in Hoylake today, but did not brave the surging crowd of nearly 10,000 which saw the breathless finish of Diegel, Mac Smith and Archie Compston, British golfing giant, which threatened to keep Jones away from his cherished double honor.

The Georgian takes the classic trophy to the United States for its ninth visit in ten years, and he toppled another golf record by cutting ten strokes from the Hoylake mark of 301, which won the title for Walter Hagen here in 1924.

Tonight Bobby took the old trophy away to London, where next week he will play in a couple of charity matches and will sail for home next Saturday night. He was so exhausted tonight from the stress and strain of his week at Hoylake that he was doubtful whether he would ever attempt another foreign crusade.

Britain's glory in today's thrilling fight went to Compston whose third round of 68 broke the Hoylake records by two strokes and revived British hopes by giving the blond giant a three-round aggregate of 215 and a one-stroke lead over the American amateur.

Compston's 68 Raises Hopes of Britons.

As Jones, paired with Pierre Hirigoyen, of the Chantilly Club, France,

Striebling Wins By Knockout In 1 Round

Sudden Left Hook to Chin Stops Norwegian Heavy.

Georgian Rips Into Big Foreigner From Opening Bell.

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY

CHICAGO, June 20 (A.P.).—W. L. Stribling, the ex-schoolboy from Georgia, fighting the surprise battle of his heavyweight career, knocked out Otto Von Porat, crushing puncher from Norway, in the first round of a scheduled ten-round bout in the Chicago Stadium tonight.

Von Porat never before stretched the floor for the count, was knocked out with a smashing left hook to his lantern jawed chin—with the same left hand that Stribling said was injured while training for the match.

The sudden knockout stunned the crowd, estimated at 21,000, a new indoor record attendance for professional boxing, almost as much as that smashing punch stunned Von Porat.

If there was any drug injected into Stribbling's left hand, as he claimed there would to deaden pain, he lost no time in transferring it to Von Porat's chin.

Scorns Wallop of Norwegian.

The Georgian, conceding 16½ pounds to the towering Norwegian, showed complete disdain for Von Porat's vaunted right-hand wallop to the chin. Stribling ripped into Von Porat at the opening bell and never gave the tall Norwegian a chance to crack him with his famous right. He peppered long, tantalizing lefts into Von Porat's face and roughed him into a corner and smashed his body with both fists.

The young Georgian, faster with his hands and speedier on his feet, lashed out with a terrific left hook that landed flush on Von Porat's chin. The Norwegian's legs shot out from under him as if he had touched an electric wire. He lay flat on his back while Referee Eddie Purdy tolled off the fatal count of ten. He did not even attempt to get up.

The end came after 2 minutes and 50 seconds of fighting.

Stribling weighed in at 186½ pounds, and Von Porat tipped the beam at 203, giving him a weight advantage of 16½ pounds.

Mrs. J. H. Haynes Wins In Golf Semifinals

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 20.—Mrs. James H. Haynes, of the Columbia Club, Washington, advanced to the semi-finals today in the women's golf tournament at Gibson Island. Shooting a 78, Mrs. Haynes was the medalist Wednesday. The match between Mrs. Haynes and Miss Evangeline Jones today was hard fought throughout, the capital golfer winning by the slight margin of 2 and 1. Mrs. Haynes will oppose Mrs. Jerome Sloman tomorrow.

Mrs. F. F. Collady, of Washington, and Miss Effie Bowes also engaged in a keenly contested match today, in which the latter was victorious by a 2-up margin.

Indian Head Nine Wins Maryland High Title

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 20.—Lackey High School, of Indian Head, in Charles County, rode to the State High School base ball championship upon the good hurling arms of Clarence Doane and Lawrence Drinkard, who played major roles in the defeat of Perryville High, of Cecil County, 10 to 6, at Clifton Park this afternoon. The contest was the final tussle between the champions of the Western Shore and Eastern Shore in the fifth annual tournament conducted by the Playground Athletic League.

McWilliams, Lackey fielder, drove out a homer with two on in the second inning. Lackey succeeds Hagerstown High as State champion.

BOUT IN FALL PLANNED BY SCHMELING

Agrees to Fight Jack Sharkey If Released From Buelow.

NEW YORK, June 20 (A.P.).—Max Schmeling, first heavyweight champion ever to gain such recognition through a foul, is ready to fight Jack Sharkey all over again in September—that is, provided and perhaps.

Breaking his silence for the first time since boxing commissions, sports critics, and advisers started pointing out that he can gain public recognition as the successor to Gene Tunney only by beating the Boston sailorman on some other basis than a technicality, Schmeling today announced that he would fight Sharkey under certain conditions. Only two of these stipulations were named.

The conqueror of Sharkey on a foul in four rounds at the Yankee Stadium June 12 demanded first that he receive his immediate and outright release from Arthur Buelow, German manager whom he deposed over a year ago but whose contract with Schmeling does not expire until October 13. Secondly, he "will have no part of Graham McNamee as a radio announcer" on the grounds that the National Broadcasting Co. speaker favored Sharkey in their first meeting and made many errors in describing the bout.

Issues Proclamation Through Jacobs

Schmeling issued his proclamation through his manager of choice, Joe Jacobs, whose sprightly actions in the ring June 12, when Referee Jimmy Crowley was beset by doubts and trouble following the low blow, probably won the German the battle. He

British Net Stars Out Of Women's Singles

Winbledon, England, June 20 (A.P.). Two women tennis stars, Senorita de Alvarez, of Spain, and Mrs. Holcroft Watson, Great Britain's ranking No. 1 player, have decided not to compete in the singles championships starting at Wimbledon next week.

Mrs. Watson, suffering from throat trouble, has been advised by physicians not to enter the singles, but will team with Mrs. Godfrey in the doubles. Senorita de Alvarez has been troubled for some time with swollen tendons, but hopes to be well enough to play as Jean Borotra's partner in the mixed doubles.

Seligson and Sutter In College Net Final

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Julius Seligson, Lehigh net star, went into the finals of the Eastern intercollegiate tennis championships today, defeating David Jones, of Columbia, 2—6, 6—1, 5—7, 9—7, 6—0.

Clifford Sutter, of Tulane, became Seligson's opponent in the finals to be played tomorrow, when he made easy work of the semifinal match with Leonard Dworkin, of the University of California, Los Angeles branch. Sutter won in straight sets, 6—1, 6—1, 6—0.

Schmeling Is Offered $200,000 for Fight

Detroit, June 20 (A.P.).—Dick Dunn, manager of Olympia Stadium here, announced today that he had forwarded an offer of $200,000 to Max Schmeling, newly recognized heavyweight champion, for a championship bout here in September with Johnny Risko, of Cleveland.

In the event of an agreement, Dunn said, the bout would be put on in Navin Field, the American League Baseball Park, where Risko last night won over Paulino Uzcudun in a 10-round bout. Dunn said 65,000 persons could be seated at Navin Field.

GOSLIN HITS HOMER FOR BROWNS

BOSTON, June 20 (A.P.).—Sam Gray held the Red Sox to five hits and the St. Louis Browns evened their series with the Bostonians here today by winning, 4 to 3. Gray passed six men, however.

Goose Goslin collected his second homer in as many days, and Melillo got two doubles and a single. Kress' play at short for St. Louis was brilliant. McNeely left the game in the first after being hit in the mouth by Heving's throw while figuring in a double steal.

MACKS BEAT INDIANS, 8 TO 0

Tighten Grip on Lead; Earnshaw Grants But Five Hits.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20 (A.P.).—The Athletics took their third straight game from the Cleveland Indians, by a score of 8 to 0 today, thereby strengthening their grip on first place. The champions assailed Brown and Walt Miller for 13 hits. Earnshaw's pitching limited the Red Skins to five safeties.

Jimmy Foxx wound up the attack on Brown, who twirled the first six innings, when he hit his sixteenth home run of the season, with one on in the fifth inning, to make the score, 5 to 0.

Johnny Hodapp's hitting streak of 22 straight games was halted by Earnshaw today. Johnny also fell further behind Mickey Cochrane in the race for the hitting leadership, Cochrane getting two singles and a double in four times at bat.

Allison, Mangin Meet In London Net Finals

London, June 20 (A.P.).—Two young American Davis Cup players will meet tomorrow in the final round for the London tennis championship at the Queen's Club. Wilmer Allison, youthful Texan, defeated H. Saton, of Japan, 9—7, 7—5, in one semifinal today, while Gregory S. Mangin, of Newark, N. J., eliminated W. A. R. Collins, of London, 6—2, 7—5.

Kozeluh and Najuch Reach Pro Net Final

Auteuil, France, June 20 (A.P.).—Kabel Kozeluh, of Czechoslovakia, recognized as the world's professional tennis champion, gained the final round of the current title play today by defeating Albert Burke, 6—1, 6—2, 6—1.

Roland Majuch, of Germany, won the right to face Kozeluh in the final by eliminating Martin Plaa, French professional, 6—4, 6—3, 6—1.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

WATWOOD used up much of the Nats' profits in the first inning yesterday when he fouled off half a dozen brand new balls before finally rolling to Myer.

Kamm went all the way to the pitcher's box for West's pop opening the game for the home team.

Manush topped one down the third-base line in the opener. Seeing he had no chance to make the play at first, Kamm let the ball roll, hoping it would go foul. He chased it back all the way to the sack, which the ball hit right in the middle.

With the hit-and-run on and Clancy up in the second, Cissell broke toward second and a snap peg, Spencer to Shires, erased him before he could get back to the initial sack when Clancy swung and missed.

Kerr made a great one-handed stop of Bluege's hot hopper over near second in round 2, but the runner beat the peg to the doorway by a matter of inches.

After having played second and third fiddle with the Nats since 1924, Bennie Tate is experiencing real pleasure as a regular catcher for the White Sox. "I think he is a great little receiver," said Donie Bush, Chisox pilot, before yesterday's game, "and expect to get a lot of good service from him. Bennie was given the glad hand every time he came to bat yesterday.

The Sox's third was an unusual inning. The first two got on base as the result of a double and walk, yet only three came to bat during the round. Lyon's intended sacrifice was turned into a double-play, with Shires coming in fast for the pop and then doubling up Kamm at second. Then Tate died stealing.

Cronin waited on four successive wide ones starting the home fourth.

Coach Schacht came in for some criticism for sending Cronin home from third on Bluege's near Texas Leaguer in the fourth. The writer twice has seen runners score this season on identical plays. As a matter of fact, Lyons saved the day for the visitors as Kerr, who caught the ball high over his head while backing

SECOND place in the league standing beckoned to the Nationals yesterday, but Ted Lyons, on the hill for the White Sox, had other plans, the result being his tenth victory of the season and a 2-to-1 defeat for the Johnsons.

It was a thrilling game all the way, with Irving Hadley and Fred Marberry hurling almost as well as did their mound opponent, but the Sox were fortunate in better picking the spots for their bingles. Each team was credited with seven hits.

A crowd of approximately 15,000 was on hand, including ladies, Boy Scouts and sky climbers, who were guests of the club, and they certainly were given plenty over which to enthuse

SCHMELING SAYS HE WILL KEEP PROMISE TO FANS

Max Seeking To Wipe Out Foul Taint

Discovered in Third Round He Could Beat Sharkey.

German Not Afraid of Risking Title in September.

By MAX SCHMELING
(Heavyweight champion of the world).
(As told to Paul Gallico.)

NEW YORK, June 20.—I will fight Jack Sharkey in September. Then I think I show you something, and I show him something, too. I will be the first heavyweight champion of the world to keep his promise. The first one who tells the truth.

After my fight with Sharkey I said, "I did not wish to win that way." To Sharkey I said, "I will give you another chance." And to the American people I said, "I am grateful You have been kind to me I owe you much I wish to repay it."

I guess I know what you think. That is all, how you call—bull. All champions have said the same thing. He will go back to Germany with the title and that is the end. But I think not. Perhaps I wish that you think I am different. That I have in me something of the sportsman, too. And so I say to you that I will defend my title three months after I win it, and I will fight the man who fouled me—Jack Sharkey. You think I can not beat him? In September you see something.

Ambition Spoiled by Sharkey's Foul.

That Sharkey spoiled the happiest ambition of my life. I wished to be undisputed heavyweight champion of the world. In my heart I know I can be that. And after the third round, I know it is no Sharkey who stands in my way. And then that supid man spoils my ambition because he does not know how to punch. I am champion, and I am not happy. I speak the truth when I say I do not wish to win that way. Sharkey will pay for that in September.

So you thought I am afraid of Sharkey? Do you think I risk that title so soon if I do not know I can beat him? Now I know what he has. He can do nothing to me. I want that title, truly, so you believe in me. You think Sharkey would have won? All right. We find out. He does not have to wait a year, as it stands in my contract. He gets his chance in September. Maybe by that time he learns how to punch fair.

Asks Only Release From Buelow.

You think perhaps I put obstacles in the way so the match does not take place? I do not blame you. I think the American public has been fooled very often. You think I demand such money that the fight can not be? I do not do that. I defend my title for my champion's purse, 37 1-2 per cent. And I ask only that they fulfill the conditions they say they fulfill—in regard to Buelow. They say that will take care of my release from Buelow. All right. That is enough. I have said that while Buelow is still in the contract I do not fight. I mean that. If Buelow is out of the contract and I am protected from him, the fight is on.

Is that unreasonable? I only ask the Garden to protect my money from Buelow. I wish to have the mind free for the defense of the title, no worries, no trouble. Is that all right?

I am glad that all will be settled. Now my plans are clear. Now I go to see that Carnera fight with Godfrey and may be study Carnera a little. I can not get it out of my head that perhaps some day I must fight him. Soon I am going back to Germany, I think within a week, to rest. My mother wishes to see me. She is worried over me. For a month I rest, just with light exercises. The early part of August I am here again and ready to begin my training to defend against Sharkey, as I promised I would. I hope you are pleased with my decision.

SCHMELING WOULD FIGHT IN SEPTEMBER

left the matter of the Buelow settlement up to Madison Square Garden as well as the problem of finding a suitable broadcaster for the September show.

Fight critics, reading between the lines, had little trouble deciding that Schmeling and Sharkey will fight their return engagement in September, provisos or no provisos, and that the Garden will have little trouble meeting either the conditions named or those left unsaid. The Garden already had promised Schmeling to pay Buelow's share of the September receipts from its own pocket, and that sum probably will purchase the release der Maxie craves with little difficulty.

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE East has sent a strong delegation of 3-year-old fillies to Chicago to try for the Illinois Oaks at Washington Park today, and the West has its candidates on the ground.

The distance is a mile and a furlong, and the race is the fifth on the program. The prize is $10,000 added money, which should make the gross around $15,000. From the East is Walter J. almon's SNOWFLAKE, winner of the Coaching Club American Oaks at Belmont Park. The Wheatley Stable of New York is represented by the stake winning filly ERIN. She is in best form and won a race the other day at Chicago.

The West is represented by ALCIBIADES, CHELYS, the Camden pair; VERMILICUTE and HONEY LOCUST; then from Texas comes the speedy PANSY WALKER. Others are TIPPY TOE, RICH WIDOW and EVENING SKY. SNOWFLAKE is selected to win.

Besides her grand victory in the mile and five-sixteenths of the Oaks at Belmont Park she was third to Gallant Fox in the Preakness. She has done more good racing than any other filly of the year. ALCIBIADES has returned to good form and may come close to adding her second Oaks victory to her record, having won in Kentucky. She and SNOWFLAKE carry top weight of 121 pounds each. This is the weight SNOWFLAKE carried in the Preakness. PANS WALKER is rated best of the others, but by no wide margin, for ERIN is very fast, and TIPPY TOE is one of Kentucky's fleetest.

FIRST RACE—In other respects than the Oaks, Washington Park has a good card. In the first race the issue should be a close one between ZIDA and MORSUN, with the latter having a shade the better of it. HOT SHOT should hold the others safe.

SECOND RACE—The second race is for 2-year-olds. MARY COBB is well placed and should win easily. Her races were all good in Kentucky, and she has been running against stronger fields. OVER SHADY, on Maryland form, appears to be the contender. WIG ROSE may take the short money.

THIRD RACE—JACK ALEXANDER seems ready for brackets and is accorded the best chance in the third race. GOLDEN RACKET is next best, and SETH'S BALLOT is fairly certain of being in the money. LOUISE WILSON may be underrated.

FOURTH RACE—The fourth race is a real speed contest, with SUPREME SWEET picked to win. CAMP BOSS may be dangerous, and surely is a contender. J. N. Camden's ELICE, at equal weights with SUPREME SWEET, beat a strong field last week, and should be no worse than third in this race.

SIXTH RACE—The sixth is a handicap at a mile and seventy yards, in which TORO is selected to beat THE NUT, both at their best and strong members of the handicap division. CLUB HOUSE broke a track record last out, and belongs in the money.

SEVENTH RACE—IRENE T. looks best of the platers in the seventh race ELEVEN SIXTY, a winner last out, may be the contender. AVIATOR has a chance.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GRACIOUS GIFT, $8.06, $4.30, $3.00; ERIN QUEEN, $6.92, $3.88; ILLEGITIMATE, $3.50.

GRACIOUS GIFT forced the early pace, overtook CROFTON quickly after passing the far turn and, drawing away strongly, showed the most speed to the end and held ERIN QUEEN safe. ERIN QUEEN saved ground on the inside, kept pace with the leaders throughout and, holding on well, easily kept ILLEGITIMATE safe. The latter was outrun in the early stages, but gained rapidly on outside when straightened out in the stretch. TIMOUR closed a big gap and finished fast. CROFTON had early speed, but quit badly after the first half mile.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200 claiming. For maiden 2-year-olds. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:51. Off at 2:54½. Winner, E. B. McLean's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WATER PORT, $12.28, $4.66, $3.42; SWEET JOE, $3.34, $2.96; VALEDICTORY, $5.74.

WATER PORT, outrun first half mile, moved up fast on outside in the stretch, wore down leaders, drew clear in final sixteenth and won going away. SWEET JOE, far back for first half mile, closed big gap in the final three-sixteenths, finished fast and was easily next best. VALEDICTORY forced the early pace, overtook JOSEPHINE D. after the first half mile, drew into the lead at the final furlong, but faltered in final drive. STONE MARTIN, away fast, reached contention in the stretch, but weakened in the final drive. JAMOCAS and IMPISH raced well.

THIRD RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:25. Off at 3:25. Winner, Lake Vista Stable's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RUANE, $9.92, $4.36, $3.06; ORMONBIRD, $6.30, $4.28; BOB KERNAN, $4.94.

RUANE, far back while badly outrun in early stages, began gaining after first half mile, closed big immense gap and, coming fast in the stretch, wore down leaders and was up to nose out ORMONBIRD in final stride. ORMONBIRD, never far off pace, moved up on the outside into the lead entering stretch, held on well, only weakening right at the end. BOB KERNAN was kept well up on inside and outstayed JACK HASKELL, latter just grounded on outside, but held on well and weakened only in late stages. TYPHOON had no mishaps.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IN BETWEEN, $7.26, $2.76, $2.64; CHARMER, $2.84, $2.72; CHIEF JOHN, $7.96.

IN BEWEEN, away well, forced the pace to the stretch, then took the lead from DICK MORRIS to draw out and win easily going away. CHARMER, close up from start, saved ground, held on gamely, disposing of PORTCODINE in stretch and held CHIEF JOHN safe. CHIEF JOHN closed a big gap from a slow beginning, finished fast and was up for third end. Outrush PORTCODINE moved up fast on the outside, gained ground and went into contention in the stretch, but tired in the final drive. DICK MORRIS set fast pace to stretch turn, then tired and dropped out of it in the stretch drive.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,600; allowances. Lake Shore Athletic Club. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:28½. Off at 4:30½. Winner, E. B. McLean's ch. c. (4), by The Porter—Margaret Arden. Trained by J. F. Schorr. Value to winner, $1,200; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47, 1:12 2-5, 1:37 2-5, 1:40 4-5. (New track record.)

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SILVERDALE, $4.90, $3.02, $2.24; PIGEON HOLE, $4.80, $3.00; WHISKERY, $2.42.

SILVERDALE was rated under restraint in early stages while holding opposition safe, continued well to the stretch, where he repulsed PIGEON HOLE and had much in reserve at the finish. PIGEON HOLE showed marked improvement under Jockey Schaefer and, given good handling, was in pursuit of the winner all the way, made several strong bids in final quarter, but could not get up. WHISKERY, reserved off the pace to the stretch, came to the inside, closed fast to dispose of FLAT IRON and LADY BROADCAST, but failed to menace the leaders. LADY BROADCAST ran a good race to the stretch turn, where she tired. FLAT IRON quit after reaching the turn.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,500; allowances. The Lincolnshire Country Club. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:56½. Off at 5:04. Winner, Wheatley Stable's b. c. (3), by Chantey—Balance. Trained by G. Tappen. Value to winner, $1,150; second, $225; third, $125. Time, 0:22 3-5, 0:47, 1:12, 1:25.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HORNPIPE, $8.56, $4.90, $3.48; JEAN LAFITTE, $21.84, $9.10; PLUCKY PLAY, $3.10.

HORNPIPE, never far back, was gaining gradually for the first half mile, reached leaders at stretch head and, going into lead over ROMANY BAW, easily drew out to win as rider pleased. JEAN LAFITTE was rated close up, reached contention nearing the last furlong and held PLUCKY PLAY safe in the final drive. PLUCKY PLAY was outrun first five furlongs, closed a rap in the stretch and was up to take the show money. BIG STAR closed a wide gap after dropping far back at the start from a fast beginning. PORTMANTEAU worked his way up gradually into contention, but faltered in the final drive.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming, handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:34. Off at 5:35. Winner, A. A. Baroni's b. g. (4), by Volta—Reliquary. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:14 3-5, 1:40, 1:53.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RIFF RAFF, $17.68, $9.12, $8.34; MACHETE, $16.98, $11.68; WIZARDRY, $18.18.

RIFF RAFF, rated close to the pace, challenged upon entering the stretch, came to the outside for final drive and wore down leaders, but was just up to outfinish MACHETE in the final strides. MACHETE was kept close up on the inside, saved much ground, came fast around the final turn and, working through to the leaders, headed LEYLAND and took the lead, but weakened in the final drive. WIZARDRY raced fast back the first six furlongs, then closed a wide gap and was the best of the remainder of the field. BOROUGH MONGER could never reach contention though racing well. HOUSE GIRL met interference, recovered, and made up a lot of ground.

THIRD CAVALRY YELLOWS WIN POLO TOURNAMENT

Fort Benning Four Bows, 5 to 4

Bad Spills and Hard Riding Thrill Gathering of 3,000 Fans.

Lieut. Makinney Is Star in Victory of Ft. Myer Team.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

THIRD CAVALRY YELLOWS lifted their second polo cup of the season yesterday when they won the final match of the War Department's invitation tournament by defeating the strong Fort Benning squad, 5 to 4, in one of the most exciting games ever played on the Potomic Park oval. The Benning Team had a one-goal handicap. Last week the Yellows carried off honors in the Argentine Cup games.

Bad spills, hard riding, clever blocking and long drives kept the 3,000 or more spectators on edge throughout the six periods. Lieut. Noble was the first to feel his horse slip from under him, in the third period, but this was of little consequence, as he easily rolled out of danger. In the sixth hectic chukker, Lieut. Makinney went down for what looked like the count, but after several minutes he resumed play with his usual dash.

Lieut. Makinney Furnishes Many Thrills.

In fact, Lieut. Makinney furnished a great many of the thrills during the afternoon. His riding and deft shots brought repeated applause from the sidelines, and three goals rolled from his accurate mallet.

The downfall of the Georgia mailetmen came in the second period when the hard-riding Fort Myer stickers dented the visitors' uprights three times, after having scored once in the first period. This put the Virginia Cavalrymen one goal in the lead as Benning had scored in the first also, which, with its handicap, gave it two markers.

In the fourth, Lieut. Hershel Baker, who had maintained his reputation as a real polo player in the preceding chukkers despite the fact that he had not scored, broke and scored from a most difficult angle for the only marker of the period.

The fifth period was the occasion for two of the most sensational goals of the game, with credit for them being divided between the squads. First, Lieut. Makinney electrified the throng with an angle shot from 70 yards out that carried through the Benning goal. Then Lieut. Herbert Baker snagged the ball and started a field-length dribble and race with Lieut. Makinney, whose pony was never more than a neck behind the fast traveling Benning No. 1 man. On a dead run, about thirty yards out, Baker shot and his drive carried true through the Cavalry goal.

Makinney Refuses to Stay Out of Action.

The sixth period was scoreless, although equally as hard fought as the earlier chukkers. With slightly more than two minutes to go, Lieut. Makinney was set full sail for a goal when a fearless Benning rider crashed him, and the star Cavalry poloist dropped beneath his horse. It looked like curtains for Makinney, but after wiping the dust from his eyes and the blood from his face, he resumed his position.

Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, presented each of the members of the victorious squad with cups after the match, and felicitated them on their admirable courage and clever polo. Today the victors will play the Sixteenth Field Artillery in Baltimore, in a Southeastern district intercircuit match.

Pigeon Derby at Chattanooga Today Draws Many D. C. Entries

THE Kentucky Derby is past, but the Pigeon Derby begins today.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon, central standard time, 55 Washington fanciers will know that their pigeons have been released along with 5,000 others from Chattanooga, Tenn., to begin the largest annual race in the United States which will send the feathered contestants to every State within a radius of 800 miles of Tennessee.

No pigeon is expected to reach home at any time before tomorrow morning, the late liberation intentionally being scheduled to force every bird to remain out one night. This condition, begun only last year, has resulted in a wider distribution of honors, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, and Cleveland, placing, respectively, one, two and three in 1929.

Instigated in 1923, with less than 250 birds and 10 cities competing, the affair has grown under the leadership of W. R. Pennington, local fancier, until it has become a national institution, annually including the best pigeons in America after being especially trained for the event.

Among Washington's contestants are seven who have obtained outstanding recognition through their birds. Harry C. Copenhaver, champion of the national races; John H. Holmead, local sports enthusiast; William R. Pennington, first secretary of the local association; D. Roy Mathews, who produced the winning bird in the Cuba race; W. F. Dismer, whose two pigeons, "Mid-Summer Night Dream" and "Rosebud," are the only birds in America which have flown all six national races held each year, and Capt. Volney Eaton, winner of the 500 concourse race, are those expecting great things from today's race.

Miss Dunham Wins Women's Net Title

Josephine Dunham yesterday won the singles title in the Women's District Tennis League tournament when she defeated Ruth Martinez, 6—4, 6—1, in the final round. The match was closer than the score would indicate, as many of the games were hard-fought deuced ones.

In the doubles, the Moorehead-Walker team scored in straight sets, 6—2, 6—4, over Kingsbury and Raver, while Goldie Crist took the singles consolations by beating Bettie Cochran, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3.

JONES SETS RECORD IN BRITISH VICTORY

finished his morning round in 74 the handclapping applause floating over Hoylake was disturbed by the roars for Compston who was thundering along to finish with his brilliant 68.

British hopes rested in him this afternoon, but he floundered out in 43 and tumbled in in 39 for an 82. Jones, giving promise of great things with a birdie 3 at the second hole, shooting from a bunker 100 yards to the green and leaving himself a holeable putt, played steady Jones golf until disaster visited him at the eighth.

So appalling was the downfall that the mighty Bobby marked a 7 on his card after being within a few yards of the green with his second shot. He missed a run up the sloping bank, then chipped feebly and was 3 yards short of the pin in 4. His putt slipped past the can and from 8 or 10 inches away he moved his putter to tap the ball in—and was short of the hole.

Jones Scores First 7 of British Invasion.

Compston had blown up and Jones seemed likely to clinch the title in easy fashion until this surprising hole, the first he has ever scored in a 7 in all his illustrious golfing career in this country.

Jones' great reserve strength, nerve and golfing genius enabled him to finish the round in 75 strokes for a 72-hole total of 291, with a steady string of 4s on the homeward trek, broken only by one 5. Horton Smith's third round of 78 practically put him out of the running, and an outward 39 this afternoon settled his title aspirations, although he did have the satisfaction of finishing with an aggregate of 296.

Leo Diegel, Jim Barnes and Mac-Donald Smith were left to threaten Jones' position. The youthful Don Moe made his mark, but a combination of 76-80 today cut him out of the foremost group of Americans. Barnes' 72 this morning left him 4 strokes behind Jones for the finishing dash. Diegel needed a fourth round of 72 to beat Bobby, and he all but did it, but the five long finishing holes which alone total 2,288 yards were just too much for Leo in today's wind.

Smith's Chase After Jones Spectacular One.

Mac Smith's chase after Jones was as spectacular as Diegel's, for this morning he was 5 strokes back of Bobby. A third round of 75 left him 6 strokes behind in what would seem a hopeless position, but Smith played in great style, scored a final 71, and like Diegel was faced with the problem of making two birdie 3s at the finishing holes to tie. Each failed after great efforts and Jones, who had spent two anxious hours in the clubhouse, was called down to receive the trophy.

WANT GAME TODAY.

The Washington Cadillac Nine has a diamond for 3 p. m. today and would like to arrange a game. Call M. G. Brown at Decatur 3900.

MAJESTICS PLAY NOLANS.

The Majestic Radio Nine will meet the Nolan Motor Co. Nine at 3 o'clock this afternoon on the South Ellipse diamond. All players are urged to report early.

5 D. C. Women Enter Baltimore Net Event

Five Washington women will participate in the women's Maryland State tennis championships at the Baltimore Country Club next week. They are Ruth Martinez, Marian King, Margaret Graham, Mary Ryan and Frances Walker.

The first and last named have been playing brilliant tennis thus for this season, and are expected to go far in the forthcoming event. Miss King, also, has played some fine tennis of late, having furnished somewhat of a surprise in local women's ranks.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

fox it, was in no position to make an accurate peg. Lyons took the throw in the middle of the diamond and his quick relay was what cost the Nats the run.

West made a really great catch when he cut across toward right and took Cissell's liner off his shoe-tops in the fifth session.

After walking in the home fifth, West stole second, but became too confident and was picked off the bag by Lyons, Kerr making a nice play for the out.

Fans were given plenty of excitement in the Nats' sixth when, with Cronin on third, Shires on first and Myer up, the hit-and-run signal was given. Myer missed the ball, a wide one, and Shires stopped between first and second. Cronin then broke for home and, during the run-down, Shires kept on running. He, too, would have been nipped, but he knocked the ball from Kamm's hands while sliding into third. During the argument which followed, in which the whole Sox infield joined Manager Donie Bush, Cissell was chased from the field by Umpire Guthrie.

Mrs. Upham Victor In Women's Tourney

The War College's annual ladies' tournament held this week was won by Mrs. Upham, who defeated Mrs. O'Rear's 2 up and 1 to play in the finals. In the qualifying round Mrs. Upham tied for the medal with Mrs. J. A. Green, with 44 scores.

Mrs. Edward King defeated Miss Lynch, 3 and 2, in the second flight, while Mrs. Carlin Stokley defeated Mrs. Buckner, 1 up, in the third flight.

Mrs. E. L. Naiden won the first consolation from Mrs. Evan Humphrey, 5 and 3. Mrs. Charles Busbee and Mrs. Allen won the second and third consolation flights, respectively. The regular ladies' tourney will be held next Tuesday starting at 9:30 a. m. A picnic luncheon will be held and prizes will be given.

LYONS HOLDS NATS SAFELY IN PINCHES

Rice was crossing the plate with the tying run as the out was made.

Nats Waste 2 Early Opportunities.

The Sox, who had but two men left on base in Thursday's game, had but three stranded yesterday, as two double-plays and two men thrown out by Spencer greatly relieved the congestion on the paths.

In the early rounds, the Nationals "blew" two opportunities. Cronin led off with a walk in the fourth and a sacrifice bunt, instead of an outfield fly by Shires, would have meant a run, for Myer followed with a single which was good for a two-base advance. As it was, this put Cronin on third with but one dead, and some quick relaying by Lyons nipped the runner at home after Kerr had gone deep in left for Bluege's near Texas Leaguer. Kerr was in no position to make the quick throw needed, but Lyons intercepted his heave and relayed it to Tate in time to nail Cronin at the plate by a small margin.

The Nats' other chance came in the next round when another double-play ruined it. Spencer led off with a hit and then Kerr caught Hadley's liner and tossed out the catcher before he could get back to first. West then walked, but was picked off the sacks after he had pilfered second.

BRAXTON DUE TO FACE NATS

Bush to Start Southpaw Today; Liska Will Oppose.

EVER since the season started, Garland Braxton had been begging Manager Johnson for a chance to start a game for the Nats, but conditions were such that the southpaw screw-ball master was needed more as a relief hurler and he never was given the opportunity he craved up until the time he was traded to the White Sox last Monday, along with Catcher Bennie Tate, for Art Shires.

Braxton made himself many friends here who also wanted to see him pitching regularly and who were just as disappointed as was the pitcher that he was not given a chance. He will get it this afternoon, however, but against the Nationals, Manager Donie Bush having promised him his chance. If Adolph Liska, who draws the mound assignment for the Johnsons, is in good form, fans are promised a mound duel.

Pitcher "Sad Sam" Jones, who has been ill at his home at Woodsfield, Ohio, is scheduled to rejoin the Nationals this morning. The veteran reports himself ready to resume work but probably will need ten days or two weeks before getting back to pitching form. He usually is quite effective against the Yankees and Manager Johnson is hopeful that he will be ready to start against them in the four-game series listed here beginning with two holiday games on July Fourth.

Shires Amused by Fan's Letter.

Art Shires was greatly amused at a letter he received here yesterday from a Cleveland fan who panned him for injuring Lou Fonseca. "What am I supposed to do—step off of first when I see runners coming?" he asked. "This baseball game must be getting to be a sissy game if a player can't insist upon his rights."

Shires, by the way, was knocked unconscious himself in the collision with Fonseca, who was covering the home plate.

"How many men hit me?" were the first words Art said after the White Sox trainer had brought him to consciousness. Fonseca was out of his head for more than an hour after the collision.

TIGERS HALT STREAK OF YANKEES

Pipgras Pounded Out During Five-Run Attack in First.

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Vic Sorrell and the Tigers ended the Yanks' six-game winning streak today. The score was 11 to 6. An even greater misfortune for the Bronx team was a fractured thumb suffered by Lyn Lary, the regular shortstop since early in May, and responsible in no small degree for the locals' climb to second place. William Hargrave, of the Tigers, hurt his leg in the ninth and had to be assisted from the field.

The Yanks found Sorrell for nine hits, one of them a homer by Combs, with two on base, featuring their only really robust inning. Four New York pitchers toiled, Pipgras being knocked out by Dale Alexander's homer with two aboard in the first frame, when the visitors scored five runs. William Hargrave hit for the circuit off Bill Henderson in the sixth, and in the inning preceding Henderson was pumped for a big double by McManus, clearing the bases of three occupants.

The game lasted close to three hours.

PEGLER SAYS:

Charles A. Lindbergh. Tunney wished to be popular, for he is at least as vain as the run of men, but he also is of a questioning mind and likely to examine motives and past performances. Consequently, when he began to hear himself cheered as a winner and champion, he could not but recall the times when he had heard the same crowds hoot him. Unlike Dempsey, who took these things impersonally, he decided that the cheering and hooting were alike beneath his notice, and he spoke of the customers as "the rabble—the wolves!"

Personal familiarity from strangers he regarded as an invasion of his personal rights, and he could not remember to be patient and genial with individuals whose only claim on his individual notice arose from their glib assurances that they had been rooting for him throughout his career. They first bored and later distracted him.

Souvenir Hunters Affable Man Handlers.

I once read a piece by a man familiar with Col. Lindbergh explaining that the young man's clothing had been snapped with shears by souvenir hunters, that his back and arms had been bruised for weeks by affable manhandlers and that his personal effects always were being looted for mementoes. In addition to all this, he had no privacy, day or night, and, I suppose, decided that the only escape lay in a reputation for churlish hostility to all strangers.

Clarence Chamberlain has been different. Although no showman in the sense that Ruth and Dempsey are, he is distinctly a mortal being, nevertheless, and his attitude a nice compromise between mercenary showmanship and studied aloofness.

Just how much geniality a public hero owes the public, whose adulation is all that makes him heroic, is a question. Rather more than Tunney and Lindbergh accord their idolaters, I should think, but somewhat less than Ruth and Dempsey give to theirs. But aloofness does not necessarily bespeak personal conceit. It may be only a final defense against the impositions of popularity.

D. C. Netmen Eliminate Orioles From Cup Play

Baltimore Team Beaten, 6-3, in Hotchkiss Cup Event; Washington and Norfolk in Finals Today; Considine Beats Jacobs.

TENNIS teams of Washington and Norfolk will battle it out for the Hotchkiss Cup this afternoon on the Columbia Country Club courts as the result of victories scored in the opening rounds yesterday afternoon.

Pitted against Baltimore by the luck of the draw, the local netmen removed their most formidable opposition by taking six of the nine matches with the Orioles, while Norfolk's racqueters emerged victorious when the doubles team of P. A. Agelasto, jr., and W. L. Lamerdin, jr., broke an existing 4-to-4 tie with Richmond by defeating the Tarpeley-Morgan combination in the last match of the day.

Baltimore Team Never In Running.

Baltimore was never in the running with the Capital netmen, Capt. Tom Mangan and his team clinching victory by winning five of the first six matches of the day. Clarence Charest, 46-year-old veteran, playing for the first time this year and without practice, was the only local netman to lose in the singles matches, being outpointed by Phil Goldsborough, jr., in straight sets, 6—0, 6—2.

By a magnificent rally, however, Bob Considine brought

Several Shares Touch New Lows as Profit Takers Sell on Rebound.

COAST LINE AT BOTTOM

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—With July wheat down to a new low at 93¾ cents, speculative sentiment turned bearish on the Stock Exchange today.

After a brief continuation of the Thursday rally, based on the large decrease in brokers' loans and the Reserve Bank rate reduction, prices broke sharply and the market lost about two-thirds of yesterday's advance. A couple of minor rallies, one of them near the close, checked the descent and final prices were slightly above the day's lows. However, net losses in active shares ranged from 3 to 7 points.

There had been little expectation that the gains made on the Thursday rise would long hold in view of the absence of any improvement in the general business situation. The cut in the bank rate, followed today by a downward revision in time money to the lowest levels in sixteen years, was generally seen as a stimulant to the bond market and as a signal that the banking authorities were working to facilitate business recovery.

Bonds made a prompt response to the exceedingly favorable developments in the money markets. Prime investment issues, especially the United States Government and the first grade rails, moved up on a larger turnover.

Grains Approach Bottom.

Grain closed virtually at the bottom in the Chicago market. July finished at the low of the day for a net loss of 2¾ cents, other months showing declines of 2⅛ and 2½. Corn was less weak, yielding about 2 cent. Cotton was irregular, but closed at net advances of 50 to 90 cents a bale. Sugar was steady.

Stocks opened strong and the pivotal industrial and utility shares soon showed improvement of two to three points. Traders were quick to take profits on the rally and the reaction from the early highs found the short interest pounding away at U. S. Steel, American Can, General Electric and others. There was little support for the leaders and the list gave ground steadily until early afternoon, when a small and short-lived rally interrupted the decline. The bears soon regained the upper hand, and efforts to halt the movement in the late trading brought out renewed selling.

The week-end trade summaries pointed to the continued quietness of business. Bradstreet's said that several lines of industry were assuming "the appearance of midyear slackness." Continued liquidation in stocks, it added, had accentuated the slower trend in the cities, while rural trade was affected by the easiness of farm produce prices. Dun's reported that "a decisive and general trade recovery plainly remains in abeyance, and the opening of summer, while it may be stimulating to certain lines, is calculated to have the usual influence of repressing most industrial activities."

U. S. Steel Drops 3 Points.

U. S. Steel yielded readily when pressure was applied and broke to 187⅜, closing as 188, or 3 points net lower. American Can came within 1⅝ of its year's minimum, made on Wednesday, and was more than 5 points off at the close.

American Telephone, making up its 2¼ point dividend at the opening price of 211, sold down to 204¾. The net decline was 2⅝. Shares losing 5 to 6 points included New York Central, Johns-Manville, North American, Standard Gas & Electric, Auburn Auto and A. M. Byers. Westinghouse lost 7, Union Pacific, American & Foreign Power, 4, and Electric Power & Light, 4, and General Motors, Radio, General Electric, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Paramount and Warner Bros., 1 to 3. Allied Chemical had an extreme drop of 14 points, recovering only moderately. J. I. Case closed 14 points lower and Eastman Kodak, 12¾. Rails making new lows included Delaware & Hudson, Atlantic Coast Line, Great Northern preferred and Kansas City Southern.

The loss in the weighted price index sales on 90 leading stocks dropped 4.3 points, against yesterday's advance of 7.3.

Foreign exchanges were firm. Most of the European rates advanced slightly, but the Spanish peseta dropped several points.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—A further advance of about 15 to 20 points in cotton prices under realizing or reselling, but steadied up again in the late trading on renewed trade buying and covering.

July contracts, after selling up to 14.01, declined to 13.71 and closed at 13.94, which is 27.30 to 13.07, closed at 13.25. The general market closed very steady at net advances of 10 to 18 points.

The opening was very steady at an advance of 8 to 12 points on overnight buying orders from Wall Street, on indifferent Liverpool cables and the favorable early weather map. It was readily absorbed with the advance extending to 13.59 for the old October and 13.50 for the new December contracts during the early trading. The demand tapered off at these figures and the market weakened during the middle of the day under a renewal of selling which appeared to be influenced by reports of warmer weather in the South, weakness in the wheat market and the unsettled ruling of stocks.

The old October sold down to 13.36 and the new December to 13.25, making net declines of about 2 to 7 points on the new crop positions, while the decline carried July 13 points net lower. The market then steadied again on the early afternoon rally in stocks and later appeared to be paying less attention to either stocks or grain, with the market developing increased firmness in the late trading on covering. The old October closed at 13.34 and new December at 13.42. July closed 69 points over the new October compared with 70 points at the close yesterday.

Part of the day's buying was attributed to the trade, particularly during the afternoon, when much of the demand was supposed to represent further covering on the technical position and some traders felt that between the reactionary impulses developing from recent declines and the talk of an improved demand from the trade, there was a little less disposition to sell on favorable weather news for the time being.

Liverpool cables said that continental buying and covering have been absorbed in American selling in that market and reported a slight improvement in the home demand for cotton goods in Manchester.

Exports today, 6,728, making 6,587,578 so far this season. Port receipts, 5,112. United States port stocks, 1,702,468.

PRIME RAIL ISSUES HEAD RISE IN BONDS

Slump in Rediscount Rates Aids Fixed Income List to Move Upward.

FOREIGN SECTION MIXED

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Fixed income-bearing securities made a quick and strong response today to the reduction of the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate to the lowest point in history.

Under the leadership of United States Governments which broke through the previous year's high prices, all grades of prime investment issues moved upward. Prime rail issues showed the greatest vitality, as banks, life insurance companies and investment trusts displayed renewed interest in the yields available on high grade bonds at prevailing money rates.

The average showed that railroad bonds gained four-tenths of a point, representing the largest rise in a day's trading in several months. The rails now are seven-tenths of a point under the year's high established in March.

Other Domestic Lists Firm.

The same firmness was demonstrated to a lesser degree among other domestic bonds. Many foreign issues responded to a better inquiry but more irregularity characterized the movement of this group than was evident in domestic bonds.

The rate reduction of the Federal Reserve rate to 2½ per cent from 3 was seen as a measure designed to end the dormant state of the bond market, and to give assurance that the cheapest credit in many years probably would continue throughout the summer.

Also, following the rediscount rate reduction, adjustments were made in other sections of the money market, with time money, bankers' acceptances and commercial paper quoted at lower levels.

Convertibles Are Irregular.

Convertibles, sympathetic to the trend of the stock market, were irregular, rallying at the start, then reacting, and gaining at the close, with a few exceptions.

New highs were reached by Canadian Pacific 4s, Chesapeake & Ohio general 4½s, Illinois Central (Louisville division), 3½s, New York Central 4½s, and Union Pacific 4s. Gains among rails ranged from ¼ to 1 point generally, and in some instances advances of 2 and 3 points were registered. Establishment of additional utility issues as legal investments for New York savings banks was reflected in the trading, but the gains were nominal.

All United States Governments were marked up sharply to new 1930 highs, but only the Liberty 4th 4¼s and Treasury 3¾s, of '43-'47 closed at the top.

CAPITAL MAY SALES OF INSURANCE CLIMB

14 Per Cent Rise in Writing of Life Annuities Over Same 1929 Month.

AMERICAN FIRE CO. AIDS

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

May sales of life insurance in the District of Columbia showed a 14 per cent increase over the month last year, the monthly survey of Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau, of Hartford, Conn., revealed yesterday. The District stood fourth on a list of sixteen States showing gains, headed by Delaware, with a gain of 61 per cent, and closed by New York and California, showing gains of 1 per cent. May sales in the District totaled $6,114,000 and 54 per cent of the local companies reported gains in business.

All officers and trustees of the American Fire Insurance Co. of the District of Columbia have been re-elected as follows: Charles Schafer, president; Francis A. Blundon, vice president; H. H. Bergmann, treasurer; G. M. Emmerich, secretary; F. J. Ehlers, assistant secretary. Directors, Charles Schafer, Victor B. Deyber, Max Walten, Harry M. Packard, Francis A. Blundon, Carl J. Bergmann, A. F. Jorss, H. H. Bergmann and G. M. Emmerich.

One hundred and fifty thousand stores, transacting one-tenth of the country's total annual retail business of $50,000,000,000, are identified with 6,000 chains at present in operation, according to "Chain Store Statistics," prepared for distribution by Merrill, Lynch & Co. and E. A. Pierce & Co. In practice abroad about 400 years previously, the chain-store idea had its inception in the United States in 1858, the booklet declares.

"The establishment of a Great Atlantic & Pacific grocery store 72 years ago proved to be the beginning of what has grown to be one of the ranking industries of the world, comprising practically every class of retail business. In 1879, or 21 years later, the first unit of another one of our great retail institutions of today was founded by the late Frank W. Woolworth. In the ensuing 25-year period numerous other businesses were started which have since grown to be great chain store organizations. These included McCrory & Kroger, founded in 1882; Childs, in 1889; Melville & Kinney, in 1894; S. H. Kress, in 1896; Kresge, in 1897; Shattuck, in 1898; National Tea, in 1899; Daniel Reeves, in 1900; Lane Bryant, in 1901, and Penney & Walgreen, in 1902. The origin of First National Stores dates back to 1895. The growth of Safeway Stores and the organization of the MacMarr chain have been outstanding developments of recent years."

At a meeting of the board of directors of Liberty National Bank yesterday the semiannual dividend of $3.50 per share on the capital stock of the institution was declared payable June 30 to stockholders of record June 25. The books are not to be closed.

Thomas J. Mangan, jr., manager of the Washington office of Hemphill, Noyes & Co., and Robert J. Carpenter of that office have returned from a business visit in New York.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Pilot; Manhattan.

G. A. P.—Will you kindly inform me regarding Pilot Radio & Tube and Manhattan Electrical Supply as to why these stocks have dropped so much? Is it advisable to buy these stocks now?

Answer—This column never advises regarding the purchase of any stock. However, it may be said that Pilot Radio & Tube at prevailing low prices has considerable attractiveness, as dividends of $1.20 are now being paid on the issue, while earnings of the company are steadily increasing, the amount earned on the Class A in 1929 having been equal to $1.84 a share, compared with $1.61 a share in 1928. There is no apparent reason, therefore, for the recent decline in the stock. Manhattan Electrical Supply, on the other hand, does not look at all attractive. No dividends have been paid on the stock since July 1, 1928. Earnings of the company are quite satisfactory, being equal to $1.76 a share for 1929, compared with a deficit of $4.83 per share in 1928. However, the stock was lately subjected to rank manipulation by a pool operating in it, which transaction called forth an investigation on the part of the attorney general of New York. It was largely due to this that the stock lately had such a sensational drop.

Barber & Ross; Others.

S. S.—Please advise me of the present standing and future prospects of these securities: Barber & Ross Co. 6½ per cent bonds of 1937, Real Estate Mortgage & Guarantee 8 per cent preferred stock, Baltimore Traction Co., North Baltimore Division, 5 per cent bonds of 1942; Continental Baking Co. 8 per cent preferred stock, Midland Natural Gas Co. Class A stock, Appalachian Natural Gas Co. common, National Family Stores preferred and common stock, North American Co. common, Commercial Investment Trust common? Please advise number of times rights to purchase stocks and bonds of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. have been issued to stockholders in last eight years?

Answer—Barber & Ross Co. bonds, which yield 7.22 per cent at prevailing prices and 8.48 per cent to maturity, are not given a rating by bond authorities for lack of sufficient data. For same reason no appraisal can be made of Real Estate Mortgage & Guarantee 8 per cent preferred stock. Baltimore Traction bonds, yielding 5.68 per cent and 6.45 per cent to maturity, are rated "good." Considering that Continental Baking 8 per cent preferred, on which dividends have been paid regularly for a number of years and with earnings much in excess of requirements, yields to, at prevailing prices, approximately 11 per cent, the stock possesses considerable attractiveness. Midland Natural Gas, Class A, paying $1.20 yearly in dividends, stands fairly well as a speculative investment. Appalachian Natural Gas, as a nondividend payer, is highly speculative.

National Family Stores, paying $2 yearly on the preferred and $1.60 on common, is very well thought of from a speculative-investment viewpoint; the same likewise applies to Commercial Investment Trust, on which dividends of $1.60 a year, plus 6 per cent in stock are being paid. North American Co. common, which receives 10 per cent annual stock dividends, is among the most favored investments in its class. In each of eleven years during period from 1901 to 1929, inclusive, and five of the nine years to 1929, inclusive, American Telephone & Telegraph shareholders received subscription rights of value. All rights were for purchase of stock, except in 1929, when convertible bonds were offered.

Ideal Investments.

K. H. F.—I am writing for a few stocks which may be classed as ideal investments at midyear.

Answer—Wall street banks have been advising clients to take advantage of prevailing market prices to pick up American Telephone & Telegraph, Eastman Kodak, Consolidated Gas, National Biscuit, International Telephone & Telegraph, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Can, Public Service, United Gas Improvement, Borden and National Dairy Products, the earnings showing of which is expected to be good.

Spang, Chalfant.

L. N.—Kindly give me some information regarding Spang, Chalfant. What line of business is the company in?

Answer—Spang, Chalfant manufactures equipment for the oil industry. It is understood to have large orders on hand—so large that deliveries on new contracts can not be promised until October. Earnings for the first six months, as a result, should benefit accordingly and will probably exceed the showing of $2.17 per common share for the first half of 1929.

Plans are under way to develop laboratory research work to test materials and develop tubular goods to meet demands of a special nature from oil interests. No dividends are paid on the common, which must be placed in the category of a speculation.

Consolidated Gas.

T. P. A.—How do you regard a purchase of Consolidated Gas?

Answer—Consolidated Gas is considered one of the best investment issues of the public utility group. The Sun Life Assurance Co., one of the biggest investors in high-grade stocks, has been a large buyer of the stock in connection with its June 1 reinvestment purchases.

Consolidated Gas will play an important part in New York State power developments, being mentioned in plans regarding a hookup with the Niagara Hudson Power Co., which operates in the northern part of the State, and which will also figure prominently in superpower plans.

National Biscuit.

F. F. S.—I am thinking of investing in National Biscuit. How do you regard the stock from an investment angle?

Answer—The stock, considering its banking sponsorship, earnings and dividend record over a period of years, may be regarded as a conservative investment in which to place surplus funds. Earnings for the current year are conservatively estimated at $3.50 per share, which would be more than sufficient for the current rate of dividends which is $2.80 annually.

Prevailing low price of commodities has been of considerable benefit to the company. Although prices were reduced on some of its products not long ago, there has been no reduction in package goods, the demand for which usually shows an increase during the summer months.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Commercial failures in the United States during the week totaled 487, compared with 489 last week and 485 two weeks ago, R. G. Dun & Co. reports. During the corresponding week last year 427 defaults were reported. Fewer insolvencies occurred this week than last week in the East and on the Pacific Coast, but these decreases were almost offset by higher totals for the South and West.

The Republic Steel Corporation and Cotton exports for the week were reported at 25,234 bales, compared with 49,767 last week and 80,121 for the like week last year. Exports so far this season total 6,587,578 bales, against 7,907,971 in the corresponding period in 1929.

Slight improvement in demand for cotton gray goods was noted today narrow print cloths, wide odds, and some sheetings and drills sold. Prices ruled unchanged. Better business in rayon and cotton lining goods was reported, with some sales of broadcloths, lawns, and fancies. Cotton insulating yarns were of interest in some quarters. Moderate demand for wool goods continued to be felt. Burlaps were quiet. Spot raw silks were quiet and unchanged. Fall silk merchandise lines were moving slowly.

The Reischbank discount rate was reduced to 4 per cent today and the Lombard rate to 5 per cent.

The Michigan Steel Corporation has declared an extra dividend of 1 per cent in stock, payable October 20 to stock of record September 20.

Directors of the Municipal Telephone & Utilities Co. have declared an extra dividend of 25 cents a share on the class "A" common stock, payable November 15 to stock of record, October 15.

There was a continuance of the decline in cotton during the earlier part of the week with all months making new low records for the season on Wednesday under further liquidation and more or less general selling of the new crop positions. This was influenced by a belief that the crop was making fairly good progress, continued poor trade reports, the reduction in the July premium and the weakness in other markets, particularly grain and securities. A good many stop orders were uncovered on the decline which extended to 13.20 for July contracts and 12.59 for the new October delivery. Between the 12½ and 13 cent levels for the new crop months, however, cotton appeared to be attracting increased attention. It was reported that inquiries were being received here from the trade abroad, asking for quotations on cotton for forward shipments, extending in some cases over a period of one or two years. There was also some broadening of commission house interest, apparently, but it was considered a question by local brokers whether the rally was so much a reflection of confidence in prices as the expression of an improved technical position.

CLAIRVOYANTS

CLAIRVOYANT THE MAN WHO KNOWS
608 12th St. N.W.
Over Woolworth's 5c & 10c Store

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travel, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power.

Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay.

PUBLIC NOTICES

ZONING COMMISSION OF THE DISTRICT of Columbia, June 20, 1930. In accordance with the provisions of Section 3 of an Act of Congress, approved March 1, 1920 (Public No. 153, 66th Congress, entitled "An Act to regulate the height, area and use of buildings in the District of Columbia and to create a Zoning Commission, and for other purposes," notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held in the Board Room of the District Building beginning at 10:00 A. M., JULY 2, 1930, for the purpose of considering the following proposed changes in the Zoning Regulations, to wit: Add to Section XIII, page 11, of the Zoning Regulations, a new paragraph, as follows: "13. In the residential, 60' C area district on streets 110 feet or more in width, buildings may be erected to any height not to exceed 90 feet, nor more than 8 stories in height, provided that for each 5 feet, or fraction thereof, above 60 feet, the allowable lot occupancy shall be reduced by 4 per cent of the total lot area, and provided further that such buildings shall have a side yard on each side, and that the waiver contained in Paragraph 1, Section XIX shall not apply." W. B. LADUE, L. H. REICHELDERFER, H. B. CROSBY, DAVID LYNN, U. S. GRANT 3D, Zoning Commission of the District of Columbia. june21-d&s-10t

SWIMMER DROWNS IN POTOMAC; FRIEND HURT TRYING RESCUE

W. W. Voelker Is Lost in River Just West of Chain Bridge.

TRAGEDY BELIEVED CAUSED BY CRAMPS

August Grove Nearly Loses Life in Attempting to Reach Comrade.

Seized apparently with cramps as he was attempting to swim across the Potomac River a short distance west of Chain Bridge, W. W. Voelker, 45 years old, a painter, of 363 K street southwest, was drowned in the treacherous currents as a companion narrowly escaped a similar fate in striving to rescue him late yesterday afternoon.

The other swimmer, August Grove, 21 years old, came within inches of reaching Voelker as both battled the dangerous eddies. When the man sank beneath the Chain Bridge for the second and last time Grove, his own strength fast ebbing, struck out desperately for the nearby Virginia shore, which he reached as two other companions started to his aid.

Dazed From Blow to Head.

Grove was dazed from striking his head on a rock, and a deep gash was torn in his left side where he had crashed against a submerged boulder, but when he realized that he would be unable to rescue Voelker he fought against the current until he reached shore.

Not knowing that Sims and Woodard had started to his assistance from around the bend a quarter of a mile distance, Grove dragged himself feebly up the precipitous palisade and was found there almost an hour later by John Mills, colored, an employe of Mrs. William Doak, who lives on the summit of the cliff.

In the meantime, when they were unable to find either Grove or the body of Voelker, Sims and Woodard had climbed to Mrs. Doak's home and asked her to telephone to the Washington police, which she did, after which the two youths and Mills scattered to search for the two missing men.

Removed to Hospital.

Grove was removed in the Seventh Precinct patrol to Georgetown Hospital, where he was reported in a semiconscious condition last night.

Police meanwhile started dragging operations to locate the body of Voelker, which was believed to have been carried beneath one of the innumerable rocks in the river where it flows with unusual speed under the bridge, linking the District and Virginia shores.

At midnight attempts to recover the body were abandoned till daylight.

Dragging Attempt Futile.

The tragedy occurred as the climax of a swimming party, including Voelker, Grove, and two other companions, Chester Woodard, of Fairfax, and John Sims, of Columbia Hospital, who a few moments earlier had driven to a spot on the Virginia side of the river a short distance above Chain bridge.

Was Excellent Summer.

Voelker, changing into his bathing suit ahead of his friends, started into the water with a shout that he would swim the river. His companions explained later that he was an excellent swimmer.

Reaching midstream, Voelker gave a cry, floundered for a moment and disappeared. Swift undercurrents carried him a short distance down the river, and he reappeared and was struggling to keep himself afloat as Grove plunged into the water and started to his aid. As both were swept dizzily about in the churning waters, Grove came within inches of grabbing his friend as the latter sank. Grove, faint from his own labors, then turned toward shore.

Death in Blazing Car Held Accident

Coroner's Jury Action in Mildred Sloper's Case Releases Youth.

Accidental death was the verdict of Fairfax County Coroner Dr. C. A. Ransom, at Falls Church, in the case of Mildred Sloper, of Antioch Chapel, who died from burns received when gasoline ignited at Merrified Garage last Monday night as the car in which she was a passenger was being filled.

Coroner Ransom only investigated that part of the girl's trip from the time she reached the garage until her death in a Washington hospital Tuesday morning. It was stated at the inquest that one of the boys with her at the time of the fire lighted a cigarette near the car, causing the gasoline to ignite. Joe Mills, jr., and John Harper were with her at the time.

Sheriff E. P. Kirby stated he was told that the girl had left home Sunday afternoon with Fred Pettitt, a married man living in Vienna, and had not returned home prior to her death. Pettitt was not with her at the Merrifield Garage.

Following the verdict Sheriff Kirby released John Harper, who had been held in the Fairfax Jail. Pettitt and Mills are still held under bond by the sheriff awaiting further developments.

Capital Doctor Freed On Charges of Threats

Dr. Robert J. Armstrong, 57 years old, of an apartment on North Capitol street near M street, has been freed of charges of threats brought against him several days ago by Attorney Oscar H. Brinkman, of the Rust Building.

Charges against the physician were nolle prossed in Police Court after he is said to have signed a statement to the effect that he would not further molest the attorney. In the article concerning Dr. Armstrong's arrest The Post reported Dr. Armstrong as making certain statements which the attorney considers derogatory to him. The Post expresses its regret to Mr. Brinkman.

Boy, Digging, Hurt by Pick.

While engaged with companions in digging a hole in the rear of his home on Sixth street near A street northeast, Robert Grimm, 7 years old, received lacerations on the wrist when struck by a pick wielded by one of the other boys.

$10,000 BOND FIXED IN MAIL FRAUD CASE

Hertz Accused of Dealing With Securities of the F. H. Smith Co.

UNABLE TO RAISE BAIL

Gustav C. Hertz, president of the North American Investment Bankers, Inc., was arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday and was unable to make bond of $10,000. Hertz, who is under indictment in the District of Columbia on charges of perjury in connection with the bankruptcy of the Hamilton Hotel is charged in a warrant with using the mails to defraud. He is said to have been trading in securities of the F. H. Smith Co., which recently removed to New York after becoming involved in many legal difficulties.

Hertz was arrested by a raiding squad of United States marshals and Department of Justice agents under the direction of Nugent Dodds, a special assistant to the Attorney General, who has been in charge of all recent Smith Co. cases cited before the grand jury. The raid was made on Hertz's offices in the Investment Building and a quantity of records were seized. The raid was led by Deputy United States Marshal John J. Clarkson.

According to the warrant on which Hertz was arrested he is alleged to have been trading in Smith Co. securities and was dealing with customers of the company.

The warrant on which Hertz was arrested was issued by the commissioner and also named Wellwood F. Hastings as a defendant. The latter had not been apprehended.

Hertz is now under bond in connection with the Hamilton Hotel case. He was indicted jointly with G. Bryan Pitts and another man.

Merchants' Group Seeking New Park

Unit to Ask District Heads to Purchase Northwest Plot for Purpose.

Purchase of property north of the Connecticut avenue bridge, which has been zoned as commercial, by the District Commissioners to be used for a park will be asked by the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

In adopting resolutions to this effect at a meeting yesterday afternoon, the directors of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association called attention to the fact that Connecticut avenue is already threatening to develop into a thoroughfare of gasoline stations and stores. The directors will suggest to the District Commissioners that funds for the purchase of the property be included in the next District appropriations bill.

The directors of the association also went on record as favoring the widening of E street from Fifth street east to Union Station. The street is now widened as far as Fifth street. Widening of H street, east of Seventh street and making this a double traffic street all the way through will also be urged by the association. In taking this action, the directors pointed out that K street is the only east-west thoroughfare in the downtown area permitting through double traffic. Other streets are one-way in sections or are blocked by buildings, it was observed.

Man Seriously Hurt in Fall.

Harry Taylor is in a serious condition at the Insurance Clinic after falling about 25 feet from a scaffolding at St. Gabriel's Church, on Grant Circle, yesterday afternoon. The man, who lives at Third and E streets northwest, has severe rib injuries and internal hurts.

Negligence Denied In Auto Crash Suit

Other Driver at Fault, Both Fred M. and Fred P. Haas Tell Court.

Fred M. Haas and Fred P. Hass, both of 3005 Twenty-sixth street northeast, filed separate answers yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court in which they denied charges contained in a suit for $100,000 damages filed against them by the American Automobile Association.

Both Fred M. Haas, who admits ownership of the automobile, and Fred P. Haas, who admits operating the machine, deny that there was any negligence on their part. Both assert that the automobile operated by Otto Neilson, a codefendant in one of the suits, was at fault.

The suit of the American Automobile Association was brought on behalf of Emmet L. Rudd, a salesman of the organization, who was injured February 3, last, at Rhode Island avenue and Mills street northwest, when struck by an automobile said to have been operated by Fred P. Haas. The Haas declare that the machine operated by Neilson struck their automobile and caused the man's injuries.

AUTO CRASHES KILL TWO CAPITAL MEN

One Dies When Machines Hit at Street Corner; Drivers Held.

OTHER CAR OVERTURNS

Two Washington men were killed yesterday in automobile accidents. They were Edward Bellmore, 60 years old, of 633 Gresham place northwest, and John N. Hellwig, 32 years old, of 1374 F street northeast.

Bellmore, post tailor at Fort Humphreys, Va., was killed when the car in which he was riding was struck by another machine at Twelfth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest. He was riding in a car allegedly driven by Luther C. Proffitt, 26 years old, a soldier detailed to the fort. The other car was driven, police said, by Harry Walker Summers, 2301 N street northwest. Both drivers were arrested and held for the coroner's inquest.

Hellwig was killed when his car overturned on the road between Meadows and Reds Corner, Md., not far from the place where James T. Flanagan was killed in the same manner a few weeks ago. Apparently the man applied the brakes too suddenly and lost control of his car. His companion, Miss Myrtle Edwards, was uninjured, though the car turned over several times. There will be no inquest in his death.

Mr. Bellmore will be buried tomorrow at Adas Israel Cemetery, following services at his home at 1 o'clock.

Mr. Bellmore was born in Philadelphia and had lived in this city for 30 years. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Anna Walter and Mrs. Edith Hoffman; and two sons, Carl and Bernard Bellmore, all of this city.

Guggenheim Fellowship Winner Will Be Honored

Clarence Cameron White, colored violinist and composer, who has been awarded a Guggenheim fellowship for a year's study in Europe, by reason of his compositions of folk melody in the African strain, will be tendered a reception tonight at the Phyllis Wheatley Young Women's Christian Association parlors, Ninth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest, preliminary to his departure.

He is a native Washingtonian, and a graduate of Oberlin College, who in recent years has directed the musical department of the Colored Collegiate Institute at Institute, W. Va. There will be a program of music by local artists.

Messenger Badly Injured As Motorcycle Hits Curb

Ellery Ellis in Hospital With Fractured Spine as Result of Crash in Northeast Section; First Aid Given at Walter Reed.

Hurled to the pavement at Piney Branch road and Van Buren street northwest when his motorcycle struck the curb, Ellery H. Ellis, 19 years old, of 130 Carroll avenue, Takoma Park, Md., an employe of the Western Union branch office in that community, received serious injuries yesterday afternoon.

After receiving first aid from Maj. James R. Hudnall, at Walter Reed Hospital, Ellis was removed to Emergency Hospital, where he was reported suffering from a fracture of the spine, lacerations of the skull and bruises about the arms and legs.

The accident occurred while Ellis was veering close to the curbstone in rounding the curve at the corner to make room for a companion, Wesley Moore, 21 years old, of Philadelphia, Pa., riding another machine. Moore said Ellis was operating the motorcycle with a soft front tire, which may have wobbled as he drove close to the curb, causing the accident and throwing the rider to the street.

Ellis resides with his grandmother, Mrs. Stella Ellis, a nurse employed at Washington Sanitarium, in Takoma Park.

WIFE DENIES TRYING TO SHOOT BUCHANAN

Millionaire Mate Goaded Her to Suicide Attempt Once, She Admits.

PLEA FOR MONEY FAILS

Mrs. Ruth Lester Buchanan yesterday denied charges that she had attempted to shoot her husband, John R. Buchanan, millionaire heir of the late Gen. Buchanan, whose home is in Warrenton, Va., but who is affiliated with one or more Washington clubs. The denial was contained in her answer to her husband's answer to her petition for separate maintenance.

Mrs. Buchanan denied that she was possessed of a vile and vicious temper and that she was cruel or inhuman toward her husband. She admits that she did attempt on one occasion to take her life, but declares that her act was prompted by his continued goading. A reconciliation followed immediately, she says.

The wife, in addition, told the court that her husband now desires to leave her because he is possessed of considerable means and wants to lead a different life. She also asserts that since the [illegible] her husband he has not sought to [illegible] she is willing to leave the Warrenton home if he desires.

Mrs. Buchanan filed suit several weeks ago alleging that her husband had deserted her and their children and had failed to provide adequate support.

Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat late yesterday afternoon refused Mrs. Buchanan's petition for $1,000 a month temporary maintenance pending the hearing of her petition on its merits.

Mrs. Buchanan is represented by the law firm of Wilton J. Lambert, R. H. Yeatman and George D. Horning, jr., while the husband is represented by the firm of Minor, Gately & Drury.

Census Man's Defier Found Insane by Jury

Patrick Gallagher, of M street northwest near Fourteenth street, who defied census enumerators to get the "dope on him" and who referred the census director of the District to Vice President Curtis for the information, yesterday was pronounced insane by a District of Columbia Supreme Court jury before Justice William Hitz.

Gallagher was arrested several weeks ago on a warrant sworn to by J. Sterling Moran, census director. Arraigned in Police Court, Gallagher was ordered sent to Gallinger Hospital for observation. Physicians at that institution declared the man insane. Yesterday the same physicians appeared as witnesses against him and the jury declared him to be of unsound mind.

Adkins Will Be Sworn In as Justice Monday

Jesse C. Adkins, whose nomination as justice of the District of Columbia Supreme Court was confirmed by the Senate Wednesday, will be sworn in next Monday.

The ceremony will be in open court, with all justices in attendance and Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat presiding. Mr. Adkins takes the place made vacant when Justice Wheat was elevated to the chief justiceship to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy.

Girl's Leg Fractured When Auto Strikes Her

Knocked down by an automobile near her home yesterday, Helen Stanley, 7 years old, of H street, near Twelfth street northeast, was treated at Casualty Hospital for a fracture of the leg. Her condition is not serious.

Witnesses said the child ran into the street in front of the car, which was driven by the Rev. W. A. Emmons, of Trinidad avenue, near Twelfth street northeast. Mr. Emmons is pastor of the Maryland Avenue Baptist Church.

Boy, 9, Bitten by Dog.

George Divers, 9 years old, of 1353 D street southwest, suffered minor lacerations of the lower right leg yesterday afternoon while playing in a yard on C street near Thirteenth street southwest when he was bitten by an unlicensed dog. The child was treated at Emergency Hospital and dismissed. The dog was turned over to the Animal Rescue League.

Lad, 9, Stabbed by Boy.

Ellsworth Williams, colored, 9 years old, of 227 H street southwest, is near death in Children's Hospital after being knifed in a fight with another colored boy at Third and F streets yesterday. The other boy escaped after stabbing young Williams several times near the heart with a pocket knife. The assailant was also about 9.

CITY FACING LACK OF MONEY TO RUN SUMMER SCHOOLS

Appropriation Bill Tie-Up Is Causing Serious Hitch in Project.

3,500 CAPITAL PUPILS PLAN TO ATTEND TERM

Continuing Resolution Seen as Hope, but Personnel Would Be Reduced.

Washington summer schools, due to open on July 7, are facing dire complications on account of the deadlock affliction of the District appropriation bill.

If this bill fails to go through, the only financial lever that will reopen the schools for the summer will be a continuing resolution from Congress, it was explained last night by Walter B. Patterson, supervisor of special activities in District schools.

And even if this extension clause is given life, the schools will be handicapped by lack of teachers; classes will have to be enlarged and it is possible that a large number of pupils, desiring the advantages of summer school, will be denied the opportunity of a summer course.

12 Fewer Teachers Seen.

An extension clause will allow the summer schools one-twelfth of the monthly appropriation of last year. This means that the summer schools will be obliged to proceed with about twelve fewer teachers than would be possible if the District appropriation bill is passed. This situation will enlarge the number of pupils in each class. Moreover, there may not be a sufficient number of teachers of a certain subject to teach the students desiring that subject.

More than 3,500 children in high schools, junior high schools and the elementary schools of the city are clamoring for summer school. They include students who desire to make up for time lost during the regular school year so that they can graduate on schedule time, and those who, although well up to schedule, wish to get through school in double quick time.

160 Instructors Provided For.

Provision is made in the 1931 appropriation bill, now in deadlock, for 57 teachers in the high, 25 in the junior high and 78 in the elementary schools during this summer.

Loss of the appropriation bill and substitution of the extension clause will lop four teachers in each group from the expected number.

Summer school teacher appointments have been made with the understanding that the funds will be made available. If the appropriation bill fails to go through and a continuing resolution is not granted summer schools will not be able to open. School officials have little fear of this occuring, but they point out that a great deal depends on the wording of the continuing resolutions so that summer schools will be definitely provided for.

Summer schools are due to open July 7 and continue to August 15. Virtually the same situation faces the colored schools.

Man Answers Two Suits Which Seek $100,000

George E. Walker, lumber dealer, of K street southwest near Seventh street, yesterday filed answers to two suits brought against him in District Supreme Court in which two 7-year-old cousins, through their respective fathers, seek to recover damages totaling $100,000. In each instance Mr. Walker declares that the children themselves were to blame.

The children, Joseph Warner Poe and Eileen Poe, alleged that while playing on a coaster wagon on G street southwest near their home several months ago that they were struck by a truck owned by Mr. Walker and were permanently injured. Attorneys Welch, Daily & Welch appear for Mr. Walker.

$1,200,000 Estate Left by Miss Riggs

Bulk of Property Is Placed in Trust Fund for Two Nephews.

Miss Jane A. Riggs, daughter of George W. Riggs, founder of the banking house of Riggs & Co., left an estate valued at more than $1,200,000, according to the petition for the probate of her will filed yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court.

Miss Riggs owned personal property valued at $636,000, and the remainder of her holdings were in real estate. The bulk of the estate is left in trust to two nephews, Thomas Lawrason Riggs and Elisha Francis Riggs. Special provision is made that at the death of the former, the trust fund is to be distributed among certain persons, while in the latter case the income is to be paid to descendants.

In addition to leaving a number of life annuities, Miss Riggs left special bequests for several nephews and nieces. She also provided for several servants and made the following charitable bequests: Georgetown University Hospital, Little Sisters of the Poor, St. Joseph's Male Orphan Asylum, St. Vincent's Female Orphan Asylum, St. Ann's Infant Asylum and St. Matthews Catholic Church, $1,000 each.

Drama Guild Repeats Tempest Performance

The "Tempest" was presented for the second time last night before a capacity audience at the Sylvan Theater on the Monument Grounds. Players from the Community Drama Guild participated in the show.

As at the previous performance Thursday night the crowd filled the hillside as the show opened. Portrayal of the characters was exceptionally well done by the players.

Dr. M. Luther Dicus, of 1319 F street northwest, was elected vice president of the International Association of Board of Examiners in Optometry at the meeting this week in Boston, according to word received by the Washington society.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA was particularly anxious for me to make a good impression where we were going to play bridge.

"Oh, it isn't the bridge," she said, "it's the meeting up with this great importer, a Mister, er-uh, what is his name, who is guest——"

"An importer? He couldn't, by any chance, be the man we get the cheese from, the Lieberscratz, I got at the market the other day? Or was it Camembert?"

It then occurred to Luella that we hadn't even used that cheese, a block about six inches in all three dimensions; cubic measurement I guess you'd call it.

After the bridge work was over—work is right—we prepared for one of those midnight luncheons, dealt off the arm. The heart stuff flowed, and the hostess confessed she was suffering a great disappointment. Her marketman had failed to send the imported cheese—and the guest was an importer. So they were using instead a cheap American brand.

* * * * *

LUELLA'S eyes fairly danced. She remembered the imported cheese we had home in the ice box. "You just slip out the back way, hop in the car, run over and get our cheese," she commanded, "and we'll give 'em a big surprise."

Well, we did give 'em a big surprise.

I got back just as the big butter and egg man from overseas was giving a dissertation on cheese—the finest ever I heard.

"And now we have a surprise for you," said Luella, taking the package from me.

When she opened the paper and set it in front of the company there were gasps of wonder:

"Lubersan?" asked the importer.

Never quite sure what it was, I mumbled, "Gumperlumptumblix."

At any moment, I feared the old man might smell this cheese as cheese experts have a way of doing; but he was interested, instead, in a glass of near-beer—comparing it, no doubt, to the old Pilsener he had left behind on his American voyage.

Everybody invited to help themselves, the boys and girls pitched into my cheese, but not before I managed to advertise its merits to various friends, who had never been in the old country.

Everybody bit into the cheese at the same time—and as promptly laid it down.

* * * * *

ON the way home, Luella hardly spoke to me. Arriving at the Old Manse she made a rush for the ice box: "Just as I thought," she said, "you'd have to do the wrong thing, and I did want you to make an impression——"

"The wrong thing? What'd you mean, the wrong thing?"

She stood, looked me full in the eye, stomped her foot—and breathed not a word.

"What did I do, Luella, that makes you look at me like this?"

"You, you, you," she stammered, and lost her breath.

"Well, what?"

"You," she said, and her words came like sharp flashes of lightning, "you, you took over the salt pork."

No wonder Luella got mad.

AUTO DEATH FINDING IS MANSLAUGHTER

Driver Who Ran Into Woman Now Faces 15 Years by Jury's Verdict.

FEARED TO STRIKE CARS

Charles W. Rucker was convicted yesterday by a District Supreme Court jury before Justice William Hitz of manslaughter in connection with an automobile death.

Rucker was convicted of having killed Mary Raedy, 55 years old, when his automobile struck her down at the intersection of Pennsylvania avenue and Twenty-fifth street northwest, on October 5 last.

Testimony at the trial was to the effect that the man said if he had swerved out of the woman's path he would have damaged parked automobiles. This statement was testified to by policemen who arrested the man. It also was testified that he was negligent in the operation of the machine; that it was about dusk when the accident occurred, and that the streets were dry.

The maximum penalty under the law is fifteen years. Whether a motion for a new trial will be made could not be learned. Assistant United States Attorney James F. Hughes appeared for the Government, while the defendant was represented by Attorney John J. McGinnis.

Man Seeks $100,000 For Loss of Both Legs

Jack H. Runyan, of the Soldiers' Home Hospital, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court, seeking to recover $100,000 damages from the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. for the loss of both his legs.

Mr. Runyan tells the court that on November 24, 1927, he was a paid passenger on one of the railroad's trains between Baltimore and Washington, and that when alighting here he was knocked from his feet by a truck on the unloading platform and that as a result he was injured so badly that his legs had to be amputated. Attorneys T. Morris Wampler and Joseph C. Turco appear for the plaintiff.

Alleged Rumrunner Caught by Police Squad

Acting on information that Louis Hinley, 43 years old, of Twelfth street, near First street southeast, was bringing two loads of liquor a day into Washington, Sergt. Little's squad yesterday lay in wait for the man on the Silver Spring road.

When he came through they followed him a few blocks and stopped him at Georgia avenue and Floral street northwest. Sergt. Little said the man had 120 half-gallons of liquor in his car. He was charged with transportation and possession at Sixth Precinct.

Man Injured as Crate Falls.

While unloading a crate of lettuce from a truck in B street near Ninth street northwest yesterday afternoon, Clement McKessick, 30 years old, of 3724 Veasey street northwest, was severely injured when he slipped and the crate fell on him. McKessick was removed to Emergency Hospital suffering from possible fractures of the back and pelvis.

4-H CLUB MEMBERS NATIONALS' GUESTS

Ball Team Host to Delegates After They Hear Talk by Wilbur.

D. A. R. AWARD PLANNED

Baseball provided the big moment in the lives of 150 boys and girls of the 4-H camp yesterday, when the young farmers and farmerettes were the guests of the Washington Team at Griffith Stadium.

Addressing the club members in the auditorium of the new National Museum yesterday morning, Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, discussed such human problems as housing, clothing, food supply, health and defense.

He attributed practically all progress in modern civilization to the so-called "experimental method." He said: "When we know the why of the thing, then our advance begins. One of the reasons for the great progress of this country has been our great curiosity and our very general use of the experimental method."

Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general of the National Society of Daughters of the American Revolution, announced that her organization will give a scholarship to the girl attending the 4-H camp, who has made the most outstanding record.

The day's program closed with a lesson in recreation leadership under the direction of W. P. Jackson, of the Playground and Recreation Association of America. The customary campfire meeting was held at 8 o'clock.

James C. Stone, vice chairman of the Federal Farm Board, will be the speaker at the museum this morning, and in the afternoon there will be educational tours through the greenhouses of the Department of Agriculture and to Mount Vernon. There will be a banquet at the United States Chamber of Commerce at 6:30 o'clock tonight.

Restoration Work Will Start Soon

Wakefield, Birthplace of Washington, Will Be Rebuilt.

First work incident to the proposed early construction in restoration of Wakefield, the birthplace of George Washington, in Westmoreland County, Va., will be started within the next few days, according to a decision reached yesterday at a meeting of the building committee of the Wakefield National Memorial Association.

The group, headed by former Gov. Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, as its chairman, in a meeting at the home of a member, Mrs. H. L. Rust, at 2101 Connecticut avenue northwest, indorsed drawings for the new Wakefield submitted by another member of the committee, Edward W. Donn, jr. Announcement was made that the first work will be the making of bricks in a kiln on the Wakefield estate.

Other members of the committee present, in addition to former Gov. Byrd, Mrs. Rust and Mr. Donn were Mrs. John D. Sherman, H. M. Albright and Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of Public Buildings and Public Parks.

HICCOUGH VICTIM TO QUIT HOSPITAL TODAY AS CURED

Spasms Cease After Nearly Two Weeks; Return Held Unlikely.

PRESSURE ON NERVES OF NECK GIVES RELIEF

Charles W. Reid Recipient of Many "Remedies" From Sympathizers Afar.

After almost two weeks of continual hiccoughing, Charles W. Reid, 32-year-old blacksmith, 1348 Girard street northwest, will probably be released from Casualty Hospital today as cured.

The paraxysms which had racked the body of the blacksmith did not recur at any time yesterday and hospital authorities last night felt confident that the treatment administered the patient had finally proved fruitful.

Mr. Reid, who suffered the first attack two weeks ago tomorrow, has been confined to the hospital ever since.

Many Cures Offered.

His strange malady has caused the hospital to be flooded with hundreds of telegrams from all parts of the country offering cures for the diaphragmatic spasms. Hundreds of telephone calls from District residents offering cures were also received.

The favorite cure suggested by most of the sympathizers with Mr. Reid was the damson plum cure. Others suggested tickling the patient's throat with a feather, while some even advocated standing the patient on his head.

Hospital physicians finally began to exert pressure on the nerves in the patient's throat. This seemed to have the greatest effect in abating the spasms. During the past week, Mr. Reid showed decided improvement, suffering the paroxysm at long intervals during the day.

Full Relief Comes.

Yesterday saw the first complete stoppage of the paroxysms and hospital physicians were so elated that they were certain that the hiccoughs would not return. Because of the serious harm done to the nerve system by the hiccoughs, Mr. Reid, while being allowed to go home, will have to rest for some time before his old vigor returns, physicians say.

Mr. Reid suffered from a similar attack of the strange malady about a year ago and was confined to bed in Emergency Hospital for ten days.

Post Officer to Handle Publicity for Chest

Ernest S. Johnston, advertising manager of The Washington Post and chairman of the board of directors of the Washington Advertising Club, has been named chairman of the Community Chest publicity council, it was announced yesterday. He succeeds C. Melvin Sharpe, who served for the first two terms of the chest. Mr. Sharpe declined to serve another year.

Announcement was also made by the Community Chest that the District of Columbia Council of Boy Scouts was awarded the story of the month cup for having received the best publicity during the month of May. This is the second consecutive time that the cup has been won by the local scouts. Elwood Street, director of the chest, and others reported on the national conference of social work.

False Pretense Laid To Man in Purchases

Walter William Barry, 45 years old, living at the Park Lane apartments, Twenty-first street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was arrested yesterday on eleven charges of false pretense. Police said the man bought articles from department stores, having them charged to the account of a well-known Washington family.

He was arrested by Headquarters Detectives Howard Ogle and J. F. Flaherty after he asked a store to send his purchases to his apartment. The store had been requested to be on the lookout for him. The alleged fraud has been going on since last February, and his purchases are said to include luggage, suits and women's underwear. The total value is about $250.

Grant Soon to Buy Site For Federal Warehouse

Property for a new warehouse for the storage of Government and District supplies is to be purchased within a few days by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks. The location of the warehouse has not been announced.

The warehouse is to have 400,000 square feet of floor space. It will be used by the Treasury Department, independent establishments of the Federal Government and the District. The District Government will be charged a rental, the amount to be decided by a committee headed by Col. Grant. Purchase of property for the warehouse and its erection is provided for in a $1,750,000 Congressional appropriation.

Lieut. Nash Promoted To Fire Captain's Post

Lieut. William H. Nash, of No. 5 Truck Company, yesterday was promoted to a captaincy to fill the vacancy caused by the recent promotion of Capt. Edward O'Connor as battalion chief to succeed Chief P. R. Davis, who died from injuries suffered at the Rudolph & West fire last week. Lieut. Nash is a veteran of more than twenty years' service in the department.

Sergt. Oscar R. Anderson, of the rescue squad, was promoted to a lieutenancy and Private Harold F. Harding, of the rescue squad, was promoted to be a sergeant.
